Petticoat Savings.

It is too bad that, just when petticoats are most attractive, they should at the same time be most unfashionable. But most of us have the petticoat habit, and wear them whether they are fashionable or not, and even women of the world of high fashion wear petticoats of a kind.

The economical woman may take comfort in the fact that the most attractive of all the petticoats shown with the new fall fashions are easy to make and not necessarily expensive.

Crepe de Chine and Lace.

The petticoat of crepe de chine and lace is still shown in great variety. It is just the sort of petticoat to wear with the lighter afternoon and evening frocks. And it is a petticoat that can be easily made of old materials.

If you have any old light-colored crepe de chine frock you can surely find enough of it that is still sound for the foundation of a petticoat. Wash and iron it, and then design it. If you must buy new lace, and have plenty of the crepe, make a good deal of the trimming consist of bands or diamonds of tucked crepe, inset between lace insertion. Net, bought by the yard, and cut in stripes, some of it tucked if you wish, can also be used instead of lace for much of the petticoat's trimming. In fact, the only lace you need buy is enough to go around the bottom edge. You can even do away with this, if you follow a certain dainty late model. It is made of crepe de chine, banded with net. At the bottom is a band of pleated net, three or four inches wide, with a half-inch hem of the crepe de chine, applied by machine before the net is tucked.

For Practical Wear.

Wash silk petticoats are still shown and these are indeed an economy. They wash as well as gingham, and although they do not wear quite so long, they of course look much better. If you make one, buy enough of the silk for two ruffles around the bottom, and put the extra piece of silk away to add when the first ruffle wears shabby.

These ruffles should be eight or ten inches deep, and hardly fuller than the rest of the skirt, and there should be nothing under them—that is to say, the gores should be cut off where the ruffle begins.

In some of the ready-made silk petticoats the ruffles are scalloped, by machine. This work would hardly be worth while when it must be done by hand. But the hem of the ruffle can be finished with a narrow bias strip.

Messaline petticoats will continue to be the most practical and durable sort worn. They wear so much longer than taffeta that it seems a wonder now that taffeta was ever popular for petticoat making.

Some Cookery Suggestions

DAINTIES FOR VEGETARIANS.

FOR those who require a nourishing substitute for meat any of the dishes mentioned below are worthy of attention.

Carrot Pudding.—Take one cupful each of grated carrots, potatoes, chopped suet, flour, raisins and currants, one-half cupful of molasses, a little soda and salt and a teaspoonful of all kinds of spice. Steam three hours and serve with cream.

A Highly Seasoned Dish.

Lentils In Tomato Sauce.—Take two cupfuls of lentils, a large sliced onion, half a can of tomatoes, a tablespoonful of butter, a dash of paprika and salt to taste. Soak the lentils overnight. Drain. Add fresh water and stew until nearly tender and the liquor is absorbed. Then add tomato, onion and seasonings and cook until a thick puree. Serve hot with brown bread.

Baked Onions en Casserole.—Peel the onions, cook for ten minutes in boiling salted water, drain and place in a buttered casserole dish. Sprinkle with pepper and salt and pour white sauce over them. Strew crumbs over the top and bake covered for twenty minutes. Uncover and brown. Serve in the dish in which cooked.

Served With Fried Bread.

Stuffed Tomatoes and Rice.—Heat a cupful of rice slowly in well flavored stock. Choose as many smooth medium sized tomatoes as are required. Cut a piece from the top of each and with a saltspoon remove the pulp. Season the inside of the tomatoes. Fill the cavity with the cooked rice, put a tiny pat of butter on top, stand on a buttered plate and bake for ten or fifteen minutes. Serve hot on small croutons of fried bread.

Cream of Beet Soup.—Take four bunches of beets, pare, grate and strain through a cloth. Put into an enameled saucepan, place on the fire and let pulp scald. Let a pint of milk come to the boiling point, pour it into the saucepan with the hot beet juice and add a saltspoonful of salt. Mix two tablespoonfuls of butter with two of sifted flour and stir into the soup and continue stirring until the soup is as thick as cream.

The Dog Had a Weasel.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Ponto Proved A Friend In Need For Nick.

DADDY was writing a letter, but he pushed it aside as Jack and Evelyn came in to tell him it was their bedtime.

"So it is," he agreed, looking at the clock. "Well, if you'll sit down I'll tell you a story about Jimmy Murphy.

"Jimmy was very fond of pets. He had a big black cat named Nick. Nick followed him everywhere, just as Ponto's dog did. The two had been brought up together, and so the dog and cat were the best of friends.

"Jimmy lived in a small country town where every one kept chickens. Jimmy's folks kept chickens too.

"It happened that fall a new family moved into a house near Jimmy's.

"One morning the man of this family stopped at Jimmy's gate and spoke to Mrs. Murphy. 'That cat of yours is killing my chickens,' he said in a surly voice. 'You'll have to keep it at home.'

"Jimmy was distressed when he heard this. 'I don't believe Nick ever touched his old skinny chickens,' Jimmy said hotly.

"Jimmy did try to keep the cat at home, for the man had threatened to shoot him. It was hard work, too, for Nick had always been used to going about as he pleased.

"One night Nick managed to get away. He was gone all the next day.

"And that night there was heard a terrible squawking in the chicken house of the Thompsons, who lived next door.

"Ponto barked and carried on so that Jimmy untied him. Like a flash the dog vaulted over the fence, and then began an awful scuffle. Mr. Thompson came out with his lantern. Grandma Thompson and her daughter came after him.

"Ponto had something in his mouth which he was shaking savagely. It was a slender brown animal with white underneath.

"'Why, he's got a weasel!' Mr. Thompson cried.

"'Why, that's what has been killing the chickens!' Grandma Thompson exclaimed.

"'I always said it wasn't Jimmy's cat,' their daughter declared.

"And Jimmy led Ponto home after he had been petted by the Thompsons.

"'Ponto just wanted to clear dear Nickie of being called a chicken thief,' Jimmy told his mother. 'Mr. Thompson says it sure was the weasel, for the others were all killed the same way as his were.'

"And, as if Nick knew that he was once more a cat of good standing, that evening, tired and hungry, he meowed at the door and was given a joyous welcome by Ponto and his master."

VOTES FOR WOMEN

WOMEN FIGHTING FOR TEN THINGS

Mrs. Margaret Stannards Tells Planks of Platform Which Modern Women Want.

Mrs. Margaret Stannard, chairman of the Hospitality Committee of the National Mothers' Congress, gives the Boston American the fallowing list of ten things which women want, and which lie back of their present unrest:

Would Advance Civilization.

1. The women of this age are fighting for an infinitely finer and higher civilization than the world has ever known. The purpose, as exemplified in the work of the Mothers' Congress, for example, means that we are definitely waging war against the forces that pull civilization back and fighting for the forces that help it forward.

Seek Home Employment.

2. We are fighting to improve the home in every department. The home represents with absolute fidelity the degree of understanding to which the parents have evolved. Therefore, in order to improve the home, we must train the home makers first.

Must Protect Children.

3. We are fighting to rouse the whole nation to a sense of its duty toward children. It is to the children we must look for the achievements of the future, for the civilization of the future. We cannot do too much toward laying the right foundations in childhood.

Want Trained Fathers.

4. We want our men to have higher standards of morality and a deeper sense of the sacredness and purity of marriage. Therefore we are fighting for the education of the young men as future fathers and founders of homes. We believe in training men for fatherhood, as well as in training girls for motherhood.

Would Teach Girls Executive Work.

5. We want our girls of the present day to learn how to do the executive work of a home—this is what the modern girl must learn if she would be a true success in the womanly profession of wife and mother.

Want Higher Standard for Men.

6. We want our girls to insist upon higher standards and cleaner habits in the young men with whom they associate. I think it is a girl's duty to refuse to condone even the smaller vices indulged in by her men friends, and thus establish at the start a rule of conduct from which they will not dare to depart, at least while claiming her friendship.

Must Rouse Leisured Women.

7. We want the women of leisure, the women of means, to use thir time and their influence in the great upward and onward movement for better social conditions. The woman of leisure is the free lance in society and it is she who has the big opportunities to further civilization.

Girl of Leisure Must Help.

8. We want the girl of leisure, the girl with the exceptional advantage for culture, to give herself to the study of the vital problems affecting the race. Her influence may be unbounded, for she has the ways and the means to do great things. She should turn her talents, her brain, her culture, to the end that really means most to humanity—the study of home-building in the largest sense.

Would Promote Efficiency.

9. We are fighting for greater efficiency in our young people, in all practical matters of life. Especially do we want to see girls and women of today well trained, thoroughly equipped, in household arts. The girls of today are sadly lacking in such usefulness. Why, how many girls of the present day can actually run a house, as their mothers can do it? How many girls can do the buying?

A girl should know all these things and more than that, she should do them. A girl should be taught to buy her own clothes, should be taught the value of a dollar.

But the young woman of today depends on her mother, or perhaps the mother insists upon doing these things herself, as she thinks she is a better judge of values and can buy more economically.

Want Ballot Above All.

10. Last of all—and this should really be first—we are fighting for the ballot, for only through this weapon, which, as I contend, is a human weapon and not merely a woman's right, can we ever accomplish all there is in us to accomplish for the world.

EVENING WRAPS FOR ORNAMENT AS WELL AS USE

Dress wraps and evening coats will be more than ever important this season as ornaments of costuming. One can almost forget their purpose of warmth in enthusiasm for the soft and delicate fabrics which fashion sees fit to mingle with more practical plain and brocaded materials. Milady who steps from her limousine to the opera house lobby may wear a tissue coat edged with fox or sable, well nigh falling off her shoulders to be quite correct, but others of us can and must have utility wraps, such as are pictured here in two of the newest effects. Both are three-quarter length and so simple in cut as to encourage the home sewer to make her own new coat rather than wear her out of date left over from last season.

Model No. 7918 has the latest cut-away front and the fullness at the back drawn into a trimming band. This particular model was made of white ratine with collar, cuffs and buttons of gray suede and lined with a flowered brocaded silk. Size 36 can be cut from 4 yards of 42 inch material. The pattern is cut in six sizes.

The feature of special importance in model No. 7975 is the full length vest of brocaded satin in a garment of cyclamen pink ottaman cloth. The revers are faced with black velvet, and there are sectional belt pieces on the back, giving a high waisted effect that Paris modistes approve so highly. This model may be duplicated in any of five sizes. Size 40 requires 3¾ yards of 54 inch material and 1½ yards of fancy for the vest. Each pattern is 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

Designs for Towels and Bed Linens.

Ever useful is the towel and a hand embroidered one is particularly attractive. They make such pretty gifts and are always acceptable at church fairs, charity bazaars, linen showers and as holiday remembrances.

The dainty shamrock design is suitable for a guest size and may be used on sheets and pillow cases while the other two designs are for large towels. These designs are also appropriate for embroidering bureau scarfs and sideboard covers. The shamrock and scalloped design should be embroidered in solid work or outline and seed-stitch and the sprays in solid work and eyelets. A scalloped edge may be used with the other designs or the ends may be hemstitched. An initial or monogram may be placed over the border and between the sprays, if desired.

The shamrock design is a border three-fourths of an inch wide, the scalloped border four and one-half inches wide and the other pattern consists of four sprays each six by eleven inches.

Patterns numbers 12436 and 13115 are each ten cents and pattern number 12780 is fifteen cents. Transfer patterns for stamping these can be supplied to readers on receipt of price.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

Query—What course should I take in the Plainfield High School to become an electrician?—J. B.

Answer—You would have to take more than a course in the local High School to become an electrician, but the scientific course will start you on your way.

Sporting Editor:

Query—When are white felt hats called in for the season in North Plainfield?—L. S.

Answer—Why the borough? If you are the sort of a man who does what he wants when he wants to, you can wear a white felt all the year around if you choose. Nobody and nothing except a custom popularized and kept alive by people who yield senile obedience to it, "calls in" straw hats or white felt hats at any specified time. Certain foreign critics of American idiosyncracies, who haven't the same admiration for us that we have for ourselves, have remarked that it is far sillier to wear a straw hat on a chilly day in July than on a hot day such as we have in October. Having gotten this out of our system we will state for your benefit that the date for those who hold to the "calling-in" superstition store their straw hats and while felt hats on September 15. We have noticed many of them floating around on walking domes since that date in North Plainfield, however.

Sporting Editor.

Query—Who made the hit in the game between the New York Giants and the Chicago Cubs when Fred Merkle forgot to touch second base, in the game played on September 23, 1908.

Answer—One year ago today Fred Merkle was being heralded throughout the country as a "bonehead" and as the man who threw the Giants' chances away. Al Bridwell was the batter. He hit the ball to center field but was not credited with a hit.

DOCTORS' CHORUS.

Let us then be up and doing
With a heart for any fate.
There will soon be trouble brewing—
Football season's at the gate.

The doors of the 1913 gridiron season were formally opened yesterday when a collegiate candidate had his shoulder broken. Now that the game has started we will expect to find plenty of work for the undertaker who yearns for a session of football twelve months in the year. The undertaker has found a national pastime of his own.

The report that Connie Mack has offered a college pitcher $15,000 to play with his team leads us to suspect that the recent losing streak has effected his mind. Wonder if McGraw will worry him any more during the coming series?

The boxing commission has refused to let Sam Langford fight any white hopes. Up to date none of the said white hopes have gone into mourning. If Sam runs short of breakfast money, however, he can sell himself to some unsuspecting stranger as a load of coal.

To our jaded notion this petty quarrel between two baseball factions that is becoming hot and heavy in Plainfield, is about as interesting as a foot race between two cows. The other side positively refuses to take a stand in the matter.

Although interest in nearly everything that civilization offers will be dead in the general public of these fair United States until after a certain question has been settle by Mr. McGillicuddy and a young man named McGraw, still there are a few who are thinking of football. Already the pigskin has assumed its annual conspicuous position in the sporting columns and from now on box scores will gradually give way to lineups and pictures of armoured warriors.

Plainfield's leading representative on the gridiron has reorganized for another season of pigskin chasing and if present prospects may be taken as a criterion the Holy Cross club will be represented by an even stronger combination than the one that claimed the State club title last season. Most of the medal sporters are back in the fold and with a man of P. V. Martin's calibre at the coaching helm the lineup should be about the best that has performed on local lots in years.

Word has reached us from Dunellen of the organization of the Dunellen Field Club eleven, Holy Cross' most deadly rival two years ago. With the suburban town represented in the pigskin world it will not be so easy for the borough churchboy team to race home with the championship this fall. A meeting of these two combinations will probably serve to awaken the old-time interest and rivalry that existed here years ago and Plainfield followers of the game will welcome the renewal of athletic relations on the gridiron between the two towns.

Plainfield won the baseball championship from the Dunellen representatives and it now remains for the football warriors of that place to push the oval over the line to victory. Just like a miniature international series with Plainfield playing the role of America and Dunellen sporting the colors of John Bull.

Playing the game is pretty tough when the game is going against you but a more notable exhibition of real "playing the game" than the one put up by Jack Torpey and his crew at Parker Field Saturday afternoon would be hard to single out. Even the last man who toed the rubber for the visitors tried his hardest to wallop the ball to the left field fence and start a rally that would eventually land the pennant for a team that were four runs in the rear. If their were more leaders of Torpey's calibre and more players like those on the Somerville outfield, baseball would be soaring instead of standing still as a sport.

Manager Dorflinger has booked a fine attraction for the fans at Parker Field next Saturday afternoon and the cream of the International League talent has been signed by Jack Martin who will lead the team against the Pets. Jack says that the Queen City tribe will have to have somebody better than New England leaguers to even have a look-in. All of the visitors are fresh from the international circuit and the team will not be composed of cast-offs as some have avered.

Now that the Sunday school and City Leagues have laid aside baseball togs for another year, why not effect the organization of a basketball league. If promoted on the same basis as the diamond sport, the popular indoor game would probably prove an even better drawing card. There are plenty of courts in and about the city and basketball players are found anywhere that baseball performers exist.

When George Townley and Herbert Stine left for the International Y. M. C. A. college in Springfield, Mass., yesterday, Plainfield lost a pair of its best athletes and two that were putting Plainfield on the map in the athletic world. Both of these fellows will probably show to good advantage in collegiate circles and their friends in this city may rightly expect to find their names among the varsity performers during the next three years. Seldom do two fellows leave a town to enter college with records like the ones established by the North Plainfield High School graduates.

DUNNING WINS WAY WITH A HANDICAP

Giving Fifteen Points to His Rival, N. P. H. S. Star Takes Another Match.

By defeating Vincent LaPorte '16 in straight sets, in the North Plainfield High School tennis tournament, Frank Dunning '14, worked his way into the finals for the championship of the school. LaPorte received a handicap of fifteen points per game but the match was one-sided throughout, the scores being 6—1, 6—1.

In the last preliminary match of the tournament, Duclos Van Mater '15, defeated his classmate, Elmer French, in two out of three sets. The scores were 3—6, 6—1 and 6—2. The contest was hot and exciting throughout especially the last set when the set point went to deuce ten times before Van Mater could place it for the final point. This victory gives Van Mater a place in the semi-finals and he will meet Hoyt Tomkinson '15, this afternoon, to decide which one will meet Dunning in the final match on Thursday.

Regardless of the outcome of this match the finals will be the same as they were last year, a '15 man versus a '14 man. A handicap of fifteen points will be given in the finals.

WARRY M'LAUGHLIN WILL LEAD A LOCAL TEAM NEXT SEASON

From present indications it looks as though Plainfield would have two baseball teams sporting the Queen City handle on Central New Jersey diamonds during the 1914 season and tentative plans have already been launched to make this a reality. For a number of years past there has been an agitation prevalent here, fostered by fans and players, to see a combination formed exclusively of home material perform on local diamonds and if plans recently suggested by well known followers of the game in this city go through, the proposition will shortly become a reality.

Warry McLaughlin, the former Pittsburg and Philadelphia National Leaguer, who twirled for Dunellen during the 1913 Central New Jersey season, and who is at present performing for the Trenton semi-professional team on Sundays, will probably be placed at the helm of the new combination and his friends in this city and vicinity are willing to back him up substantially during the experimental stages of the proposition. McLaughlin has long entertained an ambition of becoming a magnate and leader of baseball players and his friends here, who are desirous of placing him in the managerial capacity, declare that $2,000 will be raised by subscription which will provide a financial nucleus to build an up-to-date baseball park in the western section of the city. The Plainfield team under the management of Ernest Dorflinger will probably play at Parker Field and the new magnates hope to find a plot in the vicinity of Clinton avenue, where there is much improved land on which a baseball park can be located.

Baseball has always proven itself a drawing card in the western section of Plainfield and even the minor games played in that vicinity have been well patronized. There are a number of fields being considered at the present time but no definite decision has as yet been reached in the matter.

McLaughlin declares, if his present plans go through, the combination will be made up entirely of local talent, of which there is an abundance awaiting just such an opportunity to bloom as this one will offer. It is said that the recent agitation has had much to do with hastening the plans for a new club and although Warry's friends knew that he was considering the proposition, many will be surprised to hear of his early start toward organizing for next spring.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

THORPE TO WED INDIAN MAID.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 24.—Confirmation of the reported engagement of James Thorpe, world's champion all-around athlete, to Miss Margaret Irma Miller, a Cherokee Indian maid, was given out yesterday by the bride-elect, who is visiting her brother at Inglewood. Miss Miller was graduated last year from the Carlisle Indian School. She will leave in a few days for Carlisle, where the wedding will take place on October 15.

QUAKERS BEATEN.

Philadelphia, Sept. 24.—Splendid bowling on the part of the Englishmen enabled the Incogniti Club, of London, to win its match from the Philadelphia Cricket Club eleven yesterday by 79 runs. The visitors, who made 139 runs in their first inning Monday, completed their second turn at bat for 129. The Philadelphians put together 128 runs in their opening inning, and were all out in the second for the small score of 61.

NO GOLF AT OLYMPICS.

London, Sept. 24.—The Royal and Ancient Club at a meeting at St. Andrews last night unanimously expressed disapproval of the inclusion of golf in the Olympic games, and agreed if golf were included to take no part in drawing up the program. The Royal and Ancient Club is the supreme golf body. Without its sanction and help no representative British golf team could be got together.

TO CHALLENGE JACK JOHNSON.

Negotiations are already under way for a championship match between Jack Johnson and Gunboat Smith, the latter's manager, Jim Buckley, having cabled to Vienne, the French promoter, stating that he will be in Paris within a few weeks to challenge Johnson for the title. Buckley realizes that a win over Langford will put Smith in a position to clean up $100,000 in a year's time with theatrical engagements and a title match with Johnson, and the fact that Frank Moran has refused to meet Smith in this country gives Smith the better chance for the big match.

MEDALS FOR NEWARK PLAYERS.

Next Saturday has definitely been decided upon as the day on which the Newark team, winners of the International League pennant race, will be honored by the fans of their home city. A committee of fifty citizens has been appointed to take charge of different phases of the celebration. A field day will be held at Widenmayer's Park in the afternoon and an automobile parade at night. Funds are being sent to James M. Reilly, secretary of the Newark Board of Trade, with which to purchase gold medals for the members of the championship team. The surplus money will be divided among the players.

FR. DITTRICK LEAVES BOUND BROOK

Popular Priest Went to New Charge Today—Fr. Rudden Successor.

Bound Brook, Sept. 24.—Rev. W. F. Dittrick, who has been the rector in charge of St. Joseph's church at Bound Brook for the last fourteen years, left Bound Brook today to take charge of the Church of the Holy Spirit at Atlantic City, to which he has been promoted by Bishop McFaul because of the faithful work done at Bound Brook. While here many improvements have been made to St. Joseph's property. The rectory has been remodeled and greatly improved. The parochial school building has been renovated and improved and the town property on East Second street purchased.

Father Dittrick has also established a mission at Mt. Bethel and built a church there that is considered one of the most beautiful and picturesque church buildings on the mountains of New Jersey being built chiefly of mountain stone. Father Dittrick was ordained to the priesthood on May 27, 1893, in St. Lawrence Cathedral, Genoa, Italy. Soon thereafter he was appointed assistant rector of St. Peter's church at New Brunswick, where he spent two years, and was then made rector of the Sacred Heart church of Vineland, coming to Bound Brook in September, 1899. He will be greatly missed by his loyal parishioners of Bound Brook and vicinity as well as by a large number of friends he has made outside of his parish.

His successor will be Rev. Thomas Rudden, who has been the first assistant at St. Mary's Cathedral at Trenton. Father Rudden is a native of Phillipsburg, and was ordained to the priesthood in 1898 in the St. Lawrence Cathedral at Genoa, Italy. He will come to Bound Brook this week and take charge of St. Joseph's church.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The following officers were elected to serve on the board of the Boys' Athletic Association yesterday: President, William Peacock; vice-president, Guy Snyder; secretary-treasurer, Donald Smince.

Dr. A. F. Van Horn, the school physician, examined the football candidates yesterday and as a result three will be barred from the team for some time. James Noonan was ordered to quit the game while Herbert Peacock and Warren Butler, two of the most promising aspirants, were ordered to lay off pending a further examination.

A Great Exhibit

MACY'S IS SHOWING PARIS GOWNS ON LIVING MODELS

On Wednesday, September 24th, and continuing to-morrow, there is a remarkable exposition at Macy's, New York.

Shown on living models, who have been recruited from the theatrical profession, are a large number of imported costumes showing the trend of fashion for the Fall and Winter 1913-1914.

There are original costumes which have been created for every requirement of the social season, by such artists as Worth, Paquin, Drecoll, Beer, Paul Poiret, Callot, Bernard, Havet-Agnes, and other French master designers.

There are Paris dancing dresses—quite a number of exquisite creations—and there are evening wraps from Paris and Berlin, and models showing the most favored of the new fabrics and colors.

There are fur wraps and suits, imported hats and other accessories for milady's costume.

It is notable that there are in all 42 of these magnificent importations, a greater number than Macy's have ever shown before.

At the close of the exposition on Thursday it is proposed by Macy's to take orders for copies of and adaptations from these garments, at prices which, of course, will be but a fraction of the cost of landing the originals in this Country.

The hours of the exposition are from 10 to 11 a. m., and from 2 to 3.30 p.m.

American-made copies of the imported gowns will be shown from 11 to 12 a.m. and from 3.30 to 4.30 p.m.

R. H. Macy & Co. extend an invitation not only to residents of New York and its wide-spreading suburbs, but to visitors in and about New York, and to persons passing through New York en route to other points.

NEW YORK

Governor Felker Takes Matter Under Advisement.

JEROME FLAYS PRISONER

Says Wherever Case Has Gone It Has Left Trail of Ignominy and Disgrace and Refers to Thaw as Homicidal Lunatic.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 24.—Whether Harry K. Thaw will be sent back to Matteawan or be given his liberty in this state will be decided by Governor Felker next Monday. That was the upshot of the hearing, delivered a few minutes after William Travers Jerome had stood in the senate chamber of the statehouse, his voice pulsing with the old vibration, and told New Hampshire's governor why New York state has been willing to spend money and time to get Thaw back.

"From the very hour," he said, "that Stanford White lay dead on the roof garden in the city of New York, his life taken either by a murderer or a lunatic, from that time to this minute it has been said repeatedly and repeatedly that in the end the Thaw money would defeat the ends of justice."

Thaw, whose head had fallen forward on his chest, looked up at the man who has kept him under lock and key since the night Stanford White was killed. His face was deathly pale. A strained smile hovered about his lips. He turned to his mother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, who was seated directly behind him. She stretched out her hand and Thaw clasped it for an instant. Jerome went on, his voice rolling through the room with the old resonance.

Leaves Trail of Filth.

"So far it has not entirely accomplished this end," he said, "but wherever this case has gone and wherever it has rested it has left a trail of ignomy, disgrace, filth and scandal behind it that has been absolutely appalling, and the state of New York, sir, will not permit its justice to be defeated by the corrupt use of money if it can prevent it.

"That is why the state of New York wants a man back whom it regards as a homicidal lunatic when influenced by his insane delusions and his vicious degeneracy at other times, a man criminal in his lucid intervals and dangerous in his insane ones."

During the course of his argument against extradition former Governor Stone of Pennsylvania, chief counsel for Thaw, openly accused Mr. Jerome of deceit and trickery in the conduct of the case.

"The requisition papers presented here do not conform to the laws of New Hampshire," he told Governor Felker at the hearing. "No indictment has been found against Thaw, and he cannot be extradited without an indictment."

DEATH OF VILLA DENIED.

Rebel Leader Is at Head of His Troops Near Casa Grandes.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 24.—Francisco Villa, Mexican rebel leader, is very much alive and at the head of his troops 150 miles south of Juarez, according to the information of Juarez military and consular officers and General Hugh L. Scott, commanding United States border troops.

Miguel E. Diebold, inspector of Mexican consulates, has returned here from Palomas, where Villa was reported wounded and a prisoner and says the report is false.

Colonel Juan N. Medina of Juarez says he has heard that Villa is with his own troops at Casa Grandes, southwest of Juarez.

JOHN D. ASKS USE OF SEWER

If Village Says Yes It Will Save Him Building Disposal Works.

Tarrytown, N. Y., Sept. 24.—John D. Rockefeller has asked permission of the North Tarrytown trustees through John J. Sinnott, his attorney, to connect his sewer with the village system. Rockefeller intends to sewer all of his property and either must get permission to connect with the village or he will have to build a big disposal works. This he does not want to do. The village is doubtful if it can accommodate Rockefeller, and the matter has been referred to its counsel. Rockefeller agrees to pay all costs.

SAMUEL UNTERMYER.

Senate Questions Him on Provisions of the Currency Bill.

Complete revision of the framework of the administration currency bill was proposed by Senators Reed, Hitchcock and Bristow at the examination of Samuel Untermyer before the senate banking committee. Mr. Untermyer made it clear that in his testimony he desired to deny that the federal reserve board would be able to use its influence for political purposes. Mr. Untermyer will be heard again Monday.

MRS. MACKAY SUED IN ALIENATION ACTION

Wife of Dr. Blake, Surgeon, Asks $1,000,000.

New York, Sept. 24.—Mrs. Joseph A. Blake, wife of the noted surgeon, has served Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay with the necessary papers in a suit for $1,000,000 for alienation of her husband's affections.

Because of the reluctance of both parties to the action to face publicity there has been a delay in filing the issue in court, but unless an agreement is reached—now looked upon as impossible because of the bitterness of the plaintiff—the papers will be offered for judicial record at the coming term.

In spite of the effort at secrecy the matter of the suit has been a subject of gossip for several months.

Mrs. Mackay, whose husband suddenly left America last June, taking with him the three children, was served with the papers in the alienation suit, in which grave charges were made just a short time before Mr. Mackay made his flight. The service was accepted in her behalf by Arthur C. Train, her personal counsel, who now represents her in association with Henry W. Taft, brother of the former president.

Lace Lingerie That Makes Perfect Foundations For Diaphanous Frocks

Underbodices, $1.50
Petticoats, $3

Chiffon Frocks are particularly pretty over this lacy lingerie, for it gives a delightful touch of daintiness, and yet does not continue the transparence.

That these Petticoats and underbodice will not be too lingerie-like we have had them finished with Van Dyke Point bandings of Crepe de Chine in pink, white or light blue.

For those who seek relief from kidney backache, weak kidneys, bladder ills, Doan's Kidney Pills offer hope of relief and the proof is here, in Plainfield, the same as everywhere. Plainfield people have used Doan's and Plainfield people recommend Doan's, the kidney remedy used in America for fifty years. Why suffer? Why run the risk of dangerous kidney ills—fatal Bright's disease? Here's Plainfield proof. Investigate it.

Mrs. Patience Manchester, 120 Lafayette place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I willingly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills again. I still use this remedy occasionally and it always relieves me of serious kidney troubles. For a long time I doctored and tried various remedies for my kidneys and bladder, but did not get a cure. Doan's Kidney Pills brought me good results from the first and before long rid me of the trouble."

NOTE

The costumes are the personal and special importations of the Wanamaker store.

They may be viewed privately after the presentation in the Gray Salons, Second floor, Old Building.

They are presented in a "Persian Garden" because the fashions this Autumn are vividly Oriental and largely Persian.

The headdress shown with some of the evening gowns was made for the Wanamaker Store by Paul Poiret and exactly duplicate those designed by him for Le Minaret.

HUGHES' FIGHT IS FOR THE FARMER

Progressive Assembly Nominee Gives His Views to Agriculture Board Chief.

AND AWAITS REPLY

"Uncle Joe" Frelinghuysen as Leader of the Somerset G. O. P., is Asked if He Approves Hughes' Platform.

Somerville, Sept. 25—Added interest to the Assembly campaign in Somerset county has been given by an open letter from George T. Hughes, the Progressive candidate, to former Senator Frelinghuysen, the president of the State Board of Agriculture. In this letter Mr. Hughes, who, it will be remembered, invited his Democratic and Republican rivals to a three-sided public discussion of the issues, which invitation they both declined, gives his views on the agricultural problems the New Jersey farmer must solve. Mr. Hughes says:

"Aside from the main issues of the campaign, the issues upon which the three parties will make a State-wide fight, I know of nothing more important for the voters to understand than the attitude of the legislative candidates toward the farmer and farm problems. Somerset county is a rural county and its agricultural interests are paramount. It is to make my own position with reference to these problems plain that I am writing you this letter. As you have so long and so ably worked for the advancement of the State's farming interests your views on this topic will be of exceptional value.

"In the first place I believe that the greatest issue to the farmers not only of our own county but of the whole State is that of "the 35-cent dollar." By this I mean the condition which has brought it about that of 100 cents paid by the city consumer the country producer gets on the average of 35, while the remaining 65 is divided among various middlemen, who, with the minimum of investment in money and labor, grow rich at the expense of consumer and producer alike. Of the accuracy of this statement there is not the slightest doubt. You, who, like myself, have had experience in farming, know it to be true. Every unprejudiced investigator has found it to be true. And the whole secret of the much-discussed "high cost of living" is found in this 35-cent dollar.

"In my judgment it is only the man who recognizes this condition and the bearing it has on the prosperity of our country, town and farm alike, who is fit to represent us in the legislature. I do not know how my opponents stand on this issue. I trust they are alive to its importance. But personally I feel very strongly on the matter, and if the farmers of the county see fit to elect me to the Assembly they will have in that body at least one man who understands the handicaps under which they labor and who will have the courage and, I trust, the ability to express himself.

"I know there is nothing which arouses my indignation more than to read in the newspapers, as we so often do, an interview with or a statement by some railroad president to the effect that the whole trouble with the American farmer is that he doesn't get the most possible out of his land. The Chinaman who gets as much out of one acre as the American gets out of ten is held up to us as an example. There are two things to be said about that. And the first is that Americans are not Chinese and the second is that when it is profitable to cultivate our land as intensively as the Chinese cultivate theirs then and not until then we Americans will do as the Chinese do. Nor can we American farmers get the same results from a limited acreage as do the natives of the older nations of Europe until we are ready to let our wives work in the fields as do the wives of the Belgian or the Russian. I hope that day is a long way off. The average American farmer's wife has to work hard enough as it is.

"Now, what are we going to do about it? Simply keep hammering away until the legislature is forced to give the problem its attention. Every help which the State can give toward getting for the farmer a larger share of that dollar than the 35 cents now gets, that help the State should give. I think our experiment stations should devote more time to marketing problems. I think the State ought to exercise rigid control over commission men. New York State is doing that now. I think that farmers' co-operative organizations ought to be encouraged. And finally I believe the employers' liability law should be amended to exempt farm help. As it is now, one or two accidents may lose a struggling farmer his entire farm. A manufacturer can add to the price of his product the cost of his liability insurance. But a farmer, even if he can afford to pay the premium for liability insurance

SPICER MFG. CO.'S PLANS ANNOUNCED

Rapidly Growing Concern Expects Soon to Be a Leading Industry in the State.

On being interviewed today on the future of the Spicer Manufacturing Company's rapidly growing business, George L. Babcock, treasurer, said:

"Specified deliveries on signed orders of the company assure good business way into the year 1914 without considering the orders which naturally gravitate to this established business. The equipment of the new, modern South Plainfield plant is practically complete. The machinery installed is of the latest pattern and design not only for the present manufacturing needs but can be utilized for additional lines of goods. In due course, other lines may be taken up. First of all, however, will be the manufacture of the universal joints and the other lines will tend to supplement our main produce.

"Prior to now, the company has operated its plant day and night, working five days a week. The men were working on a schedule of ten and a half hours' work per day. After some thought and due consideration it is believed that the efficiency of the plant would be much greater if the schedule of hours for work were changed. As a result of a long conference and much discussion the board of directors voted to run the Spicer Mfg. Co. six days a week in place of the old schedule. For such night work as will be necessary the working hours will terminate about two o'clock in the morning which will be of great benefit to the men on night work in the employ of the company.

"Recently L. D. Albin, of Plainfield, sales-manager of the Ingersoll-Rand Co., was elected to the board of directors, and Marvyn Scudden, of New York, who was engaged by the Pujo Money Trust Investigating Committee and who is an investigator and systematizer of considerable prominence, also has been elected to the directorate.

"Some beneficial changes have been or are about to be inaugurated in the method of running the shop and the present large output should become greater than it now is.

"In my judgment, the Spicer Mfg. Co. is destined to be one of the leading industries in the State of New Jersey and with the proposed minor changes in full operation, it is believed that the manufacturing department of the company will shortly develop into a model manufacturing unit.

"As soon as it is practical, we propose to solicit and secure business from other lines of industry which offer fertile fields for the use and development of the universal joints. In addition to this, we contemplate adding another line or lines of goods which have excellent commercial possibilities. By so doing, it appears to assure the continual operation of the entire plant to its fullest capacity for many months to come and the profit thus made will increase the splendid earnings made last year. Taking the situation all in all the future of the Spicer Mfg. Co. seems very bright indeed."

The pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Rev. Edwin Shaw, is at Battle Creek, Michigan, as a representative of the American Sabbath Tract Society, of this city, to a meeting of the Sabbathkeepers' Association of Michigan, September 26-28. He plans to be absent about a week.

In his absence there will be preaching on Sabbath morning at the usual hour by the Rev. Robert F. Y. Pierce, D. D., pastor of the Second Avenue Baptist church, of New York city.

Rev. Theodore L. Gardiner, D. D., editor of the Sabbath Recorder, has gone to Nortonville, Kansas, to attend a meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist denomination there, September 25-28. Before returning to Plainfield he will attend a similar meeting at Nile, New York, October 2-5. While on the way he will visit his sister, Mrs. Henry N. Jordan, of Milton Junction, Wis., whose husband is the pastor of the church there, recently of New Market.

Saturday, Professor Isaac B. Burgess, the general secretary of the New Jersey State Sunday-school Association, will give an address at the Seventh-Day Baptist church on the topic, "What Does Rally Day Mean?" to the Sabbath-school of the Seventh-Day Baptist church at 11:45 a. m. MME. ALDA WILL BE HEARD HERE DEC. 2

World Celebrated Soprano to Be Assisted by Cassini and La Forge.

The Musical Club announces that for its annual concert on Tuesday night, December 2, 1913, at the Plainfield theatre, it has engaged Mme. Frances Alda, soprano, assisted by Gutia Cassini, Russian 'cellist, and Frank La Forge, pianist.

Among the prima donna sopranos regarded as pre-eminent, none has attained a greater popularity than Mme. Frances Alda, one of the leading principals of New York's Metropolitan Opera Company. Her American debut, which took place only a few seasons ago, was marked by triumph of the first order. And ever since the gifted artist has more than maintained the position she instantly created for herself on a stage where the most distinguished artists of the world have been singing for years. Although still a very young woman, Mme. Alda's accomplishments have been notable for qualities of maturity which come only to the few at such a time.

A youthful instrumentalist who created something of a sensation in the United States and Canada last season—his first on this side of the Atlantic—is Gutla Cassini, a seventeen-year old Russian 'cellist whose appearance in every city he visited were attended by unrestrained enthusiasm. His coming was not preceded with undue heralding. No amazing predictions were made for him; but when he faced his audiences, when he touched his bow to the strings of his instrument, he so reached the hearts of his listeners that ovation followed ovation.

No concert pianist and accompanist, with whom the American music-going public is familiar, has secured so wide an endorsement for exceptional ability as Frank La Forge, whose co-operation has been obtained for concerts in which Mme. Frances Alda is also to appear. This musician has appeared before representative assemblages in every musical center in the United States and Canada, and always has he been received with that fervor deserved by the real artist.

BACK FROM SPRINGFIELD.

C. William Bingeman, boys' secetary of the local Y. M. C. A., reurned last night from Springfield, Mass., where he went the first part of the week in company with Herbert A. Stine and George Townley, who entered the International Training School for Y. M. C. A. work at that place. Mr. Bingeman is a graduate of the college in the year of 1909 and spent some time in renewing old acquaintances in the college town. While at Springfield he played guard on the varsity football team and yesterday reviewed the practise of the 1913 squad.

ASK TO INCREASE BORO'S TAX RATE

NINE POINTS RAISE

More Money Needed for Schools Responsible for Higher Rate, Which Will Be $2.10 in All Probability.

Meeting in a special session, the North Plainfield Council, last night, adopted a resolution requesting the Somerset County Board of Taxation to authorize an increase in this year's tax rate nine points in excess of that allowed by the law. The amounts to be raised in the borough this year for various purposes is $84,466.33, and an approximate tax rate of $2.10 is necessary to realize this sum. The maximum rate under the law is $2.01.

The amount required for the borough to raise by taxation is divided as follows: For general borough purposes $31,710; special school purposes, 23,130; county purposes, $20,597.68, and State school purposes, $9,028.65. The increase in the rate is attributed to the additional amount needed to conduct the borough schools and the fact that a reduction will be made in this year's tax bills because of exhorbitant amounts of taxes levied in 1912.

The regular resolutions relative to the joint sewerage system were also read and adopted.

A walk to the new station will be laid along the west side of the new building and west of that will be a small park, both of which are part of the station grounds and are now being made by Central Railroad employes.

MAYOR'S MEDALS FOR BOY SCOUTS' MEET

Silk Pennant Also a Prize to Be Won at Exhibition October 4.

One of the interesting events in connection with the Boy Scout Exhibition to be held on Saturday afternoon, October 4, at 1.30 o'clock, will be the appearance there of some of the crack athletes of this part of the country. This part of the grogram is being arranged by John Fritts, through James E. Sullivan, of the A. A. A. He expects to have some contestants there of note who will compete for a fine set of medals donated by Mayor Percy H. Stewart.

Paul R. Collier, who also has been an ardent supporter of the Boy Scout movement in the past, has offered a handsome silk pennant, bearing the words "Champions in Scoutcraft," to the patrol taking the highest award in general scout work at the exhibit. This pennant will be the subject of an annual competition among Boy Scouts and is to be held by the patrol best able to defend it against patrols of any troop in the jurisdiction of the Plainfield Scout Council.

SWEPT FLOOR WHILE PATRONS ATE SUPPER

Max Smelson, proprietor of a restaurant in Somerset street, was warned by City Judge DeMeza this morning to conduct his establishment in a more orderly manner. This reprimand was the result of numerous fist fights which have taken place there. Truman Bilyou, James Conroy and Smelson were arrested on August 4, on charges of disorderly conduct, after a quarrel which attracted a crowd in the vicinity. Bilyou and Conroy were enjoying their supper when Smelson started to sweep the floor of the restaurant. His patrons protested that his actions were both unpleasant and unsanitary, and a fight followed.

All were released by the magistrate on a suspended sentence.

NEW JERSEY Y. M. H. A. TO HOLD CONVENTION

The annual convention of the Y. M. H. A. of New Jersey will be held Sunday in the clubhouse of the New Brunswick branch. Among the speakers will be Mayor Morrison, of that city, and Judge Peter Daly, of the Middlesex County Courts. The delegates of the local branch are Samuel Rothberg, Louis Rothberg and Jacob Abrams. The alternates are Harry Siegel, Samuel Meyers and A. H. Richards.

PUBLIC IS WELCOME.

Both the afternoon and evening meetings to be held on Saturday in connection with the 125th anniversary celebration of the buildipg of the Friends' Meeting House in Watchung avenue, will be open to the general public. The program will be an interesting one.

RECREATION WORK FLOURISHES HERE

Miss Nutting, the Supervisor, Resigns to Return to New York City.

Miss Lois Nutting, who has acted as supervisor of the recreation work in this city since it was started last spring, has tendered her resignation to take effect at once and she will return to New York to enter similar work there. Miss Nutting has issued an extensive report of the work as it has been conducted here during the past summer and the recreation committee is much encouraged over the success of the project which has been on an experimental basis up to this time.

So satisfactory was the reception of recreation work here that those in charge are planning a wider field of endeavor for the coming fall and winter months and it will be carried on under the direction of a new supervisor to be selected later. Acting Treasurer Harry Marshall's report of the finances shows that the work is established now on a firm basis and those in charge will be able to launch out in wider fields immediately. The committee is now planning for a public concert to be given by the Municipal orchestra sometime next month.

MANY CHANGES IN THE NEW DIRECTORY

More Than 6,000 Changes in Names Contained in City and Borough Section.

W. L. Richmond today began the delivery of the 1913 edition of the city directory of Plainfield and vicinity. A careful, painstaking canvass has been made, and the directory may be accepted as being as nearly reliable as possible.

Few persons realize just what it means to produce such a work, and make it reliable. For instance, there are in the Plainfield and North Plainfield section, 2,085 new names, not any of which appeared in the 1912 edition; there are 2,146 names erased from last year's list, and there are 1,873 addresses changed in the names remaining, making a total of 6,104 changes, or 54%. In the Westfield section, there are 673 new names, 367 are erased, and addresses of 271 are changed, making 1,311 changes, or 59%.

In Dunellen, there are 204 new names, 163 erased, and 79 addresses changed, a total of 446, or 51%. In Scotch Plains, 68 new names, 74 erased, 20 addresses changed, making a total of 162, or 31%. In Fanwood, 66 new names, 29 erased, 6 addresses changed, a total of 101, or 58%.

Thus in the complete alphabetical section of the directory, 8,124 changes have been made, over the 1912 book and this does not include the hundreds of changes in the occupations, etc., nor the many changes in the business section, and the appendix. All changes included, about 70% of last year's directory is changed, and this is normal, the average throughout the United States being from 60% to 80%. This shows the necessity of an annual directory.

MISS GEINER THE BRIDE OF MARTIN JOHNSON

Martin Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Johnson, of this city, became a benedict last night, when he took as his bride Miss Katherine Geiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Geiner, of New Brunswick. The ceremony was performed shortly after 7 o'clock in the parish house of St. Peter's church, New Brunswick. Monsignor O'Grady officiated. Only the immediate relatives and close friends of the couple were present.

The bride was dressed in a blue broadcloth traveling costume and wore a white picture hat. She carried a prayer book. As bridesmaid, Miss Anna Geiner, a sister of the bride, wore pink messaline and a picture hat to match. Fred Wenzel, of this city, was best man. The latter received a stick pin as a present from the groom and the bride's gift to her attendant was a gold bracelet.

Following an elaborate reception at the home of the bride's parents, the newly-weds left for Washington, D. C., on an extended honeymoon. On their return they will reside in this city.

TO BE THE BRIDE OF AN AVIATOR

WEDDING IN SPRING

Playmates From Childhood—Bride-elect Prominent in Local Society—Bridegroom-to-be a Chicago Manufacturer.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Susanne Wharton, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Wharton, of Belvidere avenue, to Logan A. (Jack) Vilas, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Royal C. Vilas, of New York city. The two families had spent many summers at the Thousand Islands and the young couple have known each other since childhood days. Mr. Vilas is interested in the Pyle Electric Searchlight Company, of Chicago, of which his father was formerly president, and is prominent in the society world, and also is known as an amateur athlete, polo player, motor car enthusiast, although aeroplaning is his favorite diversion. Miss Wharton is prominent in local society.

The engagement will be announced formally tomorrow at the Wharton mansion at a luncheon to be tendered in honor of Miss Marguerite Carpentier, whose engagement to Dewitt Clinton Ivins, Jr., of Hillside avenue, was announced last summer. At present, Mr. Vilas is a guest in the Wharton home. The wedding will probably take place next spring at the home of the bride-elect on Belvidere avenue.

Mr. Vilas deserted motor car racing about a year ago on becoming fascinated with flying, later becoming a pilot of his own airboat. Most of his experiences have been in flying over the water and he has become prominent through his death-defying manoeuvres in the air.

Mr. Vilas has been well known as an amateur aviator for some time and has many notable achievements to his credit. Early last summer he took Nathan Straus and S. Osgood Pell for flights over Long Island Sound and later he made a flight over Lake Michigan, from St. Joseph to Chicago. The latter trip was made in one hour and thirty-four minutes and the glide to the beach on the lake front was so smooth and noiseless that he dropped into a suffragist parade without creating any excitement.

Those who went out this morning are Rufus Finch, HarryBann, Stanley Bellows, H. M. Towner, Lawrence Smith, S. Casey, Harry Finch and Huntsman Edward Harrison.

MODEL COMPANY TRAINING TO RAISE STANDARD OF THE STATE GUARD

MODEL COMPANY AT DRILL

Eloquent of what the entire infantry of the New York National Guard is to become if high officers have their way in the provisional company, composed of perfect soldiers, which made its first public appearance on Memorial Day. To bring it up to the highest state of efficiency it was put through novel and hitherto unknown drills. The men forming the command, numbering 150, were drawn from seven different infantry regiments in New York city, and after being made unusually proficient were returned to their various commands, with the hope that their influence will have an important bearing on the work of their comrades.

When the company went to the New York State camp recently, fifty officers were detailed each week to watch them go through their routine work, the newest theories of military science being applied to the men. This system has been tried in European countries and to a certain extent in the regular army, but New York is said to be the first State to introduce this realistic kind of instruction for the National Guard. The whole object of the training will be to perfect the troops for actual battle conditions.

"IRISH KATE" SELLS "REAL IRISH LACE"

Mrs. George P. Mellick, of East Seventh street, bought some "real Irish lace" severtl weeks ago, from an Ihish woman known as "Irish Kate," paying $18 for the supposed bargain. Mrs. Mellick has since learned to her sorrow that the Irish lace isn't Irish lace at all, but is made of plain cotton thread and worth about $1.

Mrs. Mellick, in reporting the transaction to the police, said she saw the woman several days ago and accused her of cheating and took "Irish Kate's" suit case, for security, intending to keep it until she got her money back. But "Irish Kate" has left town, so the cops say.

UNVEIL A STATUTE TO JOHN F. DRYDEN

Bronze Memorial to "Pru" Founder Presented by 16,000 Employes.

In the unveiling program of the John F. Dryden statue and listening to the interesting addresses which attended the ceremony yesterday in the rotunda of the Prudential building at Newark, the significance of the fact that the memorial came into being solely through the initiative and efforts of the 16,000 employes of the Prudential Insurance Company was never lost sight of. The proceedings attracted all the members of the home office staff and as many of the field staff as could attend.

Although the board of directors of the company and members of the Dryden family were present it was as guests and both former Chancellor William J. Magee, who presided, and Richard V. Lindabury, general counsel for the company, who made the speech of acceptance on behalf of the directors, referred to the sentiment back of the gift and in the hearts of the old employes.

Peter Egenolf, of Elizabeth, a field supervisor of the company, actually unveiled the statue. A wreath of roses, ribboned with the colors of the Prudential Old Guard, lay at the base. After the silk flags were drawn aside all present adjourned to the other building across the street, where, in the assembly hall, the addresses were made. Here about 700 employes had gathered.

LEGISLATURE TO SEND BOYS ON LONG TRIP

Director Lipman Makes Important Announcement to Rutgers Students.

Director Lipman, of the State Agricultural course of Rutgers College at New Brunswick and who delivered a lecture before the Plainfield Board of Trade, Tuesday night, announces an appropriation by the Legislature to be used in extending the agricultural course of the college in the senior year by means of trips to various government experiment stations and other places of interest to agricultural students. The seniors will be divided into several sections, according to the branches in which the students will specialize, under members of the faculty.

Arrangements have already been completed for trips to Washington and Chicago. Each of these will last one week. Lectures will be given the students by recognized authorities, and a regular course of study under the professor in charge of the party will be followed. The students will be marked as for their regular college work.

The agricultural students in all classes in the regular courses will attend the Trenton fair next month, where they will receive both practical and theoretical instruction in soil testing, stock breeding, the judging of seed and other kindred subjects.

Ground has just been broken for the new $200,000 recitation hall and executive offices on the college farm. The erection of this building has been necessitated by the great number of students who are taking the short courses in agriculture there.

BELLIS DEFEATS LINBARGER, SEBRING EASY WINNER

Despite the fact that he received an overwhelming majority in the North Plainfield vote for the Somerset County Democratic county clerkship nomination and was heralded throughout the county as a winner, late returns show that Walter C. Linbarger was defeated in the race by Louis A. Bellis, Jr., of Somerville, by nearly 100 votes. The early count favored Linbarger.

Charles P. Sebring, candidate for the Somerset county Republican shrievalty nomination, won out by a wide margin, burying Fitzga and DeHart.

FIVE CHILDREN WILL GET GAYNOR ESTATE

Former Mayor's Fortune Is Close to $2,000,000.

New York, Sept. 25.—Following the filing of the will of the late mayor for probate with Surrogate Ketcham of Kings county, it was stated by those close to his trustees that the mayor was worth $1,884,125 when he died.

Investigation showed that the Gaynor estate included 615 shares of Royal Baking Powder preferred stock, now worth at least $275 a share. This totals $169,125. There are first mortgages with the Title Guarantee and Trust company amounting to $550,000; $500,000 in stock of the Economic Realty company and the People's Trust company of Brooklyn; $80,000 in cash in the Kings County Trust company and real estate in Brooklyn, Utica and St. James, N. Y., amounting to another $165,000 and other investments amounting to $400,000.

The widow receives the income from Royal Baking Powder stock amounting to $137,500 and the Gaynor home at 20 Eighth avenue, Brooklyn, with all it contains, during her life.

The two eloping daughters, Mrs. Gertrude Seward Webb and Mrs. Edith Vingut, receive $1,000 each and nothing more whatsoever. Each of the three younger daughters receives $1,500 a year until she comes of age, when she is to receive the income from one-seventh of the estate, while the son Norman receives $2,000 a year until of age and then the income from two-sevenths of the estate. ASK NEW TRIAL FOR BIG BANK WRECKER

Athens, Ga., Sept. 25.—The hearing on the motion for a new trial in the case of J. W. Griffin, formerly president of the defunct Athens Trust & Banking Company, who on July 3 was sentenced to six years and six months in the State penitentiary for wrecking the bank of which he was the head, which was set for today, is attracting considerable interest in local and official circles owing to the peculiar circumstances upon which the motion is based.

The case was tried before Judge Brand, of the Clark county superior court, and a jury during the first week of July. After the Judge had charged the jury the latter withdrew to consider the case. Before returning to his home in the evening, Judge Brand stopped at the courthouse and through the door of the jury room, in the presence of the sheriff and the bailiff, called to the members of the jury and asked them whether they wished to retire for the night. They declared that they had agreed on a verdict and would be ready in a few minutes, but that they desired further advice from the court as to their rights to make recommendations regarding the punishment. Judge Brand declared that he could not make any statement to them till the defendant and his attorneys and the State's attorney were present. He sent for them at once and explained the situation.

As soon as Judge Holden, one of Griffin's attorneys, had heard Judge Brand's statement, he made a motion for having the case declared a mistrial upon the ground that Judge Brand, without the presence of the defendant or his attorneys and without their consent, had had communication with the jury in regard to the case. After some heated argument, Judge Brand overruled the motion, called the jury in and after having given them further instructions, sent them back to their room to decide upon their verdict. In a short time the jury returned, found Griffin guilty, but recommended him to the mercy of the court. Griffin's attorneys promptly submitted a motion for a new trial and the hearing was set for today.

SCORE NEW HAVEN HEADS FOR WRECK

Directors Rebuked In Interstate Body's Report.

"RULES WERE DISOBEYED"

Declared That "Weak and Inefficient Discipline Certainly Was Fault of Management" — Directorate Referred to as "Magicians and Wizards."

Washington, Sept. 25.—The interstate commerce commission issued a full report of the investigation of the Wallingford wreck on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad on Sept. 2, in which twenty-one persons lost their lives. The directors are severely censured, and it is held that the directorate "should feel themselves called upon to turn from the consideration of the financial questions in which the road is involved and give their consideration to the question of safety."

The interstate commerce commission calls attention to the large number of wrecks which have taken place on the New Haven and virtually places responsibility for these accidents and the resultant loss of life upon the directorate of the road, whom it refers to as "magicians in the art of finance and wizards in the construction, operation and consolidation of great systems of railroads."

No System Followed.

The report further calls attention to the fact that "no intelligent system was devised by which to ascertain when rules were disobeyed."

It is also charged that rules were violated many times and that only a small proportion of these violations were reported to the officials of the company.

"Discipline was weak and ineffective," reads the report, "certainly a fault of the management. Rules were inefficient and the result of the higher officials. Rules were inadequately enforced, the blame for which must be charged to the officials. And, while all this was true, high speed was applied over a section of the road where this accident occurred, while there were in use antiquated signals which were condemned by the locomotive engine men as well as by the public service commission of Connecticut."

SLEUTHS SEEK CLEWS IN DOUBLE SLAYING

Think Jealous Farmers Murdered Father and Son.

Matawan, N. J., Sept. 25.—Constables and detectives today are searching for the murderers of Angele Cantaloupe and his fifteen-year-old stepson, Victor Lausuesula, who were slain and hacked with knives and hatchets close to a railroad bridge at Frenau, about three miles from their home. The double murder was not discovered until the team which Cantalope was driving arrived home without Cantaloupe or the boy.

Cantaloupe was a prosperous farmer, raising garden truck on what is known locally as the Kelly farm at Frenau. He was thirty-four years old. What the motive was for the double killing has not yet been made clear. Cantaloupe generally carried a considerable amount of money with him, but his pockets were empty when the body was found. Some of his relatives, according to the authorities, declare that the murderer was inspired by a spirit of ill feeling, which has been directed against the man because he has carried earlier vegetables into the market than some of his rivals have been able to do.

KILLED AFTER HIS LAST RUN

Engineer, Forty Years on D., L. and W., Would Have Retired Today.

Hoboken, N. J., Sept. 25.—Irwin De Raney, sixty years old, of 230 Park avenue, Hoboken, an engineer on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, put up his engine in the roundhouse at the Hoboken terminal at 8:30 o'clock last night for the last time, for he was to have gone on the retired list today with a pension from the railroad company for the rest of his life as a reward for forty years of service unmarred by an accident.

De Raney patted his engine goodby and then started to cross the railroad tracks, apparently intending to make a short visit to his brother John, engineer of the Lackawanna limited, which was to pull out at 9 o'clock for Buffalo. He had not gone very far, however, when an incoming train bore swiftly down upon him. Either the retiring veteran engineer did not hear it or he did not have time to get out of the way. He was struck by the engine, killed instantly and his body hurled to one side of the track.

Drive Over Cliff to Death.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 25.—Leroy R. Tillotson and Harry Whitten, newspaper stereotypers, were killed when they drove over a fifty foot cliff along the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad. They were riding in a buggy.

FOWLER'S GREAT RUN.

Politicians and statesman have proven no less than prizefighters that they can "come back" and recent events have furnished no better illustration of the truth of this than the extarordinarily surprising political resurrection, as it were, of former Congressman Charles N. Fowler in his own, Union county, at Tuesday's primaries. As an aspirant for the Republican gubernatorial nomination he managed his own campaign, without any aid or comfort from "the powers that be," or more correctly speaking the powers that "has-been." His appeal was made directly to the people. Arrayed against him was former Governor Edward Caspar Stokes, recognized from Sussex to Cape May, as a "live one" and moreover, to make his chances worse, another son of Union county, State Senator Carlton B. Pierce, a man of unusual attainments, was campaigning for the same honor.

It was perfectly well known that the Union county organization had thrown its support to Pierce. By the political prophets the Cranford man was "booked to win." The odds as scheduled were in his favor with Stokes for second place. They backed Pierce simuly to insure Fowler's defeat. But the old school politicians were badly fooled, for Fowler won handsomely. In making their calculations they had reckoned by a system used in a bygone day when the mere passing of the word down the line meant that the favorite would be in the winning. Times have changed and the old school politician, the stand-patter, has not realized yet that the people are thinking and acting for themselves. Fowler apparently was keenly alive to this change and conducted his campaign accordingly—he appealed to the people with the votes not to the bosses shorn of their power to issue the order and deliver the goods. His sound judgment is testified to by the returns. Fowler has "come back" in Union county and the rank and file of his party have summoned him back.

The people rule.

GREAT AVIATION MEET.

Never before has an international aviation meeting so well merited its description as the international meet which will be begun on Saturday on the famous aviation field at Bethany, near Rheims, France, where the notable meetings of 1909 and 1910 were held with remarkable success. Six nations will be represented among the contestants for the "Coup International d'Aviation," the great race, which will be the crowning event of this meeting. France and Great Britain have entered three machines each for the international contest, America two, and Italy, Germany and Belgium one each.

The meet will be held under the auspices of the Aero Club of France and will occupy three days. Saturday will be devoted to the elimination tests for the French machines which have been entered for the Coup International d'Aviation. The contestants will be required to fly over 200 kilometres, the actual distance of the international race. Sunday there will be various contests, some of which will be of an unusual character. Special prizes will be awarded to the victors in the various contests. The grand race for the international aviation prize will take place on Monday, the last day of the meet. Aviators and aviation fans from nearly every European country will be present to witness the preliminary trials and the contests and races of the second and third days.

As the defeated candidate for the Republican city judgeship nomination, Francis J. Blatz lost no time in extending to his successful adversary, William G. DeMeza, his hearty congratulations. In this he displayed the spirit of a true sportsman and a real man. Others can do for Blatz what he would not do for himself—they can congratulate him on the honorable way in which he conducted his fight and on the fine quality he showed in extending his hand to his opponent.

I have no objection to Judge De Meza in the Republican primaries—Roger Murray in a political advertisement the day before the primaries.

You will be interested in the Contributed Editorial in next Saturday's issue. Watch for it.

THE FORUM.

Editors, Daily Press:

Dear Sirs:—My attention has just been called to the fact that I omitted a paragraph from my letter in your issue of Saturday, the 20th.

May I beg further space in which to correct my error.

The paragraph should have concluded the letter, following the sentence saying that "Chief Kiely was quoted as 'giving the concensus of opinion of 600 chiefs,' not his own only."

The missing paragraph was as follows: "The chief did not, as the writer inaccurately states, say that 'he does not think that women's influence will be used to abolish white slavery.'"

I quoted him as saying, and this is undoubtedly the quotation to which the writer had reference, that "The women themselves can abolish the social evil, not by means of the ballot, but by spreading the broad mantle of Christian charity about their sisters who have fallen. The fact is, however, that the women, instead of trying to reclaim the fallen one, exclude her from their society. If the women would throw a protecting arm around the unfortunate girls, try to give them another chance in life, the social evil would soon be a part of the history of our unhappy past."

I would not push this correction, but it is only just to Chief Kiely, as the inaccurate statement which makes it compulsory on me to do so, places him in a very false light, the opinion he expressed being entirely different, and that of "600" men, not one alone.

Feeling sure you will appreciate my feelings, and thanking you in advance for helping me to "make good."

Yours very truly,
REINA A. LAWRENCE.

DR. McARTHUR TO SPEAK.

Rev. William Turner, who has been giving a series of Bible talks at the German Reformed church, North Plainfield, every Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, will be unable to resume his discourses tomorrow, because of arrangements he is making to go to Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, to establish a foundling home. His place will be ably filled, however, by Rev. William McArthur, of New York, who is pastor of the Gospel Tabernacle, in the metropolis. Rev. Mr. McArthur is a forceful speaker and his talk is sure to prove interesting to Bible students.

4TH DIST., 3RD WARD CORRECT.

An investigation shows that the election officers in the Fourth district of the Third ward were incorrectly mentioned among the district boards erroneously including in the total votes for DeMeza and Blatz in the Republican primaries the votes they received in the Progressive and Democratic primaries.

GRASS FIRE.

Burning grass in a yard at 420 West Second street caused a scare in that vicinity this afternoon and someone sent a call in to fire headquarters. The blaze was extinguished with chemicals, little damage resulting.

EMOTIONS OF ANGER.

Give Them a Little Play Rather Than Bottle Them Up Tightly.

There are a few universal habits in the human race which have strange primitive origins, and there are some which are universal because they have a physiological stimulus, and one of these latter is in the habit that a little child often has of stamping its feet when angry. Exactly the same thing occurs when a man, while he is angry, brings down his fist on the table. In both cases it is due to lack of nervous control.

The nervous system is a unit, and most of the emotions of anger come from a sudden thwarting of a calculated nervous plan. Thus if we are about to sit down on a chair and a mischievous urchin yanks the chair away just as we have let the muscles of the thighs relax the anger excited is out of all proportion to the actual bruises that have resulted. If a child wants a pot of jam and is denied he is immediately angry unless he has been taught to control himself. The desire for the jam, for example, has set in motion a nerve plan, and when this is suddenly stopped there is a flow of nervous energy which has to spend itself in some way. In the case of the child, he usually works this off by stamping his feet and crying. In the case of the man, he usually goes through exactly the same processes by thumping the table and swearing. In the case of a hysterical woman, she beats upon the floor with her heels and screams. It is all the same thing.

Strange as it may seem, moreover, the outflow of emotion is far better for an angry person than it is to bottle it up. Emotion is going to express itself in action somewhere, and if the muscles are kept still the brain cells will be exhausted instead. Emotional force has got to go somewhere. It can't just stop and disappear. Too great a suppression of the emotions leads to a gradual atrophy of them, and when the emotions begin to die out the person himself or herself is of comparatively little use to the world. It is for this reason that nothing should ever be done to "break" a child's temper, but only to guide it into right channels. You can teach a child not to lose control of his temper, but never, as you value the child's development, try to train him not to be angry.—New York American.

What the Patent Home Will Be.

The number of patents issued last year was greatly in excess of all other years. And yet nobody in all inventive America has patented a home. We must all live. The old home is now a back number. It is bound in time to be succeeded by the patent home. Hasten the day. The patent home will have all its beds made up automatically. It will cook its own meals, keep itself dusted, decorated and disinfected. It will heat the baby's milk at all hours of the night and will be servantless. All the pictures will be changed at regular intervals, and new furniture will automatically replace the old. Family prayers will be provided by phonograph, and births, weddings and funerals will be covered by pressing a button.—Life.

Transmitting Electricity.

When an electric current flows through a conductor it is not sent or pushed through, like a fluid in a pipe, but is rather handed on from particle to particle. In other words, it is a transfer of electrical energy which can be illustrated by setting up a row of rubber balls tangent to each other.

Now, if we strike these balls at one end the energy will be transferred from ball to ball and can be utilized at the other. Here we had no actual flow, and yet the energy was transferred from one end to the other.

The basic units which we use are the unit of the rate of flow, or ampere; the unit of electrical pressure, or volt, and the unit of resistance to flow, or the ohm.—Aera.

Too Soon to Answer.

The young man about town and the clever bachelor girl met on the street at 10 in the morning.

"Glad to see you out so early," cried the girl breezily. "Feeling well?"

"Pretty well," faltered the man.

"That's good. How did you like the lobster a la Newburg I made for you in the chafing dish last night?"

"I can't tell yet, dear lady. I'm just getting acquainted with it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

No Argument.

The extremely well dressed young man, with but few claims to financial success, was putting forth his best efforts to capture the girl of his choice.

"You say yourself, Marion," he pleaded, "that your father is anxious to get you off his hands."

"That's just it, Claude," she replied tremulously. "That's why I'm afraid he won't listen to you."—Lippincott's.

A Harsh Critic.

"That," said the futurist, pointing proudly to the canvas which he had just finished, "is my attempt to interpret the infinite."

"What did the infinite ever do to you?" asked the innocent bystander.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Didn't Like the Time Limit.

She—These reporters are so awfully careless! This paper says that I have been "for years one of the handsomest women in society." He—Well, my dear, what is the objection to that? She—Why, I never said anything about "for years."—Puck.

To achieve great success you must be courageous; a timid man is defeated at the outset.

BRYAN CORRECTED MARTINE STATEMENT

Says He is Not Educating Japs But Youths in Other Parts of Asia.

Washington, Sept. 25.—Secretary Bryan has indicated that he is weary of inquiries and discussion regarding his personal affairs, arising out of his round of the Chautauqua circuit this summer and the criticism that it brought forth. He issued another statement in which he expressed the opinion that certain newspapers felt more curiosity in his private affairs than does the general public.

The statement resulted from a speech in the Senate by Senator James E. Martine, of New Jersey, in defence of Mr. Bryan and his lectures. The Senator ventured the suggestion that as he understood Mr. Bryan was paying for the education of young men in Japan and elsewhere, this might account for the fixed charges which made the salary of $12,000 a year as Secretary of State inadequate for his needs. Here is Mr. Bryan's statement:

"We are not educating any boys in Japan. A Japanese student lived with us for about five years, but returned to Japan in 1904. Senator Martine's remarks probably refer to students whom we have assisted in other parts of Asia, but I do not consider it necessary to discuss the matter.

"I have discussed the sources of my income, but I am not yet convinced that the public requires me to discuss each contribution which I see fit to make to a worthy cause.

"I may add that I answer these questions with reluctance and with the feeling that the newspapers represented by those who ask the questions feel more curiosity than the general public does in regard to my private affairs."

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

At a meeting of the Sigma Gamma Kappa yesterday afternoon, final arrangements were made for the reception to be given to the freshmen girls next Friday evening at the Y. W. C. A. In the absence of the president, Edith Dalley, vice president, took charge of the meeting.

A new feature will be introduced into the morning exercises of the High School this year by Principal Earley. He is getting some of the prominent men and women of the city and borough to give talks to the pupils on various subjects of interest. Mr. Earley's idea is that many pupils, even in their senior year, have no idea of what they intend to do or be after leaving school and he thinks that talks by experienced people might be beneficial to some students. The first of the series will be given on Friday morning by some well known woman in the city.

Commercial geography, the subject that was brought from the eighth grade and made a freshman subject, has been dropped for the present until some beter arrangements can be made. The class was so large that it made thorough teaching impossible. It is possible that another teacher may be secured to relieve the conjection. Miss Love taught the subject.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

With a vim and vigor that characterizes all plays that come from George M. Cohan's pen, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," which Mr. Cohan has founded on Earl Derr Bigger's story of the same name, reached the Astor theatre last Monday night and scored a triumph that makes the prediction of a long run for the piece at that playhouse a certainty. In "Seven Keys to Baldpate" Cohan has mixed melodrama and farce with a deftness that is as delightful as it is thrilling, with the result that his audiences are held at concert pitch, so real is the tension sustained during the rapid action of this mystery farce. An admirable cast, headed by Wallace Eddinger, succeed in giving forceful expression to the story, into which Mr Cohan has mixed so much of his own virility, that it whizzes along at top speed from prologue to epilogue.

Gaiety theatre patrons, and they are myriad, declare that Edgar Selwyn's new play, "Nearly Married," is one of the smartest farces that has been offered for their entertainment in a long time. The piece is particularly recommended because of its cleanliness, an attribute that is frequently found lacking in theatrical productions of the present time, and all the more welcome for that reason. It is a fact that it is a cork-screw comedy that keeps its audiences in almost constant state of laughter. Bruce McRae, as the [illegible] who wants to marry his wife over again, and Miss Jane [illegible] willing to hie her to Hymen's altar once more, but who is coerced by a meddlesome brother, are the central figures in the fine company of farcers that lend their support to this joyous evening's entertainment.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 11.

WHAT are the CLASSIFIED columns of a newspaper? Answer: Those columns where advertisements which come under some particular classification, and only those which come under some particular classification, are published.

You, Mr., Mrs., Miss or Master Reader, you can be an advertiser. Suppose you want a Situation, or suppose you want Help. Turn to the CLASSIFIED pages. There you will find "Situations Wanted" and "Help Wanted' 'heads over advertisements which properly belong under those classifications. The cost of such advertising is moderate. The returns from such advertising, in the CLASSIFIED columns of this newspaper, are practically certain. DID YOU EVER STOP TO TIHNK WHAT A GREAT PROPORTION OF A NEWSPAPER'S READERS READ ITS CLASSIFIED COLUMNS?

Suppose you don't want a Situation or don't want Help. Maybe you are looking for a "Business Chance"—maybe you have an old bookcase that you would like to sell or exchange for something else—perhaps you are looking for professional coaching in some branch of learning—maybe you want to buy or sell a second-hand sewing machine, or a piano, or a typewriter, or an automobile.

No matter what you have or what you want, you can sell or you can acquire by being an advertiser—a CLASSIFIED advertiser. The CLASSIFIED columns are the natural market-place for human wants.

Try them. Next time you have a Want, advertise it in the CLASSIFIED columns. You'll be surprised and delighted with results. You'll be one of the enlightened thousands who have learned the tremendous "pulling-power" of the little, but mighty, WANT AD.

Hands and Hard Work.

Obviously, hands were made to do hard work. As obviously, women like to have their hands look as well as possible—that is to say, as if they did little work. Ammonia, borax, scouring soap, scalding water, ice, acids, potato skins and various other things which a houseworker comes in contact with every day do little to bring the desired look to the hands. All these things must be outwitted. Some quick and fairly easy method of keeping the hands in shape in spite of the hard work they do must be devised. No hands that do housework can remain always pink and soft, with rosy, long nails and fine, satiny skin. But they can be kept smooth, shapely and clean without much trouble.

Habit and Hurts.

There are some women that cut and burn and bruise their fingers day after day in a really clumsy fashion. Cultivate the habit of avoiding cuts and burns and bruises. This advice sounds like difficult advice to follow, but it is not. Always have holders ready by the stove for handling hot cooking utensils. Use a dish mop and a soap shaker and a wire dish drainer so that you need not put your hands needlessly in hot water. Think before you use a knife and keep your mind on the work you are doing. Don't slam doors in which your unwary fingers might be bruised. Get in the habit of shutting them carefully. Don't lift things that are so heavy you may drop them. Wait until you can have help to do it. Really the habit of not hurting your fingers is a good one to cultivate.

Remedies.

When you have hard cleaning to do, put the hands in shape to do it beforehand. Trim the nails close, and file them easily. See that all cuts or burns are healed, if possible, or else covered with plaster. Rub the hands with vaseline the night before, and put them in loose cotton gloves for the night.

At the end of the day bathe the hands with warm water and castile soap. Brush the nails with a brush, but don't try to dig out the dirt that the day's work has imbedded in the skin. Rinse the hands in clean water in which there are a few drops of benzoin and dry them thoroughly and carefully. At night cover them with vaseline or cold cream, and put them to bed in a loose pair of cotton gloves again. Use pummice stone and nail bleach the next day to whiten them, and massage the knuckles with cold cream.

A good ointment to use on the hands in the winter, to keep them soft and to prevent chapping, is this: Heat an ounce of cocoa butter and the same amount of oil of sweet almonds in a porcelain double boiler. Mix them thoroughly and then add a drachm of zinc oxide and the same amount of borax. Cool, stirring constantly.

Always dry the hands thoroughly after they have been in water, and always rinse them thoroughly in warm water and castile soap after they have been in dish water or other water which becomes soiled.

THE POOR BOY FROM THE COUNTRY.

(From the Baltimore Sun.)

Take him in and let him find
Comfort for his troubled mind
In your friendly word of cheer—
Maybe there's a young career
Blooming in him that will flower
Into some unwonted power
Of the heart and soul. Who knows
From what bramble springs the rose?
Such a life, so fresh and green—
Help to save and keep it clean!

Is he awkward, lanky, queer?
That's the kind to lend your cheer:
Help him over those first days
When amid the city's maze
And the bustle of the den
Where he toils 'mong unknown men
He's so lonesome, heartsick, sad—
Maybe he's a mother's lad
Waiting for him way back there
To fulfill her hourly prayer!

Why not "The Boy from Anywhere?"

CONGRESS OF MOTHERS' MEETING.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the New Jersey Congress of Mothers will be held in New Brunswick on Friday and Saturday, November 14 and 15, when the State organization will be the guest of the eight Parent-Teacher Associations in New Brunswick and Highland Park. The central topic of the two days' conference will be "Training for Citizenship," and several noted speakers have accepted places on the program. The subject will be studied from the point of view of the home, the kindergarten, self-government, character-building, play and industrial and vocational education. The complete program will be published later.

ANOTHER WAY TO REACH CIGARETTE HABIT.

More than 400 high school boys in Boston have voted to discontinue smoking. This is a movement that should spread. State Commissioner of Education of New Jersey is preparing a bulletin for circulation in public schools, setting forth the most efficacious methods of conserving the health of the pupils. Some of the subjects to be treated are the evils of the cigarette habit, the necessity of temperance in eating and drinking, personal cleanliness, the necessity of exercise and fresh air.

THE NEW DEPARTMENT.

The Home Education Section, U. S. Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C., begins active work this month. The bureau has ceased to limit its work to school questions and teachers. It recognizes the work that only the home can do, and offers its service to home-makers and parents. It is estimated that during the year four million homes should be reached and inspired with the knowledge of the greater possibilities of childhood through parental understanding of child-nurture.

FINANCE.

The Georgia Congress of Mothers has adopted the "calendar" plan for financing its work during the year. The chairman represents the year and volunteers a contribution of $3.65. She appoints twelve women who in turn contribute $3.65 and appoint four women to represent the weeks of the month. Seven women represent the days under the leadership of each week, all donating the $3.65 or a penny a day. In this way a paid organizer is kept in the field.

MODELS AT PROCTOR'S.

The last half of the "jubilee week" bill at Proctor's theatre contains bigger surprises than the first part. John B. Hymer presents Ned "Clothes" Norton and the famous "Macy Models," in a musical comedy of The Great White Way, with special scenery, a company of ten show girls. There are four scenes. The costumes are by Worth, of Paris, and the whole act is high-class. Copeland and Payton, a duo of clever and funny comedians; "Suppressing the Press," a ripping good comedy sketch of newspaper life; Weston and Field, classy singing comedians; Saunders and Cameron, the "Two Funny Juggle Men," together with the latest photo-plays make a fine big bill.

—Every day is "Election Day" with the shoppers of this city. Every day some store receives a vote of confidence, presaging continued support, from the housewives. The store whose ads present the widest variety of opportunity news is "elected," always. For such a store brings ACTUAL RELIEF to the people from the oppression of high prices—not, as is often true in politics, mere

Some Cookery Suggestions

AUTUMN FRUIT DESSERTS.

THE late fruits are available for many tempting desserts. With cooler weather fruit, pastries and puddings are more acceptable, and quite a variety of these may be made with fruit.

Apple Meringue.—Stew four apples, add a tablespoonful of cornstarch, the yolks of two well beaten eggs, a cup of milk, a piece of butter as large as an egg, a little lemon rind, grated, and half a cupful of white sugar. Stir all well together. Line a pudding dish with puff paste and pour in the mixture. Beat the whites of the two eggs and add two spoonfuls of sugar. After it has baked add the meringue and return to the oven to brown.

Add Whipped Cream.

Pear Shortcake. — Make a biscuit dough and roll it until half an inch thick. Bake in buttered tins in a quick oven for twenty minutes. Cut up some stewed pears and sweeten them. Spread the hot shortcake with the fruit, making alternate layers of the cake and fruit. Top with whipped cream.

Fruit and Cake Pudding.—Take a stale sponge cake, cut it in slices and lay in the bottom of a baking dish. Then fill to the top of the dish with peaches or berries. Put cake on top in slices and make a meringue of two whites of eggs, beaten light, and then add two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Spread over the top and put into the oven for a few minutes to harden. Serve with cream and eat cold.

Flavored With Orange.

Rice and Rhubarb Pudding.—Put a layer of boiled rice sweetened to taste in a well buttered pudding dish, cover with a layer of chopped rhubarb and sprinkle thickly with sugar and small pieces of butter. Add another layer of rice, more rhubarb, sugar and butter and continue till the dish is full, having the last layer of rice. Sprinkle over with the juice of lemon and one orange and stew with sugar and small pieces of butter. Bake in a moderate oven.

Apple Pyramid.—Peel some small apples and place them in a saucepan, just covering them with water and adding the grated rind of an orange or a lemon, a very little cinnamon and sugar to taste. Cook gently till the apples are tender, but they must not break. Then lift them out carefully one at a time and arrange them on a dish en pyramide and keep them hot. Meanwhile reduce the liquor in which they were cooked to a thick sirup. Pour this over the apples and dust them well with sifted sugar, sprinkle freely with rum and set on fire just before sending to the table.

Anna Thompson.

She Painted Its Coat Green.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Painting the Kitten Like The House.

"THERE," remarked daddy as Evelyn frowned over the dress in which she was putting dolly to bed; "you mustn't be too particular."

"Oh, ho!" laughed Jack. "Why, she is cross when she can't find the right hair ribbon to match her dress when she goes to school."

"Well, if Evelyn doesn't carry being particular any farther than that," daddy smiled, "we shall not mind. And that reminds me of a funny story I heard about little Mimi.

"When she was quite a small girl her daddy, who had a week's vacation, made up his mind that he would put a coat of green paint on the house.

"He made the paint a pretty shade of green, mixing it in a big can which he left in the yard where it would be handy for him to reach.

"Mimi watched him with interest as he set the ladder against the side of the house, then climbed up to the top and began to put on the paint with his brush.

"'Is you goin' paint every place?' she asked as she watched him lay on patch after patch of paint and until the whole side of the house was covered and he had to move the ladder around to the other side.

"'Yes; I'm going to paint everything,' he answered. 'It wouldn't look nice if things were not all one color.'

"It was some time later when her daddy, glancing down from the top of his ladder, saw Mimi had gone.

"'She has gone into the house, tired out and ready for a nap, I suppose,' he said to himself. His paint pail, however, was empty, and he came down the ladder to fill it at the large can.

"As he turned the corner of the house, what do you think he saw? Well, there was Mimi busy as a bee. She had the black kitten held firmly while very gently she painted its coat green. She had one side of the poor little animal almost all painted.

"'Hello!' called her daddy in a horrified voice. 'You mustn't do that!' As she turned a smiling face the kitten struggled out of her hand and ran off to the cellar, where it hid for hours in the darkest corner.

"'Mimi help paint. Make kitten green like house. Paint flowers nice green,' and she pointed to some of her mother's choicest flowers, which she had also painted green. Mimi thought with a green house everything ought to match, and I am not sure, if she had not been caught, where she would have stopped work. Perhaps not until she had painted herself green.

"Though her daddy did his best to get the green paint out of the kitten's fur, it never all came off until it wore away, and only a timely cutting of the painted flowers probably saved the plants' lives."

FASHION FINDS INSPIRATION IN FAR-AWAY LANDS

Many new fabrics for dresses and suits suggest the Far East rather than the Futurist or Impressionist ideas. The style of the gown itself with the omnipresent sash broadly folded and knotted low over the hip strengthens this effect of Orientalism very pleasantly.

Printed or brocaded silks in rather bold Parisian or Turkish designs when draped loosely in blouse and skirt serve to broaden shoulders, waist and hips to meet the present requirements. No. 7976 offers a picturesque illustration of these broad lines. The plain sash against the figure of the material is brought out in strong relief and with its soft folds serves to tone down a design that might otherwise be too striking. Five and one-half yards of 36 inch printed silk or brocaded charmeuse is required to copy this dress in size 36.

No. 7960 shows one of those unconventional little coatee blouses in printed silk with quaint Futurist roses scattered over the surface. These are usually worn with a plain skirt in a color that harmonizes effectively with the blouse. The drop shoulder and the V neck heighten the youthful effect of the blouse, and quite a new design is brought out in the peplum. A two-piece skirt with slightly raised waistline and a clever arrangement of tucks on the side to give a bit of drapery completes an attractive afternoon costume.

For the blouse in size 36 2¾ yards of 36 inch material will be needed, and for the skirt (No. 7959) 2¾ yards of 36 inch material. Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

A Dainty Design For Embroidering a Cape For An Infant's Coat.

So dainty and attractive are infant's clothes that one always delights to work on them, and especially to add pretty little touches of hand embroidery to complete their attractiveness. It is surprising to see how a bit of hand embroidery will lend a real charm and distinction to another-wise ordinary garment.

This pretty little design, for embroidering a cape for an infant's coat, should be developed in heavily padded solid work and eyelets, in white filo solk. The design is arranged so that some of the sprays may be omitted, if you prefer a less elaborate design. These should be cut away from the transfer pattern before stamping it on the material, although cold water and naptha soap will remove the transfer medium from washable material.

The cape may be made of cashmere, broadcloth or corded silk to match the coat with which it is to be worn. It may be lined with soft silk and the edges of both scalloped together. This cape may be used on a long or short coat and comes in one size only, but the neck size may be larger, to fit an older child, by cutting inside the neck-outline. A small turnover collar is included in the pattern which may be used or not as one prefers, although it makes a pretty finish for the coat. The cutting patterns for both collars are included in the transfer pattern.

Cape pattern number 14635 is illustrated on coat pattern number 6577. This transfer pattern will be supplied to readers for fifteen cents.

Brocaded Suits Never Better Liked Than Now.

IN HUNTER'S GREEN BROCADE.

At the end of the season one's tailored suit is apt to look a bit the worse for wear, and the woman who is up to the minute in smartness is buying a new costume for the early autumn days.

She could not make a more modish selection than to purchase a suit like the one pictured of hunter's green brocaded cloth.

The deep cuffs and collar are fashionable features of this desirable costume.

Too Much Busy-ness.

Falstaff's saying, "It were better to be eaten to death with rust than scoured to nothing with perpetual motion," comes to mind when one notes the many busy-nesses of the modern woman.

"Rushed to death!" she cries. "So much to do, so little time," and away she patters to attend a committee meeting or address a convention or "see somebody" about something. And it never occurs to her that this old world would wag along just the same if she did none of these things—in fact, she would be highly indignant were such an insinuation made.

Well, as a matter of fact, women do accomplish many good works. But they haven't as yet acquired the art of doing things without bustle and fuss as men do. They spend too much energy in getting ready to do things; they flutter too much. The empty wagon makes a lot of noise; the loaded wagon goes quietly.

The woman of real executive ability goes about her duties quietly; she has mentally organized her work. Whether she moves about in her own house or engages in outside endeavors, she is calm and composed—and effective. She has, moreover, a sense of proportion which enables her to recognize how much of her energy and time can profitably be given to any one thing.

You will find that the really efficient woman is not busy with her busy-nesses all the time. She knows the value of leisure and that hurry and haste never produce the best results.

And quite often she is called upon to repair the results of overhaste or ill judged action on the part of those who act first and think afterward.

Kitchen Kinks.

To clean strainers and sieves rub with coarse salt and then pour boiling water through them.

When a dish is to be set directly on ice place a rubber fruit jar ring under it to prevent it from slipping off.

To prevent a ladder from slipping paste pieces of old rubber over each support. This will protect the floors and avert many a fall.

Homemade sanitary duster: Dip a piece of soft black cotton cloth in thin melted paraffin and let dry. This will hold the dust so it will not scatter again.

For absorbing odors when cooking cabbage, ham, onions or anything which has a strong odor put a small pan of vinegar on the stove and there will be no scent of cooking.

To remove scorch spots wet the scorched portion with clear water and sprinkle with borax. It will remove the scorch and leave no stain and may be used on the most delicate fabrics.

Epigrams About Women.

Women's hearts are made of stout leather; there's a plagny sight of wear in them.—T. C. Haliburton.

A secret passion defends the heart of a woman better than her moral sense.—Relief de la Bretonne.

Women in this degenerate age are rare to whom aught else but sordid gain is dear.—Ludovico Ariosto.

A woman who loves, however erring, can never be entirely selfish, for love has a humanizing influence, and a true passion renders any self sacrifice easy. —A. P. Peabody.

BASEBALL NOTES

Max Carey, of the Pirates, is both the leading run-getter and base-stealer in the National League.

Each of the eight clubs in the Nebraska State League played the full number of scheduled games this season.

Hess, of the Braves, and Yingling, of the Superbas, are the only pitchers in major league company batting for .300 or better.

For the second time in succession Joe Killian has piloted his Oshkosh team to championship honors in the Wisconsin-Illinois League.

In the thirty-seven innings that Walter Johnson has pitched against the New York Highlanders this season, the Highlanders have made only one run.

Speaking of presenting an automobile to the most valuable player to his team, in the National League, why not take a slant at the work of one Jacob Daubert, of Brooklyn?

Mike Balenti, the Indian shortstop of the St. Louis Browns, and former Carlisle player, was once the property of the Athletics, but was never tried out by Connie Mack.

Without a batsman run-getter or a base-stealer anywhere near the honor list, the White Sox have put up a grand battle for a place in the first division of the American League pennant race.

Tris Speaker has the best all-round record of any player in either the American or National League. The Red Sox star stands third in batting, third in base-stealing and seventh among the run-getters.

Tuesday, September 30, has been named as "Tyler Day" at the Boston National League park. A delegation of fans from Deery, N. H., Tyler's home town, will be on hand to give the Braves' star southpaw a rousing welcome.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor.

Query—How long has the Geran law been in force? What is its object and what is its chief advantage? N. J. C.

Answer—The Geran Law has been in force since April 19, 1911. Its object is to take the power of nominating candidates out of the hands of the party bosses and transfer it to the rank and file of party voters. That would be its chief advantage, too, if the machine workers had not found a way to make the law ineffective in some cases. Preferential voting must be provided if the spirit of the law is to be effective.

Sporting Editor:

Query—I want to erect an amateur wireless station in Plainfield, do I have to get a permit? T. P. K.

Answer—No permit is necessary, but be careful your station does not assume such proportions as to interfere with government communications.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Can you tell me the right way to spell the proper name of a girl "Lyda" or "Lydia," or "Lida" or "Lyde"? L. R. W.

Answer—Lydia is correct. Now go and call her by her first name.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Can any boy, not attending school in Plainfield, enter the interscholastic tourney, to be held at the Plainfield Country Club next Saturday J. J.

Answer—You will have to be affiliated with one of the local or borough schools.

Sporting Editor:

Query—How much is an English shilling worth? P. O.

Answer—About twenty-four cents in American money.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Will bicycles ordinarily reduce your strength or make you strong? B. D.

Answer—If you go about it in the proper way, Belle, bicycle riding will probably aid your development, although we have never noted any marked results of pedal pushing.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is there any organization or individual in Plainfield who will assist a group of ambitious boys to organize a club? R. O. L.

Answer—It depends upon what kind of a club it is. However, Boys' Secretary C. William Bingeman, or any of the ather Y. M. C. A. officials would probably be glad to help you along in the work of organization.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is there any State in the Union where an alien is permitted to vote? B. G.

Answer—Kansas, Indiana, Missouri and other Western States permit an alien who has declared his intention of becoming a citizen to vote at State elections.

FOOTBALL NOTES

The Holy Cross players are working at the tackling dummy this fall for the first time in five years.

E. F. Ver Wiebe, Harvard's great 1908 halfback, is on the official list for games in the West. He is in Minneapolis.

Coach Robinson, of Brown, is up against it with only four veterans, Captain Henry, Mitchell, Bean and Andrews, on his football squad.

Being handicapped by the lack of heavy men, the Dartmouth squad plans to develop speed to be used in open plays and the forward pass.

Pennsylvania has lost one of its most promising candidates for quarterback, Walter Craig, who is kept out of the game by an old head injury.

The Vanderbilt University eleven will play no Eastern eleven this year, Michigan being its most important opponent except the University of the South.

The Cornellians are having two long practice sessions daily. Al Sharpe is coaching again and has one of the biggest squads ever organized at Ithaca.

MORRISTOWN HORSE SHOW.

Morristown, Sept.25—The grounds of the Morristown Field Club were visited today by thousands of horse-lovers and society folk from New York and other cities within a radius of a hundred miles on the occasion of the opening day of the sixteenth annual horse show of the Morristown Field Club. The show will continue until Saturday, when the prizes awarded by the judges will be formally presented. The number of entries is unusually great this year and a number of special classes have been arranged, with valuable prizes donated by wealthy horse-lovers. The judges include Robert A. Fairbairn, of Westfield, for roadsters and harness horses; Lewis E. Waring, of Plainfield, for saddle horses, and Alfred H. Macky, of New York, for hunters and jumpers.

TOMKINSON SPRINGS ON N. P. H. S. COURTS

Young Racquet Wielder Will Now Meet Dunning in the Finals for Title.

Tennis enthusiasts of the North Plainfield High School were given a big surprise yesterday afternoon, when Hoyt Tomkinson, '15' defeated Duclos VanMater, '15, two straight sets in the semi-final round in the race for the individual championship. The scores were 6-4, 6-1.

VanMater was easily the favorite, he being runner-up in last year's tournament, and after he dropped the first set 4 games to 6, many spectators thought that he would win the next two and was trying to tire his opponent. But he fell to pieces in the second set and Tomkinson had things all his own way until the end of the match. Tomkinson now stands in the finals and will meet Frank Dunning, '14, tomorrow afternoon, in the final match for the school championship and the cup. In this match he will receive a fifteen point per game handicap. No place has yet been set for the match.

MISS SPENCER BOOKING GAMES.

Miss Lillian Spencer, manager of the North Plainfield High School girls' basketball team, has arranged the first contest of the 1913 season which will be played at Flemington with the Reading Academy Girls' five. The N. P. H. S. team is practising out of doors and will lineup in the open air against the Flemington five, which plays all of its contests on the turf. The opening court battle is scheduled for October 15.

WILL PLAY IN OPEN AIR.

Captain Ashley Burner, of the North Plainfield High School basketball team, is awaiting the installation of the new baskets on the school's open-air court and as soon as they are placed in position he will issue the initial call for candidates. The squad will be given a three weeks' training in the open before going indoors.

CIRCUIT SWINGS BY NATIONAL LEAGUERS

Giants Opponents Have Outbatted the Home Swatters at the Polo Grounds.

Baseball is full of curiosities, one of the oddities of the 1913 campaign being that on the Polo Grounds this year the opponents of the Giants have made more home runs than were manufactured by the McGrawites. The players that invaded Gotham rid ther systems of twenty-two loop-the-loop smashes, while the Manhattan representatives punched out nineteen round trip clouts. The homers made by the Giants' adversaries generally turned the tide of battle, while the fourbaggers poled by the Giants had seldom much effect on the results of contests, generally being made after the verdict had been decided one way or the other.

It would be well for the Athletic pitchers, during the coming World's Series, to keep a watchful eye on Arthur Shafer, as the Californian, a player Mack was after before he was gathered into the McGraw fold, has been the Giants' most active manufacturer of home runs on their home lot this season. Shafer secured five homers, all off right handers. Larry Doyle, who won the Chalmers Car offered to the National League's most valuable player last season, has made three homers at the Polo Grounds this season, one of these, procured off Otto Hess of the Braves, came with the bases full. "Chief" Meyers has made three homers in New York this season and so has Charley Herzog, who, by the way, now has a better record as a pinch hitter than Harry McCormick. Fred Snodgrass has made two, Fred Merkle one, Arthur Fletcher one and George Burns one.

Of the homers made by the Giants' opponents at the Polo Grounds this season, the Pirates had six, the Braves four, the Superbas and Cardinals three, and the Reds, Phillies and Cubs two. Tesreau, Fromme and Marquard each yielded five fourbaggers, Mathewson was located for four and Crandall, Demaree and Wiltse were each found for one. Max Carey of the Pirates was the only visiting player to make two homers in the same game (he did this at the expense of Fromme on August 19) and Ham Hyatt of the same combination, was the only athlete to hit for the circuit when acting as a pinch hitter. Hyatt accomplished this feat on May 16, when facing Christy Mathewson.

The list of the homers made at the Polo Grounds by National League players this season follows:

VETOES INTERLEAGUE GAMES.

New York, Sept. 25.—John J. McGraw has vetoed the plan recently suggested for a series next spring between the Giants and Chance's New Yorks. A fall series a year from now is a possibility, however, if another world's series doesn't intrude itself upon the city. "I never have been in favor of a spring series with any team," said McGraw, "and I see no reason why I should change that policy now. It isn't because we don't want to play the Americans, for we will meet them in a fall series next year if we don't happen to win another pennant. I don't beleve that any major league team is fit for a hard series in April before the championship season begins."

PLAYERS BACK BROKEN.

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 25.—By proving the better and faster eleven Holy Cross yesterday, in an interesting football battle, defeated the Norwich University team in the new local stadium, 28 to 0, the visiting players failing in every attempt made to score. Both teams started in the first period by playing excellent football and the quarter ended with neither scoring, but only after an interruption of a few minutes while Belyea, one of the backfields of the Norwich team, was removed from the field to a local hospital, suffering with a broken back, received while trying to recover a punt to the off field.

STAR HALFBACK HURT.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 25.—Henry Crawford, star halfback of the University of Pennsylvania eleven, was so badly injured in yesterday's practise that he may not be able to play again this season. His loss will be a severe blow to Pennsylvania.

BIG RACES DOUBTFUL.

New York, Sept. 25.—President Harvey Granger, of the Savannah Automobile Club, announced here yesterday afternoon that the grand prize and Vanderbilt Cup races scheduled for the Savannah (Ga.) course, November 24 and 27, had not been abandoned. He stated that the road races would be held, providing a minimum entry of ten cars was secured for each race. Present indications point to a field of from 12 to 15 cars for each auto classic, according to Mr. Granger. The events will be called off if the minimum entry is not received by October 5. No attempt will be made to induce entries by waiving or reducing entrance fees.

MAKES WORLD'S RECORD.

Louisville, Sept. 25.—Iron Mask, Disguise-Royal Rose, had to break the world's record for six furlongs on a circular track to defeat Leochares in the first race of the eleven-day meeting which opened Tuesday at Douglas Park. The new record is 1:10 4-5. Leochares led until within twenty feet of the finish and Iron Mask, having passed Helen Barbee in the stretch, won by a neck. Iron Mask is five years old.

AMERICANS WIN TITLE.

London, Sept. 25.—G. W. Gaidzik, of Chicago, won the English diving championship at Holborn Baths last night. The judges decided the contest on three dives from a low board, five feet four inches, and from a high board, seventeen feet. The general form displayed by the competitors was excellent and the contest close. Hj. Johansson, of Sweden, took second place, with H. E. Pott, of London, who has held the championship for the last four years, third.

DAM OF UHLAN DEAD.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 25.—Blondella, dam of the world's champion trotter, Uhlan, died at the Castleton stock farm yesterday. Blondella was the property of David M. Look, a millionaire horsebreeder, of New York, and was one of the most famous brood mares in the country.

BAN ON BASEBALL WRITERS.

Cincinnati, Sept. 25—Owing to frequent complaints received by the National Baseball Commission and the Baseball Writers' Association concerning articles alleged to be written by players, the commission handed down a ruling yesterday, in which it orders that no players, eligible to compete in the world's series or any city series, shall write or pretend to write an account of such series for any newspapers, nor shall any player allow the use of his name over an article purporting to be written by him. Violation of this order will result in the infliction of such penalty as the commission may determine.

INTEREST IS KEEN IN TENNIS TOURNEY

Ladies' Doubles Championship Has Produced Some Good Matches at the P. C. C.

The ladies' tennis doubles tournament now in progress at the Plainfield Country Club is evoking an unusual amount of interest and some close and exciting matches have been played off during the past week. During the week Mrs. Morris Dumont and Miss Edna Wildey defeated Miss Marion Brown and Miss Catherine Titus, 6—1, 6—1; Miss Elsie Burke and Miss Dorthy Burke defeated Miss Estelle Crane and Miss Edna Brown, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3; Miss Leila Hedges and Miss Allison Williams defeated Miss Esther Phillips and Miss Gertrude Butler, 6—4, 7—5.

This afternoon Mrs. F. S. Osbourne and Miss Eleanore DeGraff will play Miss Anna Yerkes and Miss Mary Rushmore. The winners of the above match will meet Mrs. Morris Dumont and Miss Edna Wildey in the first half of the finals, and Miss Elsie Burke and Miss Dorothy Burke will meet Miss Leila Hedges and Miss Allison Williams in the other half. The finals will be played Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

CLASS DOUBLES MONDAY.

Owing to the delay in the deciding of the North Plainfield High School tennis singles tournament, the class doubles tourney has been postponed until Monday of next week. The Seniors, who won the title last year, will be called upon to defend their title. The class teams are made up as follows: Seniors, Franklin Lowe and Frank Dunning; Juniors, Duclos Van Mater and Hoyt Tomkinson; Sophomores, Warren Townley and Sherman Chandler; Freshmen, Roy Force and Grant Boose.

TENNIS ENTRANTS.

The following North Plainfield High School racquet wielders have entered the interscholastic tennis tournament to be started on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club next Saturday morning: Duclos VanMater, Warren Townley, Martin McDonough, Elmer French, Lester Chandler, Roy Force, Franklin Lowe, Hoyt Tomkinson and Frank Dunning.

LOCAL QUARTET IN BIG SENIOR MATCH

Robert C. Scott, of This City, Wins Eighth Place Among a Large Field.

Alexander Milne, aged eighty-one years, and, with one exception, the oldest man in the enormous field of 260 veterans, carried off first net prize yesterday in the ninth annual seniors' golf tournament at the Apawamis Club, at Rye, N. Y. His score was 93, 22-71. Milne, as far back as 1847, captured the town golf medal at Montrose, Scotland. Then, between 1851 and 1895, he had a slight respite from the game of forty-four years. Milne seems as well preserved as he was half a dozen years ago, and, excepting two rather loosely played holes, had a score that no one need be ashamed of.

The entry list this year was half a dozen names greater than last. All but five started, making the field almost double that of 1912, because the opening day a year ago brought a sharp storm that caused many to withdraw. It was pitch dark last night when all finished. Several had such a time locating their balls in the twilight that they did not return cards.

Every section of the country except the Pacific slope and extreme Southwest, was represented, while the weather left little to be desired. During the year ex-Judge Horace Russell, Garden City, has died, his being the only prominent name that can be recalled for the necrology among former fields. There are half a dozen scores omitted from the list because handicaps were not forthcoming yesterday. They will be made up on the last eighteen holes of medal play today. A score of candidates withdrew.

Four senior golfers from this city were competitors in the monster tourney and Robert C. Scott, a local enthusiast, landed in eighth place with a score of 98, 18-80. The other three Plainfielders and their scores follow: W. T. Kaufman, 103, 14-89; C. A. Reed, 94, 18-76; D. H. Rowland, 106, 18-88.

NOT MUCH ELECTRICITY ON BASEBALL DIAMOND

A baseball game for the championship of Public Service Corporation was played on Hilton Oval, yesterday, between picked teams representing the Railway and the Electric Companies. With the championship went a pennant offered by Farley Osgood, assistant superintendent of the Electric Company. It was won by the railway team by a score of 9 to 8, after an interesting battle of ten innings.

For the railway men, Scott and Decker, of the champion Hoboken team, were the battery, and Kraft and Torpey, of Somerville, were in the points for the Electric nine.

Score by innings:

Railway	0	2	4	0	0	0	1	1	0	1—	9
Electric	0	1	1	0	2	0	3	1	0	0—	8

TRENTON FAIR OPENS ON MONDAY MORNING

Trenton, Sept. 25.—Trenton will take on a gala appearance next week in honor of the Trenton Fair in view of the fact that Mayor Frederick W. Donnelly has just issued a request that all merchants and private citizen decorate. The Trenton city officials all recognize that the Trenton Fair has developed into a great State institution and that it is winning fame and glory to Trenton and to the entire State.

The 1913 Fair that opens next Monday will be a record breaker unless all present signs fail. The entry list in the majority of the departments is fully double what it has been in any former year. It will be an education to spend a few hours in the agricultural and horticultural departments. The exhibits will be really wonderful, particularly the fruits and flowers. There will also be an unusually fine horse show, the feature of which will be the exhibiting of Clydesdales and Percherons.

More than 200 horses are entered in the trotting and pacing races to be held the first four days of the fair and about fifty thoroughbreds in the running races scheduled for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Friday will furnish a world of excitement with its big card of automobile races.

The open-air vaudeville this year will offer the greatest sensations of two continents that will make up three full hours of thrills.

An innovation ths year will be the night productions of "The Last Days of Pompeii" by the Pain's Fireworks Company. This wonderful spectacle will be presented Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights and all of the midway shows will be kept open at the same time.

The "Better Babies" contest will be another interesting feature. There are about 300 entries including babies from all parts of New Jersey and Pennsylvania. The babies will be judged like live stock and prizes will be awarded for mental and physical perfection and not for mere beauty.

STOKES' STATEMENT ON HIS NOMINATION

Trenton, Sept. 25.—Former Gov. Stokes is being warmly congratulated today on his splendid run. He authorized the following statement:

"The meagre returns at my command make it impossible to give an intelligent judgment upon the result. In the Republican party no bitterness has marked the contest and extraneous influences were used to interfere with the spirit of the direct primary and the untrammelled exercise of creed exercised of choice by the people themselves.

"The apparently small vote of the third party Progressives is probably due to two causes:

"The one the disappointment of those who joined the new organization in the sincere belief that it would be a party of unselfish public service, free from factional strife or personal ambition for control, and who found themselves disillusionized by bitter and disrupting contests between the two claimants to the throne.

"The other the return to the Republican fold of a very large proportion of those—even larger than in Maine—who last fall voted for Roosevelt as a protest against Republican management, without any intention of permanently leaving the party and who believe that under a new and reorganized Republicanism responsive to the public needs, the problems of the day can be more quickly and efficiently solved than by a third party that has no hope of success. Their confidence imposes upon the Republican party responsibility and duty which it cannot avoid and which will appeal to its best impulses. It must show itself ready to repudiate every selfish interest and give the State the best possible service for the good of all the people."

DUKE OF FIFE'S DAUGHTER WILL BE MARRIED SOON

London, Sept. 25.—Although there is still three weeks time in which to make the necessary arrangements, the preparations for the wedding of Prince Arthur of Connaught and Princess Alexandra Victoria, daughter of the late Duke of Fife, are nearly completed. The wedding will take place on October 15, at the Chapel Royal, St. James, and to accomodate the large number of invited guests it was necessary completely to remodel the chapel. The work is now completed, but, even after the alterations it will not be possible to crowd more than between 260 and 300 persons into the structure.

The work of preparing the chapel was pushed with all might and now even the covered passageways between St. James' Palace and the chapel, for the use of the bride and the similar passageway leading from Clarence House to the chapel, for the convenience of the Duchess of Connaught, have been finished.

LINCOLN MEMORIAL BIDS ARE OPENED

Washington, D. C., Sept. 25.—The Lincoln Memorial Commission, which has charge of the work of erecting the Lincoln memorial structure, in Potomac Park, on the axis of the Capitol and the Washington monument, held a meeting here today for the purpose of considering the bids and awarding the contracts for the construction work. Congress has fixed the limit of cost of the structure at $2,000,000 and has appropriated $360,000 for beginning the work.

The designs for the memorial to be erected are those submitted by Henry Bacon, the New York architect, and the latter will personally superintend the work. It has been decided generally that the work on the foundation shall commence within thirty days from the signing of the contract and completed within twelve months, and that the superstructure shall be completed within four years. If the entire work is combined in one contract its completion is expected within four years. Test borings on the site of the memorial show that solid rock is found at distances varying from 27.9 feet to 41.7 feet below mean low water mark, which is on the average sixteen feet below the present surface of the ground.

YALE ENROLLMENT BREAKS ALL RECORDS

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 25.—Yale University opened for the academic year 1913-14 with the largest undergraduate enrollment in its history. So far about 3,800 students are enrolled in the freshman class, which is more than there were last year, when the high-water mark in enrollment was reached. The number of seniors is also larger than ever before and for the first time Dean Jones was puzzled how to house all these students on the campus.

When Wright dormitory was opened last fall it was understood that it was to be exclusively a freshman dormitory and by means of it the university officials thought that they had solved the freshman problem, which has disturbed those in authority at Yale for many years. But even with this additional building there were last year a few freshmen who could not be housed under the direct supervision of the university authorities. This year the university authorities have leased two of the buildings used last year by students and there the freshmen and other students who cannot find room in the reuglar dormitories on the campus, will be housed under the supervision of the faculty. Last year and in former years there was a great deal of complaint that the students living in private quarters, not supervised by the faculty, did not lead a life becoming to students; that they often held poker parties and other entertainments at which liquor was used to excess, in their private quarters. The university authorities hope to prevent a reoccurrence of such scenes by keeping the students under strict supervision by members of the faculty.

BOSTON HAS OPENED ITS MODEL Y. M. C. A.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 25.—The magnificent new building of the Young Men's Christian Association of this city, on Huntington avenue, near the Boston Opera House having reached its completion, was thrown open to the inspection by the public today and this evening will be formally dedicated at a reception in the new building. Governor Eugene N. Foss, of Massachusetts, and Mayor Fitzgerald, of Boston, will attend the reception and are expected to deliver short speeches on that occasion.

About four years ago the plan was proposed to erect a new and sufficiently large building for the Boston Y. M. C. A. to take the place of the handsome but altogether too small building of the association on the corner of Berkeley and Boylston streets. To raise the required funds for the new building a vigorous campaign was begun and daily the amount of the aggregate subscriptions was shown by means of the dial of a big clock displayed in front of the Y. M. C. A. building. The association was successful to secure contributions aggregating more than $500,000 during the time which had been fixed for the campaign and, finding the lot on Arlington avenue, upon which the new building was to be erected, too small for the purpose, promptly sold that lot at a good price and acquired a large plot of ground on Huntington avenue, not far from the Boston Opera House. There the building was erected and its cost is estimated at more than $1,000,000. It is believed to be the finest and best equipped Y. M. C. A. building in the country and will be large enough to accommodate all the educational, athletic and other departments of the association.

The gymnasium of the association is considered one of the finest in the country. It has a running track and the other customary features of a well equipped gymnasium and, in addition thereto a large swimming pool and sumptuous shower and other baths. There is also a large restaurant, a well furnished reading room and a big auditorium for lectures and entertainments.

SCORE BIG IN DEFENSE OF SULZER

Schiff Gives New Check Version.

FOR "PERSONAL USE"

Henry Mongenthau Tells Practically Same Story.

FULL DETAILS TO BE BARRED

Impeachment Court Rules That Decision on Challenged Evidence Must Await End of Trial.

TESTIMONY PLEASING TO SULZER'S FRIENDS.

I think it was the general intent and purpose of the conversation with Governor Sulzer that Governor Sulzer should use this $2,500 for whatever he would please. If I searched my mind I would say to you that Governor Sulzer could have had this $2,500 at any time and for any purpose, and if I had been very careful I probably would not have used the words "campaign expenses," because I really meant that he should have the free use of it.—Jacob H. Schiff, testifying before the impeachment court.

I either made out a check myself or had my clerk make out a check for $1,000, and I signed it and handed it to the governor. He said to me: "I didn't expect that from you. I don't want it, because you are doing so much for the national committee." I said, however, I did want to help him and gave him the check, and he took it. At the time I felt positively he would be governor. It was simply to help him. I was foolishly generous and thought I would give it to him.—Henry Morgenthau's statement at Albany hearing.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Jacob H. Schiff astonished the impeachment managers and their counsel by testifying that the $2,500 check which he gave William Sulzer on Oct. 16, 1912, was not specifically a campaign contribution, but was intended for whatever use Mr. Sulzer saw fit to make of it.

To a lesser degree they were surprised by the statement of Henry Morgenthau, ambassador to Turkey, that he didn't intend to limit Mr. Sulzer in any way when he gave the candidate on Oct. 5 a check for $1,000. In this case the surprise was mitigated by Mr. Morgenthau's final admission that the money was given to help Mr. Sulzer "in his election and canvass."

This turn in the testimony was a decisive blow to the prosecution, which had swept everything before it earlier in the day, winning with practically no opposition the vital point concerning the elimination of articles 1, 2 and 6 of the impeachment, on the ground that they referred to acts committed before Mr. Sulzer took office.

Thomas G. Goodwin, paying teller of the Farmers' Loan and Trust company, where Mr. Sulzer had an account, was the last witness yesterday. He identified a deposit slip and checks indorsed by Mr. Sulzer, but refused to testify as to the handwriting on checks that had not gone through the bank with which he was connected. He had been advised by counsel not to testify along this line, he said. Presiding Judge Cullen told the witness that his advice was erroneous and improper. The witness said he had been told by the lawyer that the bank did not care to have him testify to matters not affecting the institution. At Judge Cullen's request the witness then consented to give any testimony desired. At this point adjournment was taken until today.

Mr. Schiff on Stand.

After the decision of Chief Judge Cullen, indorsed by a vote of 49 to 7, to postpone decision on the articles objected to until testimony is complete, the governor entered a general denial of all charges. Then Eugene Lamb Richards outlined the case for the prosecution and, minor points being settled, the first witness was called.

Mr. Schiff and Mr. Morganthau entered the courtroom while the first witnesses were being examined on minor points, identifying records and documents pertinent to the case. Then Mr. Schiff was called to the stand, and every one in the courtroom straightened with revived interest in the knowledge that vital testimony was about to be taken.

Mr. Schiff, questioned by Mr. Kresel, said he is a member of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., bankers, of New York. He wrote a letter of congratulation to Governor Sulzer after the latter's nomination, he said:

"Following that Governor Sulzer came to my office," went on Mr. Schiff, "and we discussed the general political situation.

"Governor Sulzer asked me if I was going to contribute to his campaign fund," testified Mr. Schiff. "I said that I was, and he asked me how much. I said $2,500, and he said, 'Can't you make it any more?' I said, 'No, that is as much as I can give you.'

"Governor Sulzer then said, 'All right; make your check to the order of Louis A. Sarecky.'"

Identifies the Check.

Mr. Schiff then identified the check which he said he had ordered drawn and which he had signed. The check was offered in evidence, and Senator Griffen of the Bronx wanted to know to whom the check had been delivered.

"I believe it was either given or sent to Mr. Sarecky," declared Mr. Schiff, "but I don't know just how. That is one of the details of my office with which I have nothing to do."

This ended the direct examination. Mr. Marshall, on cross examination, wanted to know if when the check was given there was any understanding between the witness and Governor Sulzer as to the purpose for which the contribution was made.

"Did you impose any limitations as to what purpose the check was to be put?" asked Mr. Marshall.

"There was nothing said," replied Mr. Schiff.

Meant Personal Aid.

"Mr. Sulzer could have had $2,500 from me any time he wanted it," Mr. Schiff declared. "He could have had it for any purpose whatever. I intended that he could have free use of it for any legitimate purpose."

"But did you not mean for purposes connected with the campaign?" asked counsel for the assembly.

"My state of mind at that time was that I intended to aid Mr. Sulzer personally."

The prosecution gave up the fight with Mr. Schiff then and called Mr. Morgenthau, the new ambassador to Turkey, to the stand.

"Mr. Sulzer came to my office soon after his nomination," Mr. Morgenthau said. "He told me that I had aided so much in getting the nomination that he did not expect a contribution. He talked of what I had done for the Democratic national committee, of which I was a member."

No Restrictions on Use.

Mr. Morgenthau then went on to say that he had placed no limitations on the $1,000 check he gave to Mr. Sulzer. He gave it to him because Mr. Sulzer was the Democratic nominee for governor.

"I was foolishly generous in giving the money to him. He did not ask me for it, but I felt I ought to help him out."

With this Mr. Morgenthau was excused, and Thomas M. Goodwin, paying teller of the Farmers' Loan and Trust company, next called, testified that Governor Sulzer had an account with that institution for four years.

Mr. Goodwin identified two checks and a deposit slip deposited in the Farmers' Loan and Trust company to Governor Sulzer's account on Oct. 8, 1912. The deposit slip was in the governor's handwriting, as were the indorsements on the checks.

FINDS HIS WIFE'S BODY IN CELLAR

Blue Ridge Appears About Her Throat.

FOUL PLAY IS SUSPECTED.

Autopsy Will Determine Death of Newark Woman—Told Husband She Was Going to Visit Her Sister and Instructed Child to Meet Her There After School.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 25.—The dead body of Mrs. Hermonie Rom, wife of Martin Rom, a barber in this city, was found in the cellar of their home at 500 Washington street. Shortly after that hour the husband rushed breathlessly into the First precinct police station here and told Lieutenant Troy that he had just discovered the body.

Rom told the police that she told him she was going to visit her sister. She told her daughter, Violet, nine years old, by a former marriage, to meet her at her aunt's after school. The child obeyed, but not finding her mother, and upon being told that she had not yet made the promised visit, went to her home. Her mother was not there, so she returned to the aunt's to await her coming.

Rom returned to his home and finding neither wife nor child hastened to the home of his wife's sister. Mrs. Rom had not reached her sister's house, and Rom with the child went back to the Washington street home. None of the neighbors had seen her. Finally the barber thought of the cellar. There he found, fully dressed, the dead body of his wife.

Lieutenant Detective Tuite and County Physician McKinzie were summoned as quickly as possible and went with Rom to the house. The only mark of violence found is what appears to be a blue ridge about the throat. This might be the result of some pressure on the throat and it might result from rigor mortis, the doctor said. The body was removed to the morgue, where an autopsy will be made to determine the cause of death. Meanwhile the police are investigating, and the husband is working with them to determine whether there was foul play. Mrs. Rom was a widow when she married the barber. She was thirty-three years old, the same age as her husband.

BOY MUTILATED BY TRAIN.

Parts of Body Found on Engine—Companion Escapes.

Flemington, N. J., Sept. 25.—An unidentified boy, about fifteen years old, was killed by a westbound train on the Lehigh Valley railroad near Three Bridges. A companion about the same age, whose identity also is not known, narrowly escaped the same fate.

The two boys had been stealing a ride on a coal train eastbound. They both jumped off directly in the path of an express train coming from the opposite direction. The boy who escaped was so terrified when he saw his companion killed that he ran away.

The boy was terribly mutilated, and parts of the body were found on the engine when it reached here.

ADOPT COMMISSION RULE.

Voters In Haddonfield, N. J., Decide on Change In Government.

Haddonfield, N. J., Sept. 25.—Voters of this city decided to adopt the commission form of government at the election. The vote was 413 for, 273 against. The commission form was opposed by members of the present borough council. A special primary will be held Oct. 21 to name candidates for members of the commission.

Those who have announced their candidacy are Mayor Robert T. Wood, former Mayor Charles O. Brown, William Carey Marshall, George B. Clover, Bayard C. Stavely and Joseph K. Lippincott.

FIELDER'S PLURALITY 50,000

Stokes Wins Republican Nomination In New Jersey by 75,000 Votes.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 25.—Returns from the gubernatorial primary indicate Acting Governor James F. Fielder is the Democratic nominee over former Mayor Frank Katzenbach, Jr., by a plurality of 50,000. Former Governor E. C. Stokes has landed the Republican nomination by about 75,000 over the highest of his three competitors.

Fielder carried every county but Essex and Mercer. Katzenbach carried Essex through the efforts of James R. Nugent, and his home county. Everywhere the Progressive vote was small.

TRULY A "QUIET" WEDDING.

Priest Unites Deaf Mutes In the Sign Language.

Irvington, N. J., Sept. 25.—A marriage ceremony in sign language was performed at St. Leo's Catholic church here, when Miss Mary F. German of 114 Linden avenue, Irvington, became the bride of Frank J. Jelinek of 534 Essex street, Brooklyn.

Many of the wedding guests followed the finger movements of the Rev. E. F. Quirk, chaplain of the Newark fire department, a sign language teacher, as he went through the service.

WILLIAM H. COLE DIES IN DUNELLEN

Paralytic Attack Ends His Life in His Seventy-seventh Year.

LONG COAL MERCHANT

Two Children, Capt. Benjamin A. Cole and Mrs. Emma L. Baldwin, and Two Granddaughters Survive—Funeral Plans Not Made.

William H. Cole, aged seventy-seven years, one of the best known citizens of Dunellen, died at his home, 166 East Front street, that place, this morning, following a paralytic stroke a few days ago. For some time Mr. Cole had been in failing health and when stricken this week his vitality was so low that he was unable to rally from the attack.

Mr. Cole had lived in Dunellen practically all his life and for a quarter of a century was engaged in the coal business there. At one time he was in partnership with Alvah Gray, and more recently he sold out to the Dunellen Coal and Supply Company, from which concern he retired four years ago. Mr. Cole always took a deep interest in borough affairs. He served for several years as overseer-of-the-poor, filling the position with credit. He was a member of the Presbyterian church of Dunellen and was a regular attendant until illness prevented.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Emma L. Baldwin, with whom he lived, a son, Captain Benjamin A. Cole, pilot employed by the New Jersey Central, and two granddaughters, one of whom is Mrs. George E. Firstbrook.

The notice of funeral will be given later.

BIKE THIEF ABANDONS IT AS OWNER APPEARS

William L. Pratt, the Watchung avenue druggist, soon after reporting to the police the theft of his bicycle from in front of his establishment, saw a colored youth riding the stolen mount and started in pursuit. The boy left the wheel at Watchung avenue and East Front street, and ran in the direction of North Plainfield.

Pratt was only able to give a meagre description of the thief and the police have little hope of catching him.

WOODHULL & MARTIN AID A LOCAL CHARITY

While announcement of the fact was made some time ago, the City Union of the King's Daughters do not believe that it is generally known that the Woodhull & Martin Company has agreed to allow the organization three per cent in cash and five per cent in merchandise on all coupons returned to them by the City Union. By this means the work of the organization receives material benefit to carry on The Day Nursery.

Persons receiving such coupons and desiring to do so can send them to Miss Helen Harman, of West Eight street, who has offered to take charge of them and see that they are redeemed. The Day Nursery is in need of blankets and comfortables and other merchandise and this arrangement makes it easy to get these articles as well as cash.

Work on the concrete culvert to be erected from Somerset street west along Greenbrook road to Stony brook was started this morning by the street gang employed by the street department of North Plainfield. The work was begun at Grove street and will be continued at such times as the men can be spared from the regular work of the borough department. It is estimated that the work will cost in the neighborhood of $500.

A meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of North Plainfield was held yesterday in the Somerset School. Tentative plans for the organization's activities during the fall and winter terms were discussed, but nothing definite was decided upon. A program is being prepared by a committee, however, to guide the association in the work it seeks to accomplish.

Birthday of Pastor's Wife and a Wedding Anniversary Incidently Celebrated.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, a successful harvest home sociable was held in Epworth House last night. The rooms were attractively decorated with red and green tissue paper, Japanese lanterns, flowers and autumn foliage, all the work of John McCormick.

The affair had a triple significance for in addition to being the annual harvest home, it also marked the birthday anniversary of Mrs. F. J. Hubach, wife of the pastor, and the fifteenth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gardiner. Mrs. Hubach and Mrs. Gardiner were each presented with a bouquet of flowers by Edward Beekman, who made a short address. Afterward they received the congratulations of all present.

There were many beautiful floral tributes. Rev. Evarts C. Conover, of the Temple Baptist church, conducted the service, and he was assisted by Rev. E. E. Loux, of Freeport, I. I., a former pastor of W. A. Conger a number of years ago.

TRUELL HALL TO CLOSE ITS DOORS

Famous All-the-Year-Round Resort Not to Be Open During the Winter.

TO RESUME IN MAY

Truell Hall, in the Netherwood section, will close its doors for the first time in six years on Wednesday, October 1. The closing will only be temporary for the famous resort will be reopened next May.

When John R. Truell, the proprietor, was seen today, he explained that never in the hotel's whole history has it been kept open all the year until the management was assumed in 1907. Business conditions as at present are such generally that it would not be profitable to run the place through the winter and so it has been decided not to maintain it.

The late Mrs. John R. Truell, after making a big success at Truell Court and later also at Truell Inn, assumed charge of the then Hotel Netherwood, which had been closed for some years. Famous hotel men had failed to make a success there, but she succeeded beyond all expectations. When she died, Mr. Truell continued its management.

The property was built by the late Charles Hyde and later passed into the possession of the Hyde estate. The late John R. Breslin, the late Major Coleman and the late A. Woodruff, all of New York, were proprietors at various times. Since the Truell management was begun, Charles L. Hyde, one of the heirs of the Hyde estate, has made his home there.

The property has been in the market for some time and it is reported that the purchase price asked is in the neighborhood of $100,000.

CANDIDATES SPENT LITTLE IN CAMPAIGN

Thus far four candidates have complied with the election law by filing with City Clerk James T. MacMurray a statement of their primary campaign expenses. Of the four, three, Frank H. Smith, for member of county committee; William R. Townsend, for member of the city committee, and A. M. Morrell, nominated for councilman-at-large, had no expenses, according to their statements, while J. Hervey Doane, for freeholder, states that he expended $1.50 for carfare and petitions.

The law provides that all statements must be filed within five days after the primaries. City Clerk Lincoln E. Rowley, of East Orange, announced yesterday that unless candidates nominated at the primaries file a statement of their expenses within five days their names will not appear on the ballots at the November election. He declared that candidates must file statements whether they expended anything or not. Mr. MacMurray has made no such announcement and being out of town today it is not known what action he may take.

ENGLISH CONCEDES THE ELECTION OF E. W. KNAPP

Elizabeth, Sept. 26.—All talk of a recount of the vote cast for Progressive State committeeman at the primary Tuesday was set at rest yesterday when John K. English conceded the election of Edward A. Knapp by a majority of fifteen.

English was a candidate on the Osborne ticket, which was defeated two to one in the county. Until this noon the result was in doubt.

Bamberger, J. C. Christiansen and Mr. Weigmann.

LINBARGER QUITS PARTY POLITICS

Defeated Candidate for Democratic County Clerkship in Somerset Retires.

AFTER LONG SERVICE

Considers That His Work is Not Appreciated Basing Belief on Primary Returns—County Committee Member for Fifteen Years.

Walter C. Linbarger, of North Plainfield, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination of county clerk in Somerset county at the primaries on Tuesday by a small margin, announced today his retirement from politics, declaring that in the future he will devote his entire time to his own personal affairs. For many years, he says, he has given a good part of his time to his party without any thought of reward and often at a great personal sacrifice.

"Not until this year," says Mr. Linbarger, "did I seek any honors at the hands of my party. I was persuaded to enter the race for the county clerkship, and my strength was clearly indicated by the vote I received. In the borough, my home, I received 177 votes, or 113 more than my opponent, and in Somerville, the home town of Mr. Bellis, my opponent, I came within fifteen votes of receiving as many votes as he.

"I am grateful for the flattering vote given me in the borough as well as Somerville and other parts of the county, but I think the least my party could have done would have been to give me the nomination. But as it did not see fit to do so, I wish to state that as I do not appear to be appreciated, in the future I will attend to my own affairs and let others get out and work for the party. I shall continue to remain a good Democrat as in the past, and all I can say is that I wish success to my opponent."

Mr. Linbarger has been actively identified with his party for many years and for the past fifteen years he has been a member of the Somerset County Executive Committee. He has been secretary of the committee and last year the secretary of the campaign committee. Throughout his political career he has been largely instrumental in the election of a number of Democrats and it is said that many officersholders today are reaping the reward of his efforts.

The retirement of Mr. Linbarger from active politics, it is believed, will be a loss to the Democratic party of Somerset county, for while other members have been willing to work only during the campaign, Mr. Linbarger has worked 365 days in the year.

HE LOST SOME TEETH SHOUTING FOR DEMEZA

An echo of the campaign for the city judgeship nomination was heard this morning in the City Court, before Judge DeMeza, the successful man at the primaries. The story as told the magistrate pictured Abrams Hall, in West Third street, filled with colored citizens who were listening to Councilman Francis J. Blatz, tell why he thought he should be supported at the primaries. As the candidate was speaking James Carter, colored, of West Fourth street, arose from his seat and shouted, "Judge DeMeza's good enough for me." The words had no sooner left his lips than a heavy fist landed on his teeth, which sent several of the food-munching parts scattering. Charles Milford, colored, was the man who owned the fist that knocked Carter's teeth out.

Ths morning Milford was arraigned before Judge DeMeza charged by Carter with assault and battery. He was adjudge guilty but sentence was suspended under the condition that the defendant pay for the fixing of Carter's teeth.

OTHER BURGLARIES TRACED TO CONLEYS

Youths Pleading Guilty to Offenses Here Police Say Operated in Dunellen.

When Detective-Sergeant John J. Flynn captured Edward Conley and John Conley, cousins, in Newark, recently, as the men who broke into Leo Zeisel's store on West Front street and stole two bicycles and many other articles he did not know that the same youths were wanted in other municipalities for similar offences. But such has proven to be the case. The two prisoners, who confessed to the local looting and pleaded guilty, will be sentenced today, and when they are brought before Judge Connolly in the Court of Common Pleas, in Elizabeth, they will be apprised of the fact that several "jobs" in Dunellen have been traced to them.

On Sept. 11, Oscar Runyon's jewelry store, Oscar Victorson's tailor shop, and John Marien's drug store, all in North avenue, Dunellen, were entered and valuables amounting to over $300 taken. The thefts remained a mystery, until yesterday, when the authorities searched a room hired by the two burglars, and found large quantities of booty stored away in suit cases. Some of the stuff was identified by the Dunellenites and the police are still looking for valuables which the youth's pawned. The finding of several pawn tickets in the room resulted in many articles being recovered.

DESPONDENT MAN ENDED OWN LIFE

William A. Day Committed Suicide at Sanitorium in North Plainfield.

HAD BEEN MELANCHOLY

Morristown Business Man Hanged Himself—Coroner Long, of Somerset County, Granted Burial Permit.

William A. Day, aged about 40 years, a prominent resident of Morristown, where he had been engaged in the hardware business for several years as a member of the firm of Phillips & Day, committed suicide at Dr. J. H. Cooley's sanitarium, 336 Somerset street, sometime Wednesday night, by hanging himself to a bedpost in his room. His lifeless body was found yesterday morning by one of the nurses.

Dr. William H. Long, of Somerville, county physician, was notified, and after investigating the circumstances and deciding that it was a plain case of suicide, gave a permit to have the body removed to Morristown.

According to relatives of the man, he had been in failing health for about a year and in June last his condition was such that he was placed in the borough sanitarium to receive treatment for nervous troubles and melancholia. While he had a special nurse, it was not thought necessary to keep a constant watch on the patient.

In some way he secured a long piece of stout twine, and while he was supposed to be asleep, he fastened one end of the twine to the bedpost and the other about his neck and thus hung himself. The nurse found the body suspended from the floor and quickly discovered that the man was dead.

An examination showed that the body was scarcely warm, indicating that possibly the man had been dead for several hours. Mr. Day was born near Morristown and had lived there practically all his life. His place of business was on Park place. The family is one of the best known in that section of the State. Mr. Day leaves a wife and one child.

LYRIC THEATRE TO BE OPEN TOMORROW

Mayor and Corporation Inspect Bldg—Proceeds of 1st Performance to Hospital.

When a few minor details have been attended to, Messrs. Metz and Gold, of Paterson, owners of The Lyric, the new moving picture theatre in the Weinberg building, in West Front street, will be granted a license by Mayor Percy H Stewart and the proceeds of the first performance to be given tomorrow will be donated to Muhlenberg Hospital

Accompanied by Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed and Building Inspector F. O. Doane, Mayor Stewart inspected the new amusement house this morning for the purpose of determining if the requirements of the building code had been complied with and if every safeguard against fire or panic had been installed. Several minor improvements were suggested to the proprietors by the city executive and as soon as these are made, and the basement of the structure is cleared of all rubbish and inflammable material, he will grant the owners' petition for a license to operate a moving picture show.

The owners, in an interview today, stated that the pictures to be shown will be of the highest grade and nothing that would tend to corrupt the morals of the younger generation will be permitted. They said the chief aim of the managers will be to supply the people of Plainfield with a clean exhibition of moving pictures, highly entertaining and instructive.

JOLLY BOYS CLUB DANCE ATTENDED BY SOME 200

About 200 members and friends of the Jolly Boys' Club enjoyed an informal dance last night at the clubhouse in East Second street. Streamers of crepe paper hung in design from the ceiling to the sidewall, and palms, ferns and autumn flowers surrounded the orchestra on the stage.

The reception room on the second floor, overlooking the dance floor, was profuse with autumnal decorations, and games were played between dances and during intermission. Refreshments were served at midnight. The event was a notable one for the club members and will be repeated once every month.

ALL STAR PLAYERS WILL OPPOSE PETS

Jack Martin Will Lead a Speedy Outfit Against Plainfield Tomorrow.

Plainfield will meet an aggregation of International League stars at Parker Field tomorrow afternoon, in what will probably be the banner event of the baseball season on local diamonds, and local fans will be treated to an afternoon of baseball performing that is seldom staged in New Jersey towns. Although Manager Dorflinger has made no definite announcement it is probable that he will have the same lineup on the field that triumphed over Somerville last Saturday, with either Harry Jennings or George Ortlieb on the mound. The lineups:

All-Stars—Eschen, of Jersey City, center field; Breen, Rochester, second base; Hanford, of Buffalo, left field; Simmons, leading hitter of the International League, third base; Jordan, Buffalo, first base; Martin, Rochester, shortstop; Reisigle, Providence, right field; Jacklitsch, Rochester, catcher; Hoff, Rochester, or Dick Schott, of Hope Chapel, pitcher.

FEDERAL GAME LAW IN EFFECT NEXT WEEK

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—One of the most sweeping and far reaching national game laws ever enacted will go into effect on Wednesday of next week and the government has sent copies of the Weeks-McLean Migratory Bird Law to all parts of the country so as to give the authorities and the hunters throughout the country a chance to become acquainted with the provisions of the law.

The law fixes the seasons for shooting migratory birds and also divides the country into two zones, a northern and a southern, in order that the birds may be protected to the fullest extent. Twenty-five States are in the northern zone, while the southern zone comprises the remaining 23 States. The shooting season for the two zones varies according to the classification of the four classes of migratory birds.

Spring shooting is absolutely prohibited, as is the shooting of migratory birds between sunrise and sunset. In most cases three months of open shooting for water fowl are allowed, and in no case will there be less than 30 days, when birds may be shot during the period of their greatest abundance.

Schedule Your Day.

Make a schedule for your working days and live up to it. If you do this you will lessen your labor and increase the amount of work you are able to do.

To begin with, make a practicable schedule and in the next place determine to abide by the rules that schedule lays down. Think a long time before you make it. Plan it so that it will give you leisure as often as possible, and so that it will dispose of the hardest part of your work earliest in the day.

The question of obeying a well-planned schedule may not seem to present any difficulties; but it does. For instance, if the schedule says that you shall be through with the breakfast dishes and upstairs to do the bedroom work by 9, go upstairs at 9, whatever betide. Of course, exceptional happenings may make it practicable to break the schedule. But if the kitchen is not quite in order, if the dining room has not been dusted and the clock strikes 9, go upstairs just the same. Then your upstairs work can be got out of the way on schedule, and the day will run along smoothly. The extra work downstairs can be sandwiched in, somehow, at luncheon time or when dinner is in preparation.

If you stay downstairs three-quarters of an hour extra and do not go upstairs until a quarter before 10, your whole day is put out of schedule, so to speak. You will be unable to get through with the upstairs work on time, therefore the next duty will be behind time, and so you will go to bed with a feeling that you have not caught up with your work and yourself.

Planning a Schedule.

A schedule is equally useful for a woman who does her own housework and a woman who keeps one or more maids. But of course it will be differently planned by these two women.

The woman who does her own housework should so plan her schedule that she will have some time for rest and some for interesting duties—letter writing, preparing club papers, gardening, embroidery or any other hobby or interest she has. If she gets a noontime dinner, she should at the same time plan and partly prepare the supper. If she gets a luncheon in the middle of the day, she can then plan and partly prepare the dinner, so that the time spent in the kitchen in the evening will be relatively short.

She should plan to have her work well out of the way by the middle of the afternoon. Perhaps her schedule should say "At three, rest and read or amuse yourself until four, then dress." Or perhaps it should say "Have all heavy work out of the way by four." And whatever it says she should obey it in that respect just as she obeys it when the clock strikes 9 and she goes upstairs to make beds and dust bedrooms.

Some Cookery Suggestions

DOING UP TOMATOES.

BECAUSE of the simple ways in which they may be put up tomatoes have always been the most popular of vegetables at the canning season. Ripe red tomatoes, small yellow tomatoes and green tomatoes may be done in widely varied ways.

An Uncooked Relish.

Tomato Relish.—Take one peck of ripe tomatoes chopped and then drained overnight in a bag, two cupfuls chopped celery, two cupfuls chopped onions, three chopped green peppers, one quart strong vinegar, two pounds brown sugar, three tablespoonfuls salt, two tablespoonfuls cinnamon and two ounces mustard seed. Stir all together and bottle and seal. No cooking is required.

Tomato Jam.—Take three pounds of tomatoes, one pound and a half of loaf sugar, two lemons sliced thin. Use tomatoes which are not quite ripe, wipe them with a cloth and take off the stems. Cut each tomato in four pieces and cook in a preserving pan with the sliced lemon till tender, then add the sugar, bring it to the boil and boil fast for forty-five minutes. If necessary a little water may be added with the sugar if the preserve is too thick.

A Convient Method.

Golden Preserves.—Pour boiling water over tomatoes, then skin and weigh them. Take the same quantity of sugar and boil the sugar and a little water until it threads when dropped from a spoon, then pour the hot sirup over the tomatoes and allow to stand until cold. When cold add thinly sliced lemon in the proportion of one lemon to four or five pounds of tomatoes and boil slowly until the tomatoes are transparent. Put in glasses and when cold cover with melted paraffin.

Mixed With Corn.

Tomatoes and Corn.—Take tomatoes which are not too ripe in the proportion of one-third corn sliced from the cob to two-thirds tomatoes. Scald, peel and slice and cut out all green or hard parts. Put all in a porcelain kettle. Let boil fifteen minutes and seal immediately in glass jars. You may after cutting off the corn cook it fifteen minutes. Add a little water and stir often, then prepare the tomatoes as above. Cook in separate kettles five minutes. Add them to the corn, mixing well until they boil up once, then put in jars immediately. Seal the jars and keep in the dark until needed.

Put an Iron Ring In Brownie's Nose.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Bull With a Ring In His Nose.

DADDY groaned as Jack and Evelyn came in. "So soon?" he said. "And I really haven't had time to think up a single thing."

"Never mind, daddy; we'll wait," the children offered.

"That's very kind of you," daddy replied, "but I think if you'll sit down I'll tell you your story now.

"Once upon a time there was a young brown bull. He lived in a nice green pasture where the grass was long and juicy, and on one side of the pasture was a lovely brook of clear water. When the days were warm he could go and stand in it and be as comfortable as you please under the shady trees that grew beside it.

"When he saw his master, the farmer, coming he would moo gently, for he knew that the good man always had a carrot or an apple in his pocket.

"One day the farmer came down to the field with a nice old horse, and he put him into the field with the bull.

"'The horse will be company for Brownie,' the farmer said.

"But Brownie was selfish. He wanted the field all to himself, and, lowering his head, he made for the horse. Fortunately he had no horns on his head and so could not hurt the horse much. It threw up its heels and ran away whenever it saw him coming.

"'I'll have to take the horse or Brownie out of the field,' the farmer remarked to the hired man. 'The nag will never get any fatter if he is chased about all the time by the bull.'

"So the farmer took the horse out, and then he put in a flock of sheep, but Brownie simply wouldn't have the sheep in his field.

"'I'm tired of this!' the farmer cried. So he went to his good friend, the blacksmith, and had an iron ring made.

"Then one day he went out to the field and drove Brownie to the barn. He tied him up there, and then, with the help of the hired man, a hole was punched in Brownie's nose. The iron ring was put into the hole and fastened there. Yes, of course, it hurt some.

"A rope was fastened to the iron ring, and when Brownie went out to the field he was tied to a tree, so he could go just so far and no farther. Then the horse and the sheep and the pigs and the chickens could run around as they pleased when the farmer put them into the field.

"Cross? Of course Brownie was cross. He hated the ring in his nose, and he hated being tied.

"'It's your own fault,' his mother mooed. 'Remember, I told you to behave.'

"But Brownie was so angry that he could only roar in reply."

CRUSADE PLANNED AGAINST PELLAGRA

International Meeting is Proposed to Work to Eradicate the Disease.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—As the result of a conference held in this city between Surgeon General Rupert Blue and D. Sambon, the famous English pellagra expert who visited the United States recently on his way to the West Indies, where he will make further investigations into the nature, causes and prevalence of the dreaded disease, invitations will probably be sent out in the near future for holding at some suitable point in this country next year an international Pellagra Conference. The details of the plan have not yet been arranged, nor has the place for holding the conference as yet been selected or the time for the conference fixed.

Dr. Louis Sambon, who is admitted to be the greatest living authority on the subject of pellagra, is now on his third field expedition under the auspices of the British Pellagra Investigation Committee and will remain for some time in the West Indies to make a thorough study of the disease which claims thousands of victims in the British colonial possessions in the Carribean Sea. Recognizing the great danger from the strange disease, which has found a firm foothold in the South of the United States and with which, it is estimated, some 50,000 persons are afflicted in this country, Dr. Sambon made the suggestion during his recent visit in Washington to hold an international conference for the purpose of discussing the disease in its various phases, its causes and means for its prevention and cure.

The cause of pellagra was long held to be due to the consumption of damaged maize, since it is in maize-eating countries that the disease prevails. It is due to the careful investigations and the genius of Dr. Louis Sambon that this theory has been practically abandoned by scientists in favor of Dr. Sambon's theory that pellagra, like malaria, yellow fever, filiaria, and many other tropical diseases, is caused by an infection conveyed by an insect—a simulium, or sand fly, just as malaria is now known to be conveyed by the anopheles mosquito.

Dr. Sambon is only forty-one years old, yet he is recognized throughout the world as one of the greatest authorities on tropical diseases. He was born in Italy of a French father and an English mother. Graduating with honors in medicine from the University of Naples in 1891, he became an assistant surgeon in the Italian army. Soon, however, on account of his scientific attainments and his linguistic ability he was sent to various foreign countries on scientific missions.

In 1897 he went to England, where he soon attracted the attention of Sir Patrick Manson by an article on acclimation. Later he was appointed to the chair of parasitology in the London School of Tropical Medicine. It was in 1897 that Sambon first publicly enunciated the theory that not the climate renders the tropics uninhabitable to the white man, but the tropical parasite infections. In 1900 he proved beyond reasonable doubt that malarial fever is produced through the sting of the infected anopheles mosquito and that protection from the sting gives immunity. He proved his theory by living for several months in a screened hut in the most unhealthy portion of the fever infested Roman Campagna.

Twice Dr. Sambon was sent to Italy to investigate the Pellagra disease and incidentally he visited, in 1911, several pellagra districts in Roumania, Austria, Hungary, Spain and France, collecting valuable material and making numerous observations confirming his theories concerning the nature of the disease and its direct cause. His observations clearly established the suspected connection between the disease and the bites by an insect of the Simulidae family.

While the efforts of Dr. Sambon have been primarily directed toward positively establishing his theory concerning the origin of the infection by the bite of certain insects, he is carefully studying ways and means of preventing the spread of the disease by proper protection from the infected insects and, eventually by the extermination of the disease-bearing pests. The enormous number of pellagra cases in the United States, especially in certain portions of the South, makes the suppression of the disease and of its immediate cause a matter of the greatest importance to this country and it is expected that the plan for holding an international pellagra conference will meet with the warm support of the medical profession.

RUSSIAN DESIGNS FUR TRIMMED ATTRACTIVE FOR WINTER SUITS

There is something about the Russian blouse with its cozy fur trimming that suggests crisp winter days.

Picturesque and becoming, these Russian coat and suit designs are general favorites. The addition of a cleverly draped sash makes the suit dressy enough for an afternoon tea, while worn with a broad belt of patent leather or suede it is perfectly appropriate for a shopping trip. Collars, too, add to the effect. 7936 has a broad cape collar coming well down over the shoulders, and a Medici gives the new high collar line in the back. Duvetyn velours de laine, ratine or broadcloth may all be used. A pretty suggestion is Russian green broadcloth edged with narrow bands of skunk and closed with frogs of black silk braid.

There are five pattern sizes, 34 to 42. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 36 inch material.

A two-piece skirt (7934) with a slightly raised waist-line accompanies the coat. Patterns are cut in five sizes, 22 to 30. Size 24 requires 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

Autumn fashions for small folks are fascinating to a degree. Simplicity of course is the keynote, and the plainer the dress the better suited it is to the slender little figure. 7964 would be very pretty made up in one of the dark serges or novelty stuffs and relieved with a contrasting sash.

Long, French waists are decided favorites.

Three pattern sizes are cut, 8 to 12 years.

Size 10 years requires 3 yards of 36 inch material.

Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

RICE VARIANTS.

Try a Wreath of Green Peppers Cut in Rings About Dish.

Where the family must be coaxed into a fondness for rice instead of potato, try serving it in some different fashion. A mound of fluffy rice, lightly piled in the center of a platter, is capable of many pleasing variations.

For instance, try a decoration of green peppers, cut in rings and cooked until tender in slightly salted water. Lay these green rings in an interlaced row, well up on the mound of rice. The effect will be found exceedingly good, and the peppers will also add a delicious bit of flavor to the rice when served together.

Pimentos cut in strips and dropped for a few minutes into boiling water make another excellent garnish for boiled rice, the pieces being scattered irregularly around the edge as a border. A sprinkling of finely chopped parsley over the mount of rice is pretty as well as appetizing, and a few spoonfuls of minced boiled ham lightly strewn over the rice is an improvement to the appearance of the dish as well as a piquant addition to the taste.

Tomatoes are also to be recommended in connection with the serving of rice. Cut them in medium slices, dip in flour and fry on both sides. A standing row of these tomato slices, supported against the center of rice and with a sprig of parsley here and there, makes an attractive dish.

Tomatoes cut in halves, baked or sauted in butter until tender, are good when each half is heaped with a big spoonful of boiled rice topped with a tiny sprig of parsley. Such an arrangement makes an excellent border around a plate of cold meat or sardines as a luncheon or supper dish.

Chicken livers in brown sauce, broiled calves' liver, creamed codfish or minced meat of any kind are all improved when served with a border of boiled rice, in which case potatoes need not figure in the meal in any form.

A little trick which goes a long way toward the satisfactory serving of rice is the use of a fork rather than a spoon. When cooking the rice should never be stirred with a spoon, but with a fork; when serving, where possible, use two forks instead of a spoon. The spoon crushes the delicate particles and gives the rice a mushy look, which must always be avoided.

TRY COOKING LETTUCE.

Palatable Ways of Serving This Popular Vegetable.

There are so many ways of cooking lettuce that it might almost appear on the table every day in two forms—once as salad and once as a cooked vegetable. One rather unusual way makes use of a sort of lettuce which any amateur grower sometimes raises, much to his despair and regret. This is lettuce that has gone to seed. Let it grow eighteen inches tall, strip the stalk of all leaves and cut the stalk in inch pieces. Boil these until they are tender and serve them with a well seasoned cream sauce. Lettuce served in this way is truly delicious.

Lettuce boiled like any other green and served chopped with butter, pepper and salt is also very good. It should be tender and fresh before it is cooked if it is to be tender and delicious when it is served.

Lettuce cooked like greens in the following way is worth trying: Boil it in salted water until it is very tender. Then drain in a colander and chop it fine. Measure a tablespoonful of butter and half as much flour for each quart of the greens and blend them in a frying pan, adding the lettuce when the butter and flour are smooth. After four or five minutes' stirring add salt, pepper and a quarter of a cupful of cream. Stir until the cream is hot and serve.

ASSORTED CAKES.

together over a saucepan of hot water for twenty minutes; remove the basin from the pan and beat up the contents until they are cool. Sift in the flour and baking powder, add the butter, melted. Mix carefully, adding the extract. Turn into a flat buttered and papered tin and bake in a moderately hot oven for twenty minutes. When ready remove the paper, and when cool cut into cakes. Cover with pink, white and chocolate frosting.—Table Talk.

A New Veil.

It is accordion plaited, and has a number of practical points. It is easy of adjustment, as it clings to the edge of the hat, and it can be conveniently rolled up and carried about in a handbag without becoming mussed. The material may be either net or chiffon, but soft chiffon is the most satisfactory. You may have the plaits run any direction that you choose. The selvage forms the top and bottom finish, and hems are necessary only in the back. A plait three-eights of an inch deep is a good size. Consult a plaiter as to the amount of material required for a certain shape and size. The finishing of the edges must be done before the plaiting is put in.

5-YR.-OLD SAVES MOTHER AND SELF AS HOME BURNS

Roselle, Sept. 26.—Awakened by smoke and the crackling of flames, Harold Turner, five years old, made his way with difficulty to his mother's room and aroused her yesterday in their home in Colonial road. The mother, Mrs. George Turner, saved her boy and herself with only their nightclothes. The house and its contents were destroyed.

While the fire proceeded Turner, who is a Pullman porter on the Central Railroad, arrived home from Jersey City. The house is not far from the railroad and it is said a locomotive spark may have caused the fire. The building was owned by Turner and was more than 100 years old. At one time it was used as a freight station by the railroad. The loss is estimated at $1,500.

SCOUTS' FIELD DAY CHANGED TO OCT. 11

Bicycle Polo to Be One of the Many Features of the Boys' Meet.

Owing to conflicting engagements for Parker Field, the Boy Scout field day originally scheduled for October 4 will be held on Saturday afternoon, October 11, at 1:30.

In making this announcement this morning, Commissioner Allen E. Beals said that Mayor Percy H. Stewart, who has been enthusiastic in the development of the Boy Scout movement in this city, together with Mrs. Stewart, has given a fine set of medals to be contested for by noted A. A. A. athletes. John Frits, the well known local athlete, has contributed an athletic section to the day's events to help the Scouts to make a success of their field day and he expects to announce the names of the contestants within a few days.

Paul R. Collier, who also has helped materially in the development of the scout movement and especially in finding work for scouts through its vocational guidance department, has offered a fine silk pennant of a size suitable to affix to a scout staff to be awarded to the scout patrol taking the highest credits at the exhibition. This pennant is to be contested for by every patrol in the city. In silk letters the pennant will bear the words, "Champions in Scoutcraft."

Another novelty of the field day will be a bicycle polo game and there will also be a bicycle tilting match between various patrols in Troop 5. Fourth Assistant Scoutmaster W. A. W. Thomsen has issued a challenge to Scoutmaster Joseph A. Garner, of Troop 7, to meet his team in bicycle polo.

SCHOLASTIC TENNIS.

Representatives of local schools will compete on the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow morning in the second annual interscholastic tennis tourney, many boys having already signified their intention of trying for honors on the court. Play will open tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and entries close tonight with Albert D. Beers, at his home, 734 Watchung avenue, or 'Phone 975-J.

DEMANDS DRAFTED.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 26.—Members of the Detroit American League Baseball Club here yesterday confirmed a report that the Baseball Players' Fraternity has drafted a series of demands, which are to be presented to the owners of the major league baseball clubs during the winter for their approval, after which they will be submitted to the National Commission, with the request that they be made part of the laws governing organized baseball. It was said that already 65 per cent. of the members of the Players' Fraternity have indorsed the proposition.

The race was twice over a triangular course, two and one-half miles to a leg. The elapsed time for the fifteen miles was: Michacago, 2:08:25; South Shore, 2:08:56.

NORWICH PLAYER HURT.

The Americans were off in their putting, losing holes repeatedly after making the greens easily.

SAFRO-GIBBONS FIGHT.

Eau Clare, Wis., Sept. 26.—Boxing fans from all parts of the State are here to witness the bout between Labe Safro and Mike Gibbons which is scheduled to take place here tonight. The result of the fight is awaited with some interest, as it will in a large measure determine the position of Safro as a boxer. Safro met with defeat when he fought against Shehan, the Chicago boxer, last spring, but he claimed that he was handicapped by an injured arm in that fight. Later he consulted a specialist who put his arm back in condition and now Safro is trying to prove that he has indeed "come back." Safro has never been a finished boxer, but there is considerable power in his jabs and punches. Gibbons is considered one of the cleverest and most scientific boxers in his class and his admirers believe that he will be fully able to evade his opponent's punches and jabs and tire him out by his tactics, while landing on Safro in vulnerable spots at opportune moments.

NEW YORK WINS INITIAL BATTLE

IN NEW YORK OCT. 7

No Tickets Reserved by Mail for the World's Championship Series—Giants Will Open Big Series At Home.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 26.—The members of the National Baseball Commission met here yesterday and completed the arrangements for the world's series to be played between the New York club, of the National League, and the Philadelphia club, of the American League. The opening game will be played in New York on Tuesday, October 7. Despite the fact that a possible chance remains for the Giants to lose the championship of the National League to Philadelphia, the National Commission decided that the possibility of this occurring is so slight as to be almost negative.

The second game of the series will be played in Philadelphia on October 8, after which a game will be played each day, alternating between the two cities. In the event that a game is postponed on acount of rain or for any other cause or in the case a legal game is not played, the clubs will remain in the city where the postponement occurs until a legal game has been played.

In the event of a tie game, the tie will not be played off in the city where the tie occurred, as has been the previous custom, but the following game will be played in the city where the tie did not occur, the same as though the contest had been won by one of the clubs.

The umpires selected by President Ban Johnson to represent the American League in the series are Thomas H. Connolly and John J. Egan. President Lynch selected William Klem and Charles J. Rigler.

All games will start at 2 p. m. At both the Polo Grounds and Shibe Park band concerts will be held from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m.

In New York the following prices will prevail: For boxes accommodating four persons, $25; upper grandstand, reserved, $3; admission and entire lower grandstand, unreserved, $2; bleachers seats, $1. Unreserved seats will be sold at the Polo Grounds on the day of each game, and distribution will be on the principle of "first come, first served." All reserved tickets will be for the three scheduled games in each city. In the event that three games are not played in either city the money for the third game will be refunded.

In Philadelphia the prices will be: Box seats, $5 each; reserved seats in main grandstand, $3; reserved seats in right and left field pavilions, $2; bleacher seats, $1.

The management of both clubs have announced that they positively will not receive mail orders for tickets, but that the sale will be made according to regulations to be established by each club.

Neither club will be permitted to construct extra stands on the field, and no spectators will be permitted to stand in the field or to overflow the stands in any way. There will be no special ground rules for the series.

Francis C. Righter, of Philadelphia, and J. Taylor Spink, of St. Louis, were appointed official scorers.

William J. Macbeth, of New York, and Joseph M. McCready, of Philadelphia, will have charge of the newspaper arrangements in their respective cities, and all applications for seats for newspaper writers must be made to them.

Leslie H. Constant, secretary of the Pittsburgh club, has been appointed to represent the National Commission in both cities.

Harry N. Hempstead, president, and John B. Foster, secretary, represented the New York club at the meeting, and Benjamin F. Shibe, president of the Philadelphia club, looked after the interests of his team.

Garry Herrmann, chairman of the commission, presided at the meeting. The selection of the city in which the first game is to be played was made by the toss of a coin. Garry Herrmann tossed a 50-cent piece and President Hemstead, of the Giants, called "heads" and the coin fell heads, giving New York the plum in the shape of the opening game. The players eligible to compete in the world's series are:

New York—Burns, Cooper, Crandall, Doyle, Demaree, Fletcher, Fromme, Grant, Herzog, Hartley, Marquard, Wiltse, Mathewson, Murray, Meyers, McLean, Merkle, Robinson, McCormick, Shafer, Sondgrass, Thorpe, Tesreau, Wilson and Schupp.

Philadelphia—Schang, Lapp, Bender, Thomas, Plank, Coombs Houck, Brown, Shawkey, Pennock, Bush, Wyckoff, McInnes, Collins, Baker, Barry, Orr, Davis, Lavan, Oldring, Strunk, E. Murphy, D. Murphy, Walsh and Daley.

Garry Herrmann announced that no players eligible to compete in the series would be allowed to write signed articles or allow their names to be signed to articles purporting to have been written by them during the playing of the series. The National Commission will impose a penalty upon any player violating this rule.

TOURNEY AT P. C. C.

A team match will be played on Saturday afternoon, September 27, at the Plainfield Country Club, between teams from that organization and the Park Club, of North Plainfield. There will be six matches in singles and three in doubles.

This is a return match, the Plainfield Country Club having visited the Park Club last year and played a match on the latter's courts, winning by a margin of one point.

LOCAL TEAM WANTED TO ENTER A NEW FEMININE BASKETBALL ORGANIZATION

Fair sex basket tossers in several towns near here have inaugurated a scheme to organize a basketball league of girls' teams to play the popular court game during the coming fall and winter months and are now scouring the nearby cities for likely aspirants to a championship title. This suggestion was recently proposed by a New Brunswick girls' quintet and has met with marked favor in that town and it is likely that the plan will result in the formation of the fire female league in which any of the nearby towns was ever represented.

Perth Amboy, Tottenville, South Amboy, New Brunswick, Woodbridge, South River, Keyport and Elizabeth have already signified their intention of entering feminine teams in the league and an effort has been made to interest local enthusiasts in the proposition. No definite action has as yet been taken to organize, other than the requesting of a few opinions in regard to the sentiment of several basketball authorities towards the proposed league. A basketball follower in this city has been approached regarding the subject but nothing definite has been done locally.

Word from Woodbridge guarantees unlimited support from the fans as well as the players in that town and as that place had a strong representation of lassies last season playing under the colors of the Parish House. The name Woodbridge Parish House, however, suggests the need of uniform rules in such a project and one of the first things that will have to be done is to adopt a code of rules that will be strictly adherred to by all of the entrants. Last season the Parish House team played boys' rules to a certain extent and rival teams had some difficulty in opposing them on the court under such a handicap.

The South River maidens played many games last season and did not suffer a single defeat. South Amboy had a representative female squad and although they were beaten in most of their engagements they showed marked improvement towards the end of the season and should be able to put up some good opposition this season. Enthusiasm among the lassies in Keyport is also unlimited and the Keyport High School will also enter the league if it is formed.

"MAC" SAYS

If in search of some real excitement during these final days of the season go to Parker Field tomorrow afternoon and watch the Plainfield Pets and International League stars cavort about the diamond. The Pets will have all they can take care of, even with their stars in the lineup.

Captain Burner, of the North Plainfield High School basketball team, has introduced another novelty into Canada. The borough team candidates are taking daily road runs in search of wind.

Present dope seems to indicate that the N. P. H. S. five will give the local High School five an even harder run for the interscholastic trophy this season. A team of veterans remains on the other side of the brook, while Peacock is the local team's vet.

Pretty near time to start the hockey season, isn't it? We mean field hockey, of course.

Will Plainfield be represented in that feminine basketball league? The Queen City is represented in nearly everything else so without it the league will be an incomplete organization.

It might be well for some of these borough athletes to cut out these nightly trips to the mountains to attend marshmallow roasts. This is another new form of training introduced by a borough faction.

Soccerites will be treated to another dose of the Scottish sport tomorrow afternoon. This is one sport where the referee is never slaughtered.

Someone has averred that golf is not a sport. News item: "Golfer dies as result of broken artery sustained while driving golf ball."

Interscholastic tennis stars will appear at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow morning. This is another form of sport where N. P. H. S. shines, but the red and blue has a few stars this season who are expected to clean up on everything visible.

What has become of that swimming team somebody was organizing?

This time last year the Sunday-school and Manufacturers' League were still in operation. The old the organizations get the better the are run. The leagues this year were terminated before the pigskin season opened, which is unusual for amateurs.

GOOD SOCCER GAME ON LOCAL GRIDIRON

Plainfield Eleven Will Try Their Prowess against Harrison Team.

Encouraged by the great showing put up by its representatives against the Alley Boys, of Newark, last Saturday afternoon, the Association Soccer Club, of this city, will send a eleven against the Riordan A. C., of Harrison, tomorrow afternoon, on the Clinton avenue grounds and local enthusiasts will be given an opportunity to witness some real soccer. The local warriors lined up against the team that won last year's cup in the soccer league, last Saturday and held the champions to a 2-2 tie, toward the end displaying a flash of sensational kicking and team work that played the visitors completely off their feet.

Several new men have been added to the Plainfield eleven this season and the new additions strengthened the team considerably, both on the offense and defense. A few weak spots that made themselves noticeable last season have been plugged up by new material and the Plainfielders expect to sweep the State this fall and winter.

The team will lineup as follows tomorrow:

Goal, McNiece; backs, H. Craig and Braidwood; halfbacks, Crawford, Kenney and Buckland; right wing, W. Spalding and Johnson; left forwards, Hendry and Gardner; forwards, J. Dibble and Case; reserves, J. Gardner, Carberry, J. McCree. Referee, J. Henderson.

VETERANS TIE IN GOLF TOURNAMENT

Three Plainfielders Among Those Who Competed in Seniors Match.

Another year is closed so far as the famous Seniors' golf tournament is concerned. The wind-up took place yesterday over the links of the Apawamis Club at Rye, except for one or two little things still to be settled. One of these is the tie for the best gross score prize for the two days of play, involving Herman Wendell, of Philadelphia, and Walter Fairbanks, of Denver, Colo., who each had 164. Wendell had scores of 81 and 83 while the Denver "youth's" marks were 82 and 84.

Three Plainfielders finished the match, W. T. Kaufman turning in a score of 202, 28, 174, for the two days, D. H. Rowland turning in a card of 214, 36, 178, and C. A. Reed did the course in 196, 32, 164.

MALSTERS' DONATIONS TO SULZER

Mrs. Sulzer's Name Is Dragged In.

MAY EXPOSE MURPHY

Said Defense Plans to Implicate Tammany.

LEGISLATURE HOLDS SESSION

Decides Not to Present Additional Charges and Will Adjourn For Two Weeks.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 26.—The most important developments in the Sulzer impeachment trial after nine witnesses had been heard and thirty-two exhibits in the form of checks and letters relating almost entirely to the collection and disbursement of funds contributed to assist the governor in his campaign had been put in evidence were the following:

The testimony of ex-Senator Charles H. Stadler, the president of a malting company and described by the Tammany prosecutors of Mr. Sulzer as "the Sulzer bagman," that he had paid to Mr. Sulzer directly a sum aggregating $1,400, which he had collected from the brewing interests; that Mr. Sulzer had been fully informed as to the source of these contributions and had made personal acknowledgment to the donors of them.

Offer to Return Schiff Money.

The admission of Banker Jacob H. Schiff, who appeared for the second time on the witness stand, that Sulzer had offered through his law partner, Frankenstein, after the Frawley investigation had begun, to return the $2,500 which Schiff had contributed to Sulzer's campaign; that Mr. Schiff had given $1,000 to Oscar S. Straus, the Progressive candidate for governor, for campaign purposes a few weeks before Mr. Sulzer was nominated; that the differentiation was due to Mr. Schiff's conviction that Mr. Sulzer had a two and a half times better chance of being elected than Mr. Straus; that Mr. Sulzer "occasionally" called at Mr. Schiff's banking quarters; that Mr. Schiff could not recall whether he had given money to Mr. Sulzer at any time other than during the last gubernatorial campaign.

The high court by a unanimous vote decided to admit all testimony pertaining to campaign contributions made to the governor even though they were not specified in the articles of impeachment. Counsel for the impeachment managers said they were prepared to prove the governor received campaign contributions "vastly in excess" of the total mentioned in the articles of impeachment. There were more than a hundred not accounted for, counsel asserted.

Testimony and checks showing that eleven persons whose names did not appear in the sworn statement filed by Mr. Sulzer of his campaign receipts and contributions had given money to be used in assisting in his election; that these men and the amounts contributed by them were: Morris Tekulsky, a liquor dealer, $50; August Luchow, a liquor dealer, $200; William J. Elias, a brewer, $100; George C. Hawley, a brewer, $250; William Hoffman, a brewer, $250; Bird S. Coler, a banker, $100; A. H. Sterber, a business man, $100; Simon Uhlman, a hop dealer, $300; Mark Potter, a lawyer, $200; John Delehanty, $110, and Lewis J. Conlan, $100 (in cash).

Mrs. Sulzer's Name Brought In.

Admissions by Bank Teller Godwin of the Farmers' Loan and Trust company that, according to comparative standards, the signature of Mr. Sulzer appearing on checks passing through the institution were written in the handwriting of the accused governor.

The development of the fact that Mrs. Clara Sulzer, the wife of the defendant, was present and took charge of some of the contributions raised by Stadler and Charles P. Dersch, who collected some of the funds from the brewing interests.

These were the net results in the way of actual developments brought to light by the testimony and exhibits. The Tammany prosecutors found so much gratification in them that they decided last night at the session of the assembly to abandon the project of supplementing the charges contained in the eight articles of the indictment.

The legal advisers and supporters of Mr. Sulzer made stubborn resistance to the introduction of the checks evidencing hitherto unknown contributions to the campaign fund of 1912. But they were consoled by the assurance by the commanding and impressive chief judge that they would be unrestricted in their rights to answer and present counter charges showing the motives of the effort to remove Mr. Sulzer from office.

May Expose Tammany.

It is the temper on the part of the presiding judge, whose rulings have been regarded as so clear, logical and fair as to leave no doubt of his determination to bring to light every detail of the war between Mr. Sulzer and Tammany Hall, that causes the supporters and subordinates of Murphy the greatest anxiety. Already they are beginning to speculate and prepare themselves in anticipation of a bitter counter attack when the defense begins to reply and of necessity call Mr. Sulzer to the witness stand to make such statements as he may desire.

There was no possible doubt of the purpose of Mr. Sulzer's lawyers to prevent the introduction of new evidence against him, evidence that points to an organized effort on his part to secure contributions to his campaign from any and every quarter that could be prospected, in spite of the fact that he had repeatedly said during his campaign that he would employ no campaign collectors and would rely solely upon his popularity with the "plain people."

NO ADDITIONAL CHARGES.

Legislature Meets and Plans For Adjournment of Two Weeks.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Additional articles of impeachment for William Sulzer to answer before the high court of impeachment are not to be presented for adoption by the state assembly. This was decided last night by the board of managers of the assembly who are prosecuting the eight articles of impeachment adopted on Aug. 13. It had been the intention to ask the assembly last night to adopt three additional articles of impeachment charging usurpation of the functions of the office of governor by William Sulzer since he was impeached and reciting that Governor Sulzer had indulged in speeches during his direct primary campaign throughout the state which tended to bring the members of the legislature into disrepute before the people. The board of managers came to this conclusion after yesterday's testimony before the court of impeachment.

Chairman Aaron J. Levy of the board stated that the decision of the court to admit all evidence concerning the Sulzer campaign funds rendered unnecessary the adoption of any additional articles of impeachment.

The senate and assembly convened after a recess from last Friday, and this recess had been taken for the express purpose of giving an opportunity to the Democratic leaders of the assembly to make certain of the presence of enough assemblymen to adopt additional articles of impeachment if they were presented at last night's session. There were about 100 assemblymen present when the house convened and about a dozen senators when the upper branch of the legislature convened, and adjournment was taken by each house immediately until 4 o'clock this afternoon. Then an adjournment will be taken for two weeks, by which time it is expected the impeachment trial may be ended. If not the legislature will take another short adjournment.

LOUIS A. SARECKY.

Witness In Sulzer Trial Snapped In Albany Yesterday.

©1913, by American Press Association.

Louis A. Sarecky, Governor Sulzer's secretary, was served with a subpoena to appear before the high court of impeachment as a witness. He expressed surprise that he had not been subpoenaed earlier. He declared that he has not been in hiding or trying to evade service. Speaker Smith said that Sarecky's acceptance of service of the subpoena will make unnecessary the execution of the order of arrest issued by the assembly several weeks ago.

LEGISLATURE HALTS TO FIRE OUT GUNMEN

Tense Moment as Tennessee Speaker Clears Galleries.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 26.—Rather than risk a repetition of the riotous scenes in the lower house of the Tennessee legislature, when mob rule prevailed in a bitter protest against the arbitrary adjournment of the session by Speaker Stanton, who charged that gunmen were attempting to pick him off from the galleries, the regular Democrats refused to proceed with the business of the body unless the floor and galleries were cleared of the armed prison guards and alleged hired gunmen.

The corridors of the statehouse were packed with uniformed police sent by Mayor Howse to protect Speaker Stanton and Floor Leader McFarland, but the speaker refused to permit the guard to remain and ordered that a committee which he appointed see that all police and gunmen leave the statehouse. Every cloakroom and private office was searched, four heavily armed prison guards in charge of a life term convict being driven from Governor Hooper's office.

At all entrances into the house and around all stairways leading into the chamber Speaker Stanton placed sergeants-at-arms to prevent the entrance of any visitors, women and the press alone being excepted.

The explosion of a photgrapher's flashlight created a small panic among the representatives, several automatically reaching for their weapons.

Sudden illness of the speaker afforded an opportunity for adjournment without disorder.

NO GAYNOR WILL CONTEST.

Mayor's Daughters, Cut Off With $1,000 Each, Well Satisfied.

New York, Sept. 26.—It was agreed by members of the family and friends of the late Mayor Gaynor that there was no possibility of there being a contest over the will, which distributes the bulk of the estate between the two sons and the three youngest daughters Mrs. W. Seward Webb, Jr., and Mrs Harry K. Vingut, the two married daughters, who were left but $1,000 apiece, have declared themselves satisfied with the will.

Norman Gaynor, who comes into possession of his share of two-sevenths of the estate at once, told an intimate friend of the family that it makes no difference what his mother had been left, because he would look out for her in any event. Mrs. Gaynor, under the terms of the will, receives the Gaynor home in Brooklyn and $3,000 a year.

1,000 Houses Burned.

Constantinople, Sept. 26.—A great fire has occurred at Ordu, a port of Asia Minor, on the Black sea. The market place and a thousand houses have been destroyed.

Weather Forecast.

Fair today; warmer in southeast portion; tomorrow unsettled, probably local showers and colder in the interior; moderate south and southwest winds.

SAYS HE SET FIRE TO MAN'S HOUSE

Went by Owner's Directions, He Confesses.

MAKES ASSAULT CHARGE.

Attacked Murderously With a Hammer In Course of Settlement of Proceeds of Arson, He Says—Man Accused Is Held Without Bail, Confesser Is Witness.

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 26.—Out of this city came the story of a fireworks show at Moodus, Conn., July 5 last to furnish the alibi for a firebug blaze in Brooklyn Harry C. Cliff of 548 Fulton street, Jamaica, told the yarn and showed a letter to back it up. Cliff appeared in the First criminal court here to charge Emanuel H. Gold, formerly of 1709 Fort Hamilton avenue, Brooklyn, and now of 536 Jackson avenue, this city, of assaulting him murderously with a hammer in the course of a settlement of the proceeds of the arson.

Cliff confessed frankly that he set fire to Gold's former home at 1709 Fort Hamilton avenue. Gold's furniture, he said, was insured for $2,000, and Gold was to pay him one-fourth of the insurance recovered for "making the fire." He produced a letter, which was admitted to the record, addressed from Moodus, in which Gold gave directions for finding the key of the house and placing the tinder, and conveyed the news that Gold had bought a large quantity of fireworks to set off the night of the arson, "so," he said, "there will not anybody here be able to say I was not here when my place was burned in Brooklyn." He asked Cliff to be kind enough to write and tell how the Brooklyn fire went through.

Gold in court accused Cliff of having bought the hammer, but the woman who sold it identified Gold. Fire Marshal Brophy of Brooklyn was informed of the case and learned that Gold was in Moodus on the night of July 5, and the fireworks show took place according to program. Gold was held without bail for atrocious assault, and Cliff was held as a witness.

TORE BARS FROM HIS CELL

West Belmar Prisoner Sent to Freehold Jail to Save Him From Mob.

Freehold, N. J., Sept. 26.—Iron bars of the jail at West Belmar could not hold Israel Allgor, Jr., blacksmith, within his cell, and sheriff's deputies brought the prisoner, handcuffed and bound with ropes, in an automobile to the Monmouth county jail here to save him from a mob.

Allgor, committed without bail on a charge of being implicated in an attack upon George Winter, an aged Glendola farmer, who is dying from his injuries, tore the bars from the window of his cell in the jail and was escaping over the sill when five officers fell upon him. Two officers were laid low before Allgor was overpowered.

Winter was attacked and beaten by two men on a lonely road and robbed of $100. A foreigner was committed to jail as Allgor's alleged accomplice.

NEWARK PLAYERS GENEROUS.

Vote Share of Citizens' Bounty to Aitchison, Collins and McCarty.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 26.—Former Newark players will share in the receipts of the field day next Saturday, which is being arranged to reward the winners of the Eastern league pennant. The players met and decided that Aitchison, Collins and McCarty, who were taken by the Brooklyn club in the latter part of August, should share in all that is coming to the local champions. This includes medals being arranged for by the citizens' committee to celebrate the victory.

Mayor Haussling issued a proclamation calling for a holiday on Saturday. He asks the citizens to decorate their homes and business places "to attest their appreciation of the sturdy athletes who by their skill and courage have brought honor to the city which they represented."

WANTED SHOT AT BURGLARS

Mrs. Law Fired at One Once and Regrets a Lost Opportunity.

Montclair, N. J., Sept. 26.—When the family of Mrs. F. E. Law arose it was found that burglars had entered the house by a pantry window and taken away $300 worth of silver. Mrs. Law heard a noise in the night, but thought it was made by a passing vehicle.

"I am so sorry," she said, "that I did not get up and use my revolver on the burglars. This is the second time that robbers have entered my house in as many months. The first time I fired three shots at the burglar, and I am not sure that I did not hit him."

Mark Washington's Crossing.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 26.—A monument at Washington's Crossing, N. J., marking the spot where George Washington crossed the Delaware river in 1776 was dedicated by delegates to the national camp, Patriotic Sons of America. The organization began a two days' biennial session here.

The GIMBEL PIANO CLUB

The SHONINGER PIANO

That She Learned to Love at College
Is the Piano That the Graduate Wants in Her Own Home

In scores of Conservatories of Music Convents and Colleges the Shoninger Piano has been used for a generation. It has those qualities of artistic excellence that have won high respect for it in these institutions where Music is taught; and the honor in which the Shoninger is held by the teachers is usually imbued into the girl students. They learn, as a part of their musical education, to recognize true tone, depth, volume, responsiveness of action.

Directors of Conservatories of Music are not impressed by advertising notoriety, or by the fact that some piano maker has paid a fortune to some famous pianist to tour the country, after "celebrating"—for a vast contract sum—the piano made by his patron. They demand TRUE ARTISTIC QUALITY, and they apply the most drastic tests before making the decision.

The selection of the SHONINGER by so many scores of musical institutions is PROOF POSITIVE of its THOROUGH ARTISTIC QUALITY.

The Beautiful SHONINGER Upright (Illustrated above)

Sustained by Secretary Garrison For Disciplining Cadets.

Secretary of War Garrison put himself on record against any practices savoring of hazing at West Point. He sustained the recent action of Colonel Clarence P. Townsley, superintendent of the Military academy, in depriving of their privileges eighteen cadets found guilty of the practice.

NOTES FROM LABOR FIELD

The dispute of long standing between the Journeymen's Stone Cutters Association and the National Cut Stone Contractors' Association has been settled by a compromise.

An arbitration board has been selected which will hear the arguments in the controversy between the Burlington Railroad and its employes. The sessions will be held in Chicago.

Plans have been made for a speaking campaign in the interest of organized labor of Minnesota and portions of Wisconsin by Clarence Darrow, of Chicago. The campaign will begin in St. Paul, Oct. 3.

International President W. D. Mahon, of the street railway employes, reported to the convention held at Salt Lake City recently that 49,934 members had been initiated by the Amalgamated Association in the last two years.

John Finan, of Chicago, was reelected vice-president of the Painters' International Union recently. Finan also represents Illinois on the executive board. Under the rules of the organization no State can supply more than one officer.

At a hearing recently held at New Bedford, Mass., by a special legislative committee, several hundred textile operatives expressed themselve as opposed to the new child labor law which went into effect in that State on Sept. 1.

At the recent international convention of the Photo-Engravers' Union provision was made for an old-age pension fund and for the payment of $1,000 death benefit to the families of departed members. Both will probably become effective in a year or two.

The organization of the United Mine Workers has reached the highest point it has ever attained in its paid-up membership. Announcement was recently made that the paid-up membership of the organization on August 31, was 409,158, and that there was a gain during the last 18 months of more than 100,000.

Plans have just been submitted to the local unions of carpenters in San Francisco for the amalgamation of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners, with a prospect of the measure being adopted. The result is to be announced Oct. 1.

According to a report to the Central Labor Council the Labor Temple Association of Jacksonville, Fla., has placed the stock for the building on the market. It is planned to push the sale of the stock as much as possible so that work on the building may be begun at the earliest moment, possibly this fall.

At the recent session of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor a resolution was adopted which calls upon the State Legislature to submit to the voters of the State a measure providing for public ownership of street railways in the State. This is the first time that labor in Massachusetts has taken this stand.

England is once more threatened with a great railway strike, and Liverpool, as in former cases, will be the storm centre. The trouble began with the refusal of the Liverpool dockers to handle freight from Dublin, where transport workers are on a strike. The dockers went out, causing a complete freight tie-up on the lines of the London & Northwestern Railway Company.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

Eight members of the biology class took a hike into the mountains yesterday afternoon and collected specimens for study under the direction of Miss Love, instructor. Many different varieties of plants and leaves were gathered and they will be used in class work. Those who took the trip were Miss Love, Jennie Sears, Edith Dalley, Anna Warnock, Grace Townley, Emilie Pleydell, Beatrice Pope, Robert McGunnel and Gibson.

This morning during the morning exercises, Miss Smith secretary of the Y. W. C. A., gave the first of a series of talks that have been arranged by Principal Earley.

Miss Love has decided that her physics laboratory class is so large that it will necessitate three divisions to do thorough work. Two of the sections will meet on Monday and Thursday afternoons of each week, while the other one will meet during school hours.

DENY SCHMIDT IS REAL PRIEST

Cablegrams From Germany Declare Slayer Impostor.

PHOTOGRAPHS DISSIMILAR

Prisoner Laughs at Story and Recalls That Father Marker, School Chum, Had Recognized Him In His Cell In the Tombs.

New York, Sept. 26.—Cablegrams from Berlin stating that the police of Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, on comparing a photograph of the Schmidt under arrest here with one in their possession of Hans Schmidt, the priest of Mainz, are convinced that the murderer of Anna Aumueller is an impostor, cast further doubt as to the identity of the slayer. The cable dispatches state that the likenesses are sharply dissimilar.

There is no resemblance, the German police state, between the mouth and eyes of the Schmidt photographed in New York and the Schmidt photographed five years ago in Germany. If the photographs represent the same man, the German police authorities say, he must have changed greatly since he reached this country.

Photographs Dissimilar.

Relatives of the real Hans Schmidt in Germany, who have just received photographs of the man in the Tombs, say these pictures do not resemble the man they knew. These dispatches serve to confirm a widespread belief in New York that Schmidt is an impostor.

Schmidt was told of the news from Germany which would appear to discredit his claims that he is Hans Schmidt, the priest ordained in 1907 in Mainz. He said he was getting tired of reiterating the truth about himself and called attention to the fact that Father Franz Marker, now of Techny, Ill., who went to school with him in Mainz, has identified him completely in the Tombs four different times in the last three days.

Coroner Feinberg announced that he had issued summonses for eighty of the most prominent citizens of New York, from among whom he will select twelve to act as jurymen in the inquest into the death of Anna Aumueller which is to be held on Friday, Oct. 3. The coroner refused to give out the names of the eighty, stating that he could not make them public until the summonses had been served.

GOMPERS APPEALS TO WILSON

He and Other Labor Leaders Seek Aid For Legislations.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Samuel Gompers and members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor called on President Wilson to express their approval of his appointment of William B. Wilson to be secretary of labor and to solicit his support for the industrial and vocational educational bill, the seamen's bill, the measure which Mr. Gompers described as a bill "reasonably to limit the issue of injunctions in labor cases," and the bill "to establish a uniform wage scale for women laborers."

Mr. Gompers said the president gave his visitors the impression that his attitude toward their program was sympathetic.

TAFT WOULD FIGHT FOR JOB.

Refuses to Be Replaced on Lincoln Memorial Commission.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Professor William H. Taft was amused when he learned that Representative Borland, a Democrat, wants to replace him, Uncle Joe Cannon and other Republican members of the Lincoln memorial commission with Democrats.

"They took the presidency away from me," said Taft, "and I couldn't protest. But if they're going to take this job away, too, I'll have to protest very vigorously."

Professor Taft was in Washington to attend a meeting of the commission.

SNUB FOR SUFFRAGETTE.

Queen Mary Refuses to Meet Miss Glenteil at House Party.

London, Sept. 26.—A further indication of Queen Mary's antagonism to suffrage is her refusal to meet Miss Glenteil, a prominent suffragette, who was appointed by Princess Patricia as her lady in waiting during the absence of Miss Adams.

Princess Patricia was invited to Lord and Lady Spencer's house party to meet the king and queen, but sent her regrets when she learned of Queen Mary's attitude.

PROGRESSIVE PARTY LEADERS TO MEET

Theodore Roosevelt to Attend Conference of New York Bull Moose Tomorrow.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 26.—County and district leaders of the Progressive party from all parts of the State are gathering here for the conference of the National Progressive party which is to be held here tomorrow for the purpose of discussing candidates for the Court of Appeals. Ex-President Roosevelt is expected to arrive here this evening and has promised to deliver an address at a luncheon to be given by the Rochester Chamber of Commerce tomorrow at noon. He will also speak at the Progressive conference in the afternoon.

Some time ago William H. Hotchkiss, Virgil K. Kellogg and Chauncey Hamlin were appointed to arrange a general conference of representatives of local bar associations and other civic organizations to discuss candidates for the Court of Appeals, but the State Bar Association did not take kindly to the idea and it was abandoned. The conference to be held tomorrow will be of Progressives only. In addition to the State committee, numbering 150 members, the county chairmen will be present and each will be accompanied by ten delegates from each county. There will also be ten delegates from each Assembly district. The headquarters of the State committee are at the Hotel Seneca, and the conference will probably be held there unless the attendance should be so large as to make it necessary to use Convention Hall. Theodore Douglas Robinson, Jr., chairman of the State Committee, will preside.

As to the probable choice which will be made at the conference tomorrow it is difficult to make any definite prediction. It is known that Colonel Roosevelt is in favor of Justice Martin J. Keogh and Justice Frank C. Laughlin, but there are several other possible candidates, among them Justice Samuel Seabury, who is an independent Democrat, Judge Learned Hand, of the United States District Court, and Justice Frederick E. Crane, of Brooklyn.

HOPE TO PRESERVE CLEVELAND'S HOME

Patriotic Jerseymen Asked to Join Association and Raise $25,000 Endowment.

In order to properly maintain the famous old birthplace of the late Grover Cleveland, at Caldwell, which was recently acquired through the liberality of some of the former President's friends, a general invitation is being extended to all admirers of Mr. Cleveland to join an association formed some time ago to honor and perpetuate the memory of the only native of New Jersey who ever became Prsident of the United States.

According to the constitution of the Grover Cleveland Birthplace Memorial Association "any person who shall contribute the sum of one dollar or more per annum may become a member of the association."

It is proposed to raise an endowment fund of about $25,000, and as the money to purchase the birthplace was subscribed principally by influential men in other parts of the country, it is planned to first give all Jerseyites an opportunity to become associated with this enterprise to do honor to one of the country's greatest Presidents.

On March 18, 1913, Grover Cleveland's seventy-sixth birthday, the Memorial Association, which had been formed and on February 21st of the same year incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, purchased the old birthplace. The work of repairing the house, which had been a Presbyterian manse for nearly a century, was soon begun, and it now presents a very striking appearance. The old birthplace can easily be identified by parties passing through Caldwell, as it is situated right at the entrance to the town, directly opposite the semi-rural railroad station.

The old home will be fitted up as a museum, and on the land adjoining there will be built "The Grover Cleveland Memorial Library," the gift of Andrew Carnegie. Dr. Finley has offered to turn over President Cleveland's working library and other valuable relics. Among these will be the desk that Mr. Cleveland used in school, the chair he sat in as a child, and the chair he sat in at the White House.

REV. AND MRS. M'KELVEY HOLD FIRST RECEPTION

Rev. and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey gave their first "at home" of the season at Warren Chapel, last night. There was a large attendance of members and friends of the chapel, all of whom enjoyed the sociability and the excellent informal program which comprised vocal solos by Walter Blake, accompanied by Mrs. J. Following the program there was a social hour during which women of the chapel served refreshments. These "at homes" will be held at frequent intervals, being for the purpose of allowing the members of the chapel as well as friends to become better acquainted.

CONFERS WITH PRESIDENT ON PROPOSED TARIFFS

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Sept. 26.—Chairman Simmons went into conference with President Wilson this morning to get the Chief Executive's views on the tariff items in dispute. These include lead and zinc bearing ores, cotton thread and cloth duties and the date when the wool schedule shall take effect, also the terms of the cotton futures compromise. President Wilson desires to put a tax on dealings in cotton futures but not to hamper legitimate trading.

REV. MR. HUBACH ASKED TO RETURN FOR YEAR

Rev. Frederic J. Hubach, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, has been given a unanimous call by his congregation to return to the church for another year. Rev. Dr. D. B. F. Randolph, district superintendent, presided at the conferences.

Mr. Hubach is serving his second year as pastor of the local church, having come here from Phillipsburg. During his pastorate here the local church has continued to grow and today every department is in a flourishing condition. Mr. Hubach will doubtless be returned to the church for another year upon recommendation of the district superintendent.

RALLY DAY EXERCISES SUNDAY AT TEMPLE CHURCH

For the purpose of bringing the church and the Sunday-school in closer relationship and to prepare for the annual fall rally of the school on Sunday morning, there will be a meeting of special interest at the Temple Baptist church tonight. Superintendent L. W. Randolph will have charge of the program. O. S. Dickson, of Arlington, a speaker and elocutionist, will have a part in the exercises.

The officers of the Sunday-school at a meeting this week decided to continue the sessions of the school throughout the fall and winter at 9.45 o'clock, instead of in the afternoon as has always been the custom in the past. At the rally day exercises Sunday morning there will be promotions and a special program.

Y. M. H. A. CONVENTION PROGRAM ARRANGED

Judge Daly to Speak at Banquet at Annual Meeting of Association on Sunday.

New Brunswick, Sept. 26.—Plans have been completed for the annual meeting of the State Y. M. H. A. convention, to be held here on Sunday. The business session will commence at 1 o'clock, and will take place in the rooms of the local Y. M. H. A., on New street, where an address of welcome will be given by Mayor John J. Morrison. The opening and closing prayer will be by Rev. Ludwig Roeder, of the Temple Anshe Emeth.

At 7 o'clock Sunday evening a dinner will be served in Brunswick Hall, the toastmaster being William Schlesinger, of this city. An address will be delivered by Judge Peter F. Daly, and there will be other speakers of prominence. Guests will be present from all sections of the State.

Members of the Y. W. H. A. are assisting the Y. M. H. A. in their preparations for the convention, and will decorate both the rooms on New street and the banquet hall. Harry S. Feller, of this city, is the State president, and Jesse Strauss is the president of the local branch.

Already 30 boys, under seventeen years of age, have enrolled as members of a Junior Y. M. H. A., organized here. The work is being energetically pushed along all of these lines.

RESTRAINED, NOT DEAD.

As an evidence of the political bias of some newspaper "organs," it may be cited that the Progressive party's obsequies in New Jersey are being chronicled in the daily print. Particularly is this so as pertains to New York newspapers that rely on their staff correspondents for political dope. Some of these space writers assert that the people's government movement has succumbed shortly after birth and in granting a death certificate they mention therein as the cause of demise the astonishingly few votes cast in the Progressive primaries on Tuesday.

"Honesty is the best policy" in journalism as in all walks of life. Why shouldn't the truth be stated? The truth is that the morning of the primaries an opinion was handed down by the courts of law to the effect that any voter who had cast his ballot in the Republican primary one year ago, before real work had been begun in the Progressive party was debarred from particpating in the Progressive primary Tuesday. This edict disfranchised tens of thousands of Progressives. The official records show that more votes were cast for the Progressive ticket than for the Republican ticket in this State last November, just so as in the Nation, but the vast majority of these thinking men, who espoused the cause of a return of government to the people, were debarred by judicial order, from having any say at the primaries this week. Their hearts were and are still beating for the cause but their participation in the primary was restrained by the judicial ether.

Better wait until November when the victims of the court's orders have been fully restored to political health with the law's sanction, for then it will be recorded that the Progressive party is as strong as ever or even stronger.

FAKING THE PUBLIC.

During the world's series next month, one bit of trickery practised in the past on the gulliable fans will not be allowed. The National Commission has decided that the baseball players shall not "write" for the newspapers accounts of the games. Of course, the player-reporter, as the Newark Star observes, was only a sham business, as trained newspapermen did the actual work while all the players had to do was to sign their names to the stories and draw fat checks for the use of those names.

But this fake is not confined to the diamond. It exists to a large extent in the House of Congress. If it should be decreed that the members of that body should personally write the speeches they deliver and those they obtain "leave to print" in the Congressional Record, the "folks back home" would receive an awful shock. In many cases these speeches, paramocated with statistics and political history, are the concoctions of the private secretary or some trained writer who makes a business of that sort of thing. The same is true in State politics, the speeches and statements of candidates and officeholders are very frequently written by political reporters and not by the man who gets the applause.

MRS. CLARENCE H. MACKAY

Millionaire's Wife Is Made Defendant In Alienation Suit.

New York society received the worst shock it has experienced in years when it heard that Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, whose beauty and picturesque activities in the cause of woman suffrage have made her a national figure, had been made the defendant in a million dollar suit for the alienation of the affections of another woman's husband. Mrs. Catherine Ketcham Blake, wife of Dr. Joseph A. Blake, until recently head of one of the city's largest hospitals and a professor in its greatest medical college, is the complainant who caused the summons to be served.

The nomination of Charles P. Sebring for the shrievalty nomination on the Republican ticket in Somerset county was pleasing to his friends not only in North Plainfield but throughout the county. Sebring is a good citizen and would be a credit to the county as its sheriff.

The contributing editor for tomorrow's issue will be C. William Bingeman, physical director of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. His subject will be "The Boy."

For genuine cast-iron nerve, "Jim" Nugent is not to be beat. He aims to be restored to the chairmanship of the Democratic State Committee.

TAMED THE OLD SOLDIER.

He Was Not "a Beggar," but Carmen Sylva Became One.

One day, walking in a hospital ward, the queen of Roumania came upon an old soldier suffering from a compound fracture of the leg and threatened with gangrene. He would not give consent to the surgeons to amputate. He feared that should he do so he would be classed among the beggars.

"I am not a beggar," said the stout old soldier proudly. "I'll lose my life, but not my honor."

"'Tis true," said Carmen Sylva, "you are not a beggar, but I am." She threw herself on her knees at the bedside. "I have never prayed but to God," and, taking his hand, she added: "But I now supplicate you to listen to his wish and mine. Let your leg be taken off and spare your life to your family, your country and to me, and"—

"And, if I consent, what then?"

"What then!" she exclaimed joyfully. "Why, I shall give you the most beautiful artificial leg that can be made in Europe, and when the war is over you shall come and dance at the palace with your sons."

"I consent," he said softly, "but you must hold my hand during the operation."—T. P.'s London Weekly.

"JUMP, JUDY, JUMP!"

Dancing In London In the Early Part of the Last Century.

Lady Bell, writing in the London Times regarding the modern dance, quotes extracts from "The Letter Bag of Lady Elizabeth Spencer Stanhope." The following passages are taken from a letter written in 1812:

"Lady Elizabeth gave a very successful ball, where, for the first time in London, the polka was danced in public and people stood upon the chairs and rout seats to watch it * * * Mr. Theodore Hook declared that 'the obnoxious dance was calculated to lead to the most licentious consequences.' * * * Subsequently the Sporting Magazine * * * denounced the dance which, 'to the disgrace of sense and taste, has obtruded itself into the whole circle of the fashionable world. * * * a will corrupting dance. * * * a compound of immodest gesture and infectious poison.'"

On the other hand, I must also quote from the same work the admonition of an Irish lady of that period at a ball to her daughter, who was not displaying enough spirit in her dancing:

"Jump, Judy, jump! The guardsmen are looking on!"

Intellectual Humor.

The region of intellectual humor, which may be roughly illustrated by such sayings as that of George Sand that nothing is such a restorative as rhetoric or the claim advanced by a patriot that Shakespeare was undoubtedly a Scotchman on the ground that his talents would justify the supposition. The humor of George Sand's epigram depends upon the perception that rhetoric, which ought to be based upon a profound conviction, an overwhelming passion, an intense enthusiasm, is often little more than the abandonment of a personality to a mood of intoxicating ebullience, while the humor of the Shakespeare story lies in a sense of the way in which a national predilection will override all reasonable evidence.—A. C. Benson in "At Large."

The Scotch Invaders.

One of the most valiant defenders of the Scots parliament was Lord Belhaven, who delivered an eloquent oration in which a vision of Scotland undone by English invaders filled the bill. He saw poor Caledonia overrun by English traders, English attorneys, English judges—the whole nation, in fact, looking in vain for work because England had sent her aliens into every town to fill the fat places. The alarming speech produced a profound effect until Lord Marchmont suggested that Belhaven should add, "I awoke, and behold it was a dream!" And a dream it has proved, if we interpret dreams in the usual way, by contraries.—London Chronicle.

Getting Round It.

A young lady was critically examining a pair of shoes which the clerk had just fitted on. She carefully scrutinized first one foot, then the other. Finally she said slowly:

"Don't you think one of my feet is larger than the other?"

"No, indeed, madam!" replied the would be diplomatic clerk. "On the contrary, I think one is smaller than the other."—Lippincott's.

What the Trouble Was.

A man was fixing his automobile.

"Trouble?" asked a bystander.

"Some," was the laconic answer.

"What power car is it?"

"Forty horse," came the answer.

"What seems to be the matter with it?"

"Well, from the way she acts I should say that thirty-nine of the horses were dead."

Lost His Rudder.

"Dinkle says he doesn't know what to do with himself when his wife's out of town."

"I'm not surprised. However, he knows what to do with himself when she's in town, because she tells him."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Y. M. C. A. PLANS BOYS' PROGRAM

Secretary C. William Bingeman and His Associates Outline a Busy Season.

SEVERAL NEW CLASSES

Innovations in the Work Will Be Tried Out This Fall—Frequent Public Exhibitions Will Be Held—Each Class to Meet Twice a Week.

In anticipation of one of the busiest seasons of boys' work in the history of the local association, members of the Y. M. C. A. boys' work committee met with Boys' Secretary C. William Bingeman in his office last night and discussed the proposed schedule of work. James McClymont, manager of the Hall Printing Press Works, acted as chairman of the opening session of the new committee and all of the members are enthusiastic over the prospects for a banner season of work in all departments, including social, athletic, religious and altrustic activities.

Every class will have at least two sessions in the gymnasium every week under the direction of E. C. Ostlin and a competent corps of leaders, and arrangements have been made to have several of the classes meet on three different occasions weekly. In order to regulate the work in the boys' rooms of the association a new method will be tried, a definite period each afternoon being devoted to games and other attractions offered in the game rooms and library. The rooms will be open every day from 2 to 5 o'clock and the different classes will have the use of the games, etc., at regulated periods.

The gymnasium program is far more complete than that of last year and provides for marching, calisthenics, mass games, athletics, aquatics, apparatus work, basketball, and occasional exhibitions for the benefit of parents and friends interested in the boys' work. A special department of swimming will be fostered this fall and the members will be graded from beginners to those who are qualified to take the United States Volunteer Life Savings Corps' examinations. A chart of requirements for the different grades will be posted and as the boys graduate from one grade to the other the names will be posted.

The weekly Saturday morning rallies, a feature that proved so popular last season, will start tomorrow morning, when one will be conducted in the association auditorium at 9:30 o'clock. Herbert E. Parker, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will be the opening speaker and he will take for his subject, "A Big Job." The other officers will take this occasion to outline the work in their respective departments. Arrangements are being made with some of the local physicians, who are interested in boys, to give every member of the department a physical examination.

To carry out an elaborate program of Bible study work, the boys' department officers will be assisted by Randolph S. Merrill, who was the banker and clerk at the New Jersey Boys' Camp at Lake Wawayanda during the past summer. Mr. Merrill is a student volunteer and just entered the Union Theological School. He is well known to the forty Plainfield boys and fifteen leaders who attended the New Jersey camp during the past season and many of the parents of the boys who met him will rejoice to know that he is to have further work with their boys. He is a product of the boys department of Paterson, having served as chairman of the Y. M. C. A. cabinet in that city and was chairman of the State Boys' Council when it was first organized.

HOBOES STONE DETECTIVE; SIX ARE UNDER ARREST

Fifteen hoboes riding on a string of freight trains passing this city shortly after noon today stoned Jersey Central Railroad Detective Lavarette when he attempted to chase them from the cars. They then applied the brakes causing the freighters to come to a stop. As they ran in every direction from the railroad tracks, six of them were caught by patrolmen who happened to be in the vicinity.

Lavarette was struck in several places by the missles thrown by the miscreants. The men fought desperately against capture and the patrolmen had to use their clubs to subdue them. In a cell at headquarters they refused to give their names.

"DO IT FOR PLAINFIELD"

What is the call which greets our ear;
What is the summons that we hear?
What rolls down from the mountain high,
And from the plain, floats to the sky!
"Do it for Plainfield!"

It is the fact that progress comes Into our City—into our Homes!
It is, the stranger we would cheer,
And want the whole wide world to hear
"Do it for Plainfield!"

What means the call we all obey,
With hearts and hands go in the fray?
What means it that our pulses beat,
The quickening step and fevered heat?
"Do it for Plainfield!"

It means that in forthcoming days
We're going to shout our City's praise!
It means, we want mankind to know
Just what Plainfield has to show!

LOVEMAKING IN SPAIN.

It Is Done Right Out In the Open, and No One Seems to Mind It.

The best of the Alcazar is the Alcazar gardens. But I would not ignore the homelike charm of the vast court by which you enter from the street outside to the palace beyond. It is planted casually about with rather shabby orange trees that children were playing under and was decorated with the week's wash of the low, simple dwellings which may be hired at a rental moderate even for Seville, where a handsome and commodious house in a good quarter rents for $60 a year.

One of those two story cottages, as we should call them, in the antecourt of the Alcazar had for the student of Spanish life the special advantage of a lover close to a ground floor window dropping tender nothings down through the slats of the shutter to some maiden lurking within.

The nothings were so tender that you could not hear them drop, and, besides, they were Spanish nothings, and it would not have served any purpose for the stranger to listen for them. Once afterward we saw the national courtship going on at another casement, but that was at night, and here the precious first sight of it was offered at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Nobody seemed to mind the lover stationed outside the shutter with which the iron bars forbade him the closest contact, and it is only fair to say that he minded nobody. He was there when we went in and there when we came out, and it appears that when it is a question of lovemaking time is no more an object in Spain than in the United States. The scene would have been better by moonlight, but you cannot always have it moonlight, and the sun did very well; at least the lover did not seem to miss the moon.—W. D. Howells in Harper's Magazine.

CURIOUS FISHING.

Gathering In Eels With Brushes and Shrimping on Horseback.

In the Hawaiian Islands some of the native fishermen literally go into the water and chase the fish into their nets.

The sea round the shores of the islands is studded with coral reefs, in which are numerous holes and tiny caves in which the fish hide. The natives row out over there reefs, taking with them a brush about three feet in length, with very long bristles, and shallow nets, somewhat resembling a paper bag, as they are closed at one end.

As they row over the surface, seeking a likely spot, they chew a very oily fruit known as the candle nut. When they consider they have reached a good fishing ground they spit out this nut, which forms a thin film on the top of the water, over which the wind passes without leaving a ripple. This enables them to see right down into the clear sea, and if they are satisfied with the outlook they prepare to fish.

Taking the brush in one hand and the net, the mouth of which is propped open by means of a twig or two in the other, they dive noiselessly and quietly overboard. Having arrived at the face of the coral reef, they literally brush the frightened fish out of their dens, endeavoring to catch them in the net as they dart away.

There is one place at least on the coast of Belgium where they go shrimping on horseback. The trawling nets are attached to the sides of saddles carried by horses or big donkeys, and on their back men, and women, too, for that matter, ride into the sea until the animals are almost under water, when they drag the trawls behind them, walking parallel to the shore.—Stray Stories.

The right hand doubtless owes something of its prominence to the Bible. The Hebrews singled it out for special honor, and the Scriptures contain quite a hundred references in which "the right hand" is made the type and symbol of everything noble, praiseworthy and desirable. It is worth noting, however, that the tribe of Benjamin once boasted 700 left handed slingers who "could sling stones to a hair's breadth and not miss" and that among the "mighty men and helpers" of King David were many who "could use both the right hand and the left in hurling stones and shooting arrows with the bow."—London Standard.

Plain and Painful Talk.

During a senatorial investigation one time Senator Clapp experienced great difficulty in getting some information from a nervous witness.

"Now," said the senator somewhat sharply, "out with it, my man; out with it!"

"If the committee will excuse me," said the lawyer representing the witness, "I do not like the term 'Out with it!' This is not the office of a dentist."—Popular Magazine.

Merely a Matter of Spelling.

"Yes," said the very severe maiden lady, "the word 'mule' is only 'male' spelled wrongly."

"I suppose so," responded the crusty bachelor, "but according to the Latin dictionary a woman is 'mulier.'"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Human Incredulity.

Tell a man that there are 270,169,325,481 stars and he will believe you. But if a sign says "fresh paint" he will have to make a personal investigation.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Modest.

"So you want to become my son-in-law, eh?"

"Y-yes, sir—that is, if you can afford it."—Boston Transcript.

THE INCONSISTENT ANTI.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

While in one breath she regrets that the selfish suffragettes are so bent upon their cause, they won't work for better laws; that no money they will give to assist the poor to live, or to help along a home or foreign mission! In her next succeeding statement she will point to the abatement of injustices and wrongs by women borne, and enumerate long lists of reforms by suffragists, pointing out that these were made without the vote! So it really can't be true, that the suffragists don't do anything to help along the State and nation, and I'd like to ask right here if the male reformers then would be more successful men if their efforts were not hampered so by voting?

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 11.

WHAT are the CLASSIFIED columns of a newspaper? Answer: Those columns where advertisements which come under some particular classification, and only those which come under some particular classification, are published.

You, Mr., Mrs., Miss or Master Reader, you can be an advertiser. Suppose you want a Situation, or suppose you want Help. Turn to the CLASSIFIED pages. There you will find "Situations Wanted" and "Help Wanted" heads over advertisements which properly belong under those classifications. The cost of such advertising is moderate. The returns from such advertising, in the CLASSIFIED columns of this newspaper, are practically certain. DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK WHAT A GREAT PROPORTION OF A NEWSPAPER'S READERS READ ITS CLASSIFIED COLUMNS?

Suppose you don't want a Situation or don't want Help. Maybe you are looking for a "Business Chance"—maybe you have an old bookcase that you would like to sell or exchange for something else—perhaps you are looking for professional coaching in some branch of learning—maybe you want to buy or sell a second-hand sewing machine, or a piano, or a typewriter, or an automobile.

No matter what you have or what you want, you can sell or you can acquire by being an advertiser—a CLASSIFIED advertiser. The CLASSIFIED columns are the natural market-place for human wants.

Try them. Next time you have a Want, advertise it in the CLASSIFIED columns. You'll be surprised and delighted with results. You'll be one of the enlightened thousands who have learned the tremendous "pulling-power" of the little, but mighty, WANT AD.

MRS. OLIPHANT'S TALK TO 'ANTIS'

Says Suffrage is Not Meeting With Success in Colorado According to Reports.

MRS. MOORE PRESIDES

Over 100 Women Attend Meeting at Mrs. M. H. Ewart's Home—Local Organization Now Has Nearly 700 Members.

More than one hundred women gathered at the home of Mrs. M. H. Ewart, on Fairview avenue, yesterday afternoon, and listened to an inspiring address by Mrs. Claire Culp Oliphant, of Trenton, general secretary of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Plainfield branch of that association, and there was considerable enthusiasm shown in the movement, which has made much progress during the past few months.

Referring to the fact that the suffragists object to women affiliating themselves with any political party, Mrs. Oliphant said that they were taking the ground of the antis, who believe that women should hold themselves aloof from any such affiliation. The speaker said that she had attended a great many grange meetings in the State and in every case she had obtained the signature of the grange master in opposition to woman suffrage and she had also obtained the signature of the State grange master.

Mrs. Oliphant refuted the statement of the suffragists to the effect that many of the antis are millionaires, by declaring that 90 per cent. of them are wage-earners in one way or another, being physicians, lawyers, and being employed in a thousand different ways. Her experience had shown her that a majority of these women are not in sympathy with the suffrage movement, being content to busy themselves in their own particular sphere.

Turning her attention to Colorado, where there is woman suffrage, Mrs. Oliphant said that suffrage is now on trial in that State and judging from the reports received, it is not meeting with the success that the suffragists hoped for when women were given the franchise.

Throughout her talk, Mrs. Oliphant gave numerous incidents of a humorous character to prove the strength of position of the antis. She again referred to the statement that only 8 per cent. of the women of the State want to vote, and explained that despite her efforts she had been unable to secure any definite figures from the suffrage headquarters and until that time she would rely on the figures of 8 per cent.

Mrs. Constance Moore presided at the meeting and she made a short address in support of the work of the antis. Mrs. Ewart, as hostess, was called upon to close the meeting which she did by adding a few words of encouragement. It was learned that Mrs. Grace Goodwin, of Westfield, had been left $1,000 in a will in recognition of her work in behalf of the movement against suffrage.

Owing to the confusion of several dates, it was announced that the Plainfield branch would not hold any regular meeting in October, but plans are being discussed for meetings later on. The membership of the local branch is now nearly 700 and many new applications were received at yesterday's meeting.

RALLY DAY EXERCISES AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH

Special services in observance of rally day will be held at Grace M. E. church tomorrow. In the morning at 10:30 o'clock, the pastor, Rev. Charles C. Cain, will preach an appropriate sermon and at the Sunday-school service at 2:30 o'clock, the church orchestra and the choir will render a program of music. Dr. Norman H. Probasco will speak at 3:30 o'clock.

A forceful speaker has been engaged to address those who attend the Epworth League meeting at 7 o'clock and the pastor will again preach an appropriate sermon at 7:45 o'clock. The attendance at church and Sunday-school during the summer months has been excellent and the prospect for a successful fall and winter in the various departments of the church are bright.

18 CENTS WAS RIGHT.

In Clifford L. Applegate's advertisement in last night's Press two prices were given for hindquarters genuine spring lamb and legs of genuine spring lamb. These figures were 18 and 20 cents. The 10 cent price was right, the higher figure being placed in the adv. by mistake.

—There is no place in town where that next lot of envelopes can be so neatly printed as at the Daily Press office.

DECIDED NOT TO DISGUISE AS MEN

Y. W. C. A. Girls' Club Introduced New Costumes at the Last Moment.

The Sigma Gamma Kappa Club gave a reception to the girls of the freshmen class of the North Plainfield High School, last night, in the parlors of the Y. W. C. A. The decorations were simple but very attractive. The rooms were trimmed in autumn style, while the gymnasium walls were covered with pennants of various kinds.

The members of the club at first planned to dress up as men, but later decided to wear middies and bloomers while the freshmen were invite to present themselves clothed as infants.

After a word of welcome by the club president, Miss Lucy Douglas, the party took to the gymnasium and played various kinds of games. After the refreshments had been served in the reading room, the "gym" was again invaded and more fun took place. The decoration committee consisted of Miss Margaret Ewart, chairman; Amelia Brizzie, Margaret Brizzie, Margaret Vossler, Marion Avery, Anna Hull and Marjorie Burtis. Miss Dorothy Martin was chairman of the refreshment committee and she was assisted by Laura Smith and Lois Peck. Miss Edith Dalley, vice-president of the club, received the guests.

FORT ISSUES CALL FOR PROGRESSIVE CONVENTION

The call for the Progressive State convention was sent out by former Governor J. Franklin Fort, chairman of the Progressive State committee, yesterday. The convention, which takes place next Tuesday, will be held at Progressive Headquarters, 33 West State street, Trenton.

The headquarters for the campaign in behalf of former State Senator Everett Colby, in his race for the Governorship, were opened yesterday on the fourth floor of the Essex building, Newark.

RESPITE FOR PRISONER.

Charles Milford, colored, of West Third street, was given until Wednesday to pay for doctor bills accumulated by James Carter, because he knocked the latter's teeth out at a recent political meeting, at which Carter advocated the nomination of City Judge DeMeza for re-election. He will receive a jail sentence if he does not reimburse the injured man by that date.

"WHERE ARE THE DEAD?"

Under the auspices of the International Bible Students Association, F. W. Plaenker, of New York city, will deliver a free lecture tomorrow night at 7.30 o'clock, at Meyers' Hall, Park and Bartle avenues, Scotch Plains. An unusual topic, the discourse is an unusual one and has furnished food for thought to members of the many audiences Mr. Plaenker has addressed.

DEDICATE PARISH HOUSE.

Westfield, Sept. 27.—The Right Rev. John Scarborough, Bishop of New Jersey, whose first official act of nearly forty years ago was to dedicate St. Paul's Episcopal church, dedicated the handsome new $25,000 parish house adjoining the church in St. Paul's street, at an elaborate program of exercises arranged by the wardens and vestrymen of the church and carried out under the direction of the Rev. Mr. Smith, the rector.

COMELY HERALDS TO HEAD PARADE

AT NEWARK, OCT. 25

Hats to Be Worn by Marchers to Cost 25 Cents Each — Mayor Haussling to Review Fair Troopers —Dr. Shaw to Speak.

Newark, Sept. 27.—It will be recalled that on the occasion of the New York parade of suffragists in 1911, Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, Miss Sarah Fike and Miss Alberta Hill, looking like Easter card angels, told the waiting crowds that the prospective voters were approaching. Many of the voting spectators were ready to grant the ballot without waiting for the rest of the procession and that's what will probably happen when New Jersey's fair trio starts at Lincoln Park at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, October 25, and leads the other sisters down Broad street to Washington street, and around Park place to Proctor's theatre here, where Dr. Anna Howard Shaw will address a large massmeeting under the auspices of the Women's Policital Union.

Mrs. E. F. Feickert, president of the New Jersey State Woman Suffrage Association; Mrs. Abraham Van Winkle, president of the Women's Political Union of New Jersey, and Mrs. Harry Campton, president of the Equal Franchise Society, spent a wakeful night after receiving orders from the parade committee in session yesterday morning at suffrage headquarters, 33 Halsey street, that each president must choose from her society the tallest, most statuesque and altogether comely woman as its representatives. This, the presidents explained, has not so much to do with beauty of face as with general appearance, an explanation that shows the diplomacy of the suffrage leaders.

And any anti who declares that the woman will not bring economy to bear in municipal housekeeping wants to remember that the hats, which will be worn at the parade will cost but twenty cents, untrimmed, and twenty-five cents with the "Votes for Women" band. The announcement that a special arrangement with the manufacturers will enable the committee to supply headgear at that low cost will be favorably received by all women and the many men who must provide hats for their pleading wives. These hats will be on sale at the headquarters at 33 Halsey street and 79 Halsey street. The representatives of the out of town branches will give their orders at the meeting next Friday morning.

Mrs. D. W. R. Macdonald, chairman of the parade committee, will be parade marshal. There will be a large delegation of women on horseback and the committee announces that any suffragette who is desirous of riding on that day and hasn't a horse of her own handy will be able to persuade a fine specimen of that family to walk in the parade at a reduced rate by applying to the committee in charge.

At the City Hall, Mayor Haussling will review the parade and the marchers have received orders to keep their heads to the right while passing the grandstand. Some of Newark's largest stores have announced their plans to decorate their buildings with the suffrage colors the week of the parade in honor of the marchers, who, incidentally, are the shoppers of the community.

RETIRED ACTOR DIED IN HOSPITAL IN NEW YORK

Harry Guynette, 76 years old, actor and playwright, formerly of this city, but more recently of Scotch Plains, who died last Tuesday in Bellevue Hospital, New York, was buried today in the Scotch Plains cemetery.

Mr. Guynette gained fame behind the footlights as a member of the Richard Mansfield company. He had lived at Sparrow Point, Md., where he leaves a widow and one son, William Guynette. His death occurred in the New York institution after a long fight against a complication of diseases attributed to old age.

Immediately following his death, his body was taken care of by the Actors' Association, of which he was a charter member. He was also a member of the Royal Arcanum.

PASTOR'S AID LUNCHEON.

The Pastor's Aid Society of the First Presbyterian church at its meeting yesterday afternoon decided to give a luncheon the latter part of October for the benefit of the society. The date will be announced later. Mrs. J. M. Bettman as president of the society will be the general chairman.

COST BLATZ MOST TO BE A CANDIDATE

Nomination Aspirants File Their Statements of Expenditures with Clerk.

The majority of the candidates at the primaries on Tuesday last have filed their statement of expenses with City Clerk James T. MacMurray within five days, as required by law. The time-limit is September 28, but as that falls on Sunday, Monday will be the last day for filing such statements.

The Republican candidates for the city judgeship nomination expended the greatest amount, Judge W. G. DeMeza's expenses being a total of $61.80, it being $24.50 for advertising in the Courier-News; $20.50 for advertising in The Daily Press and for stationery and $16.80 for envelopes and stamps.

Francis J. Blatz, the defeated candidate for city judge, expended $23.75 for printing, and $68.25 for postage and stationery.

William T. Sharpe, member of county committee, expended $5 for advertising and Freeholder J. Hervey Doane expended $1.50 for petitions and stamps. The following certified to the city clerk that they expended nothing:

Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., county committee; Theodore Martin, Common Council; Fred Endress, freeholder; Jeremiah Callahan, freeholder; Stephen Haff, Common Council, John Coyle, Common Council; Howard G. Lapsley, Common Council; David Coleman, Common Council; John Connelly, county and city committee; Daniel Couraine, county committee; Edward Strappe, city committee; John Conway, city committee; John Casey, county committee; John O'Keefe, city and county committee; Robert Scott, county and city committee; Patrick J. The weekly dance of the Dunbar Social and Educational Club held last night in the Washington School, was more successful than any given this month, over 86 persons enjoying a program rendered by Seymour Van Blake, Edward Blair and Fred White. A note of thanks was tendered Miss Lois Nutting by the members and friends of the club, for her efforts in the past toward making the affairs given at the Washington School so delightful. The note also contained regrets that she is forced to leave this city for New York.

LOCAL ENTRANTS SCORE VICTORIES

Donnybrook Farm's Horses Make Fine Showing at Morristown.

Military mounts proved to be the most important feature of the second day's session of the Morristown Field Club horse show yesterday, and a popular victory was the outcome of the work of the judges, one of which was Lewis E. Waring, of this city, who announced that W. S. Mitchell's bay gelding Charger was the best of those shown. Capt. W. A. Bryant of Essex Troop, Newark, managed to corral second honors with First Call, while Saginor, the enry of Thomas B. Clarke, Jr., of Plainfield gathered in the yellow ribbon for third place.

Lion Heart, a gelding, accorded second honors in the class for ladies' hunters, which was ridden by Mrs. J. J. O'Donohue (Miss Caroline Pryce), of this city, gave a demonstration of bad temper, but just prior to the time when he was to be placed in the hands of the judges, with the aid of several grooms, he was quieted down and shown to such advantage as to gain the red. In this class Moonblossom, ridden by Miss Mary Pyne, of Bernardsville, gathered in the chief honors, while third place was accounted for by a stable mate, Vanity.

Donnybrook Farm's Merry Widow made the best impression in the hunters' class, which opened up the afternoon's proceedings, and which called out the largest field of the session. The entry of the O'Donohue's was closely pressed by Isnow, which was sent in by K. B. Schley, of Far Hills, whose performance was considered to have been excellent, while W. Symmes Richardson's Ironmonger received third.

HOBOES ARRAIGNED FOR STEALING RIDES

Three Are Fined and Six Get Suspended Sentences in the City Court.

James Kelly, Charles Engle and George Rice, John Brookes, William MacNeil, Charles Yohne, of Bayonne; William Allen, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; William Mollar, of Philadelphia, and Patrick Honan, of Ann street, this city, a gang of hoboes, which engaged in a fight with Detective Lavarette, of the New Jersey Central, yesterday, when discovered stealing a ride on one of the company's freight trains, were arraigned in the city court, this morning. The first three named prisoners were fined $5 each, and the rest got off with suspended sentences.

A stirring tale of the fight was related before City Judge W. G. DeMeza, this morning. According to the testimony the fight occurred in the Fanwood "cut." Lavarette was in the woods nearby when he noticed the gang riding on a freight and signalled the engineer to stop.

The hoboes were "wise" and when they saw the detective coming after them they began pelting him with rocks, forcing the latter to retreat. The detective then boarded a passenger train coming to Plainfield in advance of the gang. Then with the aid of patrolmen from the local police department he was able to capture nine of the fifteen "knights of the road." It was learned that the prisoners had been to the Great Allentown Fair.

WILSON SUPPORTERS WILL BE IN CONTROL

Their Domination of Democratic State Convention is Certain Now.

Control of the Democratic platform convention at Trenton next Tuesday appears assured to the supporters of the Progressive principles laid down by President Wilson when Governor. Twenty-eight Assembly candidates are counted upon as certain to uphold the Wilson policies in the convention and elsewhere, including the three aspirants in Union county, William A. Leonard, John J. Griffin and Grank V. Dobbins.

Twenty other Assembly candidates are claimed by James R. Nugent, of Newark, while twelve are listed as doubtful. Five of the nominees for State Senator are classed as Wilson men and three as close to Mr. Nugent. Five of the holdover Senators are Wilson exponents, and only two are with Mr. Nugent.

Besides the present Senators and those aspiring to be Senators, and Assemblymen, the candidates for Governor and the State committeemen participate in the platform convention. The Gubernatorial candidate, James F. Fielder, is a supporter of the President, while the committee is likewise favorable to the Wilson policies.

If every vote viewed as doubtful is given Mr. Nugent, together with all those who have been friendly to him in the past, the Wilson side would still control the convention by 56 to 41. The margin is more apt to be larger, however.

Senator Martens, of Hunterdon county, who was elected State committeeman on Tuesday, will not be entitled to two votes in the convention, despite the two credentials he will have to participate in it.

EXHIBITION OF POTTERY.

The Gift Shop on North avenue announces today that there will be an exhibition of pottery, Fulper Vase Kraft at its shop today, and all persons interested are invited to attend the exhibition of noteworthy pottery, consisting of many odd and useful things never before made in pottery. The exhibition will be open until 6 o'clock tonight.

WEDDINGS IN NEWARK

Marriages Performed by Rev. Elliott White at Grace Church—Parents Get Telegrams Announcing the Double Wedding.

Telegrams received from the happy couples this afternoon apprised two well known North Plainfield families of the marriage of William Henry Nischwitz and his sister, Miss Harriet Ruth Nischwitz, children of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Nischwitz, of Fairview avenue, respectively, to Miss Frances Mable Betz, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Betz, of New Paltz, N. Y., and William T. Woodruff, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Woodruff, of Westervelt avenue. Neither family knew of the proposed plans for the weddings, which had evidently been carefully arranged and when they learned of the double ceremony this afternoon they were much surprised.

Mr. Woodruff left his home this morning informing his parents that he was going to Newark to act as best man at the wedding of his chum, and his fiancee was going to attend the bride, but when asked by suspecting parents if he purposed to be married at the same time he evaded the question. Mr. Woodruff and Miss Nischwitz attended Mr. Nischwitz and Miss Betz as the young man announced to his parents that he would but the best man and bridesmaid were married immediately afterwards by the same minister, the previously married couple attending their friends.

The double ceremony was performed at noon today in the Grace church in Newark by the Rev. Elliott White and the two couples left immediately afterward for a short honeymoon trip and on returning they will occupy apartments together in the Manning building in this city. All of the parties are well known in this city, having taken prominent parts in many social functions held here. The bridegrooms formerly attended the local public schools and have both been life-long residents of this city. Miss Betz, although she comes from New York State, has spent much of her time in Plainfield and has become known to a wide circle of acquaintances. Mr. Woodruff is employed by the Public Service Gas Department at its offices on Park avenue.

Mr. Nischwitz is the son of Henry Nischwitz, Sr., who is engaged in the grain and feed business in the borough. Mr. Woodruff's father is a New York custom house broker and is a member of the North Plainfield Board of Education.

FACTS AND COMMENT ON NEW YORK NEWS

New York, Sept. 27.—The body of Mayor Gaynor has been laid to rest in Greenwood cemetery and the slow grinding motion of the municipal machine has been resumed after the short interruption during the funeral services. If there was need for any evidence to prove that the city, that means, the great bulk of the people of Greater New York held their chief executive in high esteem, such evidence, in a conclusive form was furnished by the universal manifestation of sorrow over Mayor Gaynor's premature death, as displayed at the funeral. Practically all business was at a standstill during the greater part of the day and the streets around the City Hall, in the vicinity of Trinity church and the streets through which the funeral procession passed, were packed with countless thousands of citizens, desirous to give expression by their presence and dignified attitude to their respect for the dead Mayor, and to their sorrow over his demise. De Mortuis Nil Nisi Bene—Mayor Gaynor was a Man, written with a capital M—he had his faults and shortcomings like every other human being, but his faults were not those of a pygmy—they did not interfere with his greatness as a man and as the head of a great municipality.

Dr. M. G. Schlapp, of the Post Graduate Hospital, which is the clearing house for defectives for the city has made the statement that there are 15,000 mentally defective children and adults in New York city and more than 35,000 in the State of New York. That is a rather disquieting statement and the health authorities, the courts and the police authorities of the city and the State will do well to give this matter serious consideration. Dr. Schlapp considers this state of things a great danger to the commonwealth. No only is it an established fact that a large percentage of criminals come from the defective class, but it is also clearly understood that through unrestrained intermarriage between defectives criminal strains, insanity and vicious tendencies are transmitted to a steadily increasing number of descendants. Dr. Schlapp points to the fact that the State institutions are capable only to accommodate about 6,000 of these defectives and that some provision should be made to establish additional institutions for the segregation of defectives. He also advocates strongly the passage of laws that would make the segregation and detention of defectives compulsory and would prevent their being turned loose upon the community at the whim of their friends and relations, as is the case at present.

At Monticello, N. Y., not far from this city, a merry war between two rival moving picture houses is in progress and the people of Monticello are enjoying a good time while the war lasts. For a long time there was but one moving picture house in Monticello. Having the field all to itself the house made no special efforts to attract patronage. Some time ago, however, a New Jersey company built another moving picture house in Monticello and soon there was keen rivalry between the two theatres. One of the houses began the war by advertising six reels and the other house came back by offering seven reels. Then the first house advertised eight reels and the rival house promptly answered the challenge by advertising eleven reels and steam heat. To outdo their competitor the owners of the other house engaged two operators and advertised an all-night show, inviting their patrons to stay as long as they pleased. The house was packed until daylight. Nobody can tell how far this rivalry would have gone, had it not been for the ice cream and restaurant men who found that all-night movies materially interfered with their business. They joined in a petition to the authorities of the town, to prohibit moving picture houses from showing more than six reels. This put a temporary stop to the rivalry of the two houses, but until the village board passes the ordinance desired by the restaurant and ice cream men, the people of Monticello will continue to enjoy the benefits of this merry war.

While New York is overwhelmed with candidates for the position of Mayor, Milltown, N. J., is in the peculiar predicament of having three tickets in the field for the coming election without a candidate for Mayor on any of them. The present Mayor of Milltown, Conrad Richter, could have things all his own way, but owing to ill health he has refused to be a candidate for re-election. Efforts were made by each of the three parties in the field to induce someone to accept a nomination for the mayoralty, but nobody seemed anxious for the honor and the result is that all tickets had to be printed without giving the name of a candidate for mayor. The voters will have to fill in the names of their respective choice for mayor and it is believed that Mayor Richter will be re-elected against his will and desire.

After having been separated forty years, two brothers accidentally met in a New York hotel under the most extraordinary circumstances. F. C. Waldman, of Sydney, Australia, who has been stopping at the Hotel Astor on his trip around the world, was sitting in the main dining room the other evening when a page passed among the tables, shouting: "Call Mr. Waldman." Supposing that a call was for him, F. C. Waldman took the message. Not until then did he discover that it was addressed to F. C. Waldman and not intended for him. He returned the message to the page, and his curiosity having been aroused, he left his unfinished meal and followed the page, who continued his search for S. C. Waldman. At last an elderly man claimed the message and his namesake introduced himself to him and explained why he had opened the message. The two Waldmans conversed a few minutes and presently, to the surprise of the other persons in the lobby, the two gray-haired men embraced each other. They had found that they were brothers who had been separated more than forty years. More than forty years ago they had left Berlin after the death of their parents and embarked in a sailing vessel for Australia. The ship was wrecked off the Australian coast and the crew and passengers were forced to take to the boats. The boats became separated and as the two boys were in separate boats and were landed at different points, they could not find each other and gave each other up for lost. While one of the brothers remained in Australia, the other returned to Europe and eventually to Berlin, where he is now established in business. They never saw each other again until they met by accident in the lobby of the Hotel Astor.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1913.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is C. William Bingeman, Boys' Secretary of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A.

BOYS—"WHAT ARE THEY GOOD FOR ANYHOW?"

A well dressed gentleman crossing a street in New York city was incensed to a high degree by having a bundle of papers with a small boy back of them run into him rather violently; and with a push at the youngster he was heard to say: "Get out of the way. What are you good for anyhow?" The small boy heard the question and felt the rough treatment and squaring his little shoulders replied: "They make men of kids like us."

To make men the place to start is where manhood begins. This definition of a boy is by one who has been in close touch with boys for the past twenty years: "The boy is a many sided animal, with budding tastes, clamorous appetites, primitive likes and dislikes, varied interests, an idealist and hater of shams, a reservoir of nerve force, a bundle of contradictions, a lover of fun but a possible lover of the best, a loyal friend of his true friends, impulsive, erratic, impressionable to a high degree."

Boys are the rough material of which men are made. With each passing year his range of possibilities is limited and his pathway becomes more definite until finally he chooses, or as is too often the case, drifts into the activity that will claim his time.

Every stage in his life is an important one. Every boy a separate and individual case. Vision, patience, long suffering, and careful planning and study are necessary for the mother, the father, the teacher and for all who would live with boys.

Who is the responsible leader for the boy? To the Spartan lad the father was the hero. Too many fathers today are relegated to the background because they are rooters rather than players in the activities which most inspire boys. "Christie" Mathewson and others prominent in National and local sports take the place that the father held in the olden days. The father who after smoking for twenty odd years stopped for no other reason than that he could stimulate his boy in the higher way, did one thing that counts much with his boy. If a father would bring his son to an honorable estate let him exhibit it in his own life.

It is a comfort to feel that there are a few touches which when applied, work for good always. Strive to keep him happy and to understand him. Watch closely the changing times in his life. He may be slow to put away some of the childhood acts but he expects women to be women and men to be men. Baby talk may be all right for babies but dignity and your best will win in your dealings with the coming man. Imagine the shock to the fond mother, who bidding her boy good night by calling to him, "good night, Lammy," heard him reply with a kick on the stair, "don't call me lammy. Call me Billy Goat." Expect everything of him but demand nothing. Be honest with him. Play fair. Make it as easy for him as you can to do the thing that is right. "Use him, rather than simply amuse him," is a good standard.

In these days when physical training is so popular and so accessible the teaching of two great and powerful lessons is possible; first the spirit and the meaning of TEAM PLAY and second the spirit and the meaning of a SACRIFICE HIT. To give a boy a thorough understanding of these is to give him the very highest type of boy religion.

The mother it is who holds the touch that charms. One of our young and successful business men told a young fellow, on the eve of his departure for college, how that it was the memory of the close relationship of his mother that held him and kept him in the way that means for health and right while he was away from home. The natural, beautiful story of his birth told in frankness and in truth at the opportune time by the mother will open that realm of life where he will always have it in his heart to be before every woman, regardless of her color, creed, social standing or position in life, a clean, strong Christian gentleman. On this ideal rests the self and the home and when these are on a solid foundation the State is secure.

5,000 MARRIAGE LICENSES ARE SAID TO BE ILLEGAL

Hoboken, Sept. 27.—Considerable excitement was occasioned here yesterday by the allegation that Joseph Tucker, clerk of the Board of Health, who has been acting as clerk of vital statistics, had in the last three years issued more than 5,000 illegal marriage licenses.

A legislative enactment of 1895 provides that in second-class cities with a population of 50,000 or more the city clerk shall act as clerk of vital statistics, and an enactment of 1910 stipulates that the clerk of vital statistics shall issue the marriage licenses.

The question, however, of whether or not the approximatey 1,800 couples a year who have been married the last three years under licenses issued here are invalid is settled in the negative. The law expressly provides that when a marriage license is illegally issued, the marriage shall be valid if it is valid in all other respects.

Mr. Tucker when informed of the situation refused to make any statement, but immediately got into communication by telephone with the office of Attorney-General Wilson.

ENTERTAINMENT HELD AT TEMPLE BAPTIST

An entertainment for the purpose of arousing interest in Sunday school and church work, preparatory to the rally day service tomorrow morning, was held at the Temple Baptist church last night. The affair was an informal one and was largely attended. L. W. Randolph, superintendent of the Sunday school, made the opening address of welcome, introducing O. F. Dickson, of Arlington, an elocutionist of considerable ability. He entertained with a number of selections.

James E. Church spoke on behalf of the Home department and efficiency in Bible study. Rev. Evarts C. Conover, the pastor, spoke on the theme of "Closer Fellowship between the Spuday school and church work." A feature was the instrumental music furnished by members of the church and school. Rally day services will be held at the church at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. There will be no preaching at this service, the whole service being devoted to the school.

CATHOLICS THREATEN TO SUE THE MENACE

Determined Now to Put a Stop to Slanderous Articles on Church.

Trenton, Sept. 27.—Sensational charges of libel will undoubtedly be entered against "The Menace," an anti-Catholic paper of Aurora, Missouri, by the Catholics of the country, for the publication of an article alleging immoral doings in a nunnery at Camden, N. J.

Right Rev. James A. McFaul, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Trenton, who has been investigating the matter, declares that the sisters have no connection with the Camden case at all, and claims the whole story a vile slander. He said that a woman fainted on the opposite side of the street from a convent in Camden and that she gave her name as Mrs. Nun. It is also claimed that a reporter of the paper in question clipped off the "Mrs." and invented the rest of the story.

The bishop says he intends to make a thorough investigation of the whole case. He has engaged legal talent and when all the details have been collected, if his legal advisers think they have a case, the whole power of the American Federation of Catholic Societies and of the different dioceses of the United States will be brought to bear against the "Menace" publishers and they will be brought to justice no matter what may be the expense. An effort will also be made to bar the publication from the mails on the grounds of obscenity.

Up to this time the paper is said to have dealt only in generalities in referring to the Catholic bishops, priests and nuns. Now that it has mentioned a particular convent the church authorities have decided to appear against it in court.

SERVICES TOMORROW AT TRINITY CHURCH

The fall and winter schedule of services will be resumed at Trinity Reformed church, tomorrow. The morning service will begin at 10.30 o'clock the Bible school will resume its afternoon sessions at 2.30 o'clock with a rally day program. Every member of the school is requested to be present. Several members of the Dutch Arms Concert Band will be in attendance to assist in the program. The members of the congregation and home department are also invited. There will be graduation exercises of the beginners, primary, junior and intermediate departments and the pastor's teacher training class will receive diplomas.

MUSICAL SERVICE AT FIRST, M E. TOMORROW

The first musical service of the fall season will be given by the quartet of the First M. E. church tomorrow evening, under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist and choirmaster. The organist has departed from the well-trodden path of giving a standard oratorio and upon the request of many members and friends of the congregation has decided to give an evening of old and familiar anthems, duets and solos. While the program would indicate real old anthems, still during the many years of their continued use in the public worship, they have never lost their style and beauty and will doubtless be appreciated by those who have gained comfort and inspiration from them. The program follows:

Organ, "Largo," Handel; "Savior When Night Involves the Skies," Shelley; "The Homelight," Macey, offertory, "Hark, Hark My Soul," Shelley; "Seek Ye the Lord," Roberts; "Love Divine," Stainer; "Face to Face," Johnston; "Abide With Me," Cruickshank. The quartette is composed of the following: Miss Gabrielle Drosse, soprano; Miss Ethel Kinnamon, contralto; Aleck MacGowan, tenor; Edgar Cole, baritone.

Smith, who died suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Emma Caffee in Lincoln, on Thursday afternoon, after a lingering illness, will be held on Monday afternoon. SALESMAN DENIES KNOWING MRS. LEONARD'S WHEREABOUT

Elizabeth, Sept. 27.—Gray B. Lester, a furniture salesman, who has been employed by firms in this city and Newark, is in custody at police headquarters on a technical "charge" of "suspicion." The police say that he knows something about the disappearance and whereabouts of Mrs. John F. Leonard, of 457 Elizabeth avenue.

Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein and detectives questioned Lester at police headquarters, but he claimed he knew nothing about the Leonard woman. She had left her home Monday night. Her husband, who conducts a laundry, told the police that he believed she was "kidnapped."

Just what grounds there are for holding Lester neither the police nor prosecutor will state. Mrs. Leonard is twenty-six years old and has two small children both of whom she left at home. She was reported to be in Bellevue Hospital, New York, Thursday, but is was a cose of mistaken identity.

DRIVER BADLY HURT BY TRAIN

Milk Wagon Struck by Express and Horses Are Killed.

Camden, N. J., Sept. 27.—A train on the West Jersey and Seashore railroad struck a milk wagon at the Liberty street crossing in this city, killing the horses, wrecking the wagon and injuring the driver, Howard Sage, of 954 South Ninth street, so seriously that he may not recover. He was taken to the Cooper hospital.

The wagon belonged to the Lawnton dairies, at Mount Ephraim avenue and Pear street. Sage had driven the team across the railroad before and was familiar with the train service. The team was about to cross the tracks when a train bound to this city from Haddonfield, N. J., struck it.

One horse was cut in half, and the other was carried along the fender of the locomotive for several blocks. Sage was hurled in the air, and his head struck the tracks. His skull was fractured and his face badly cut.

Caldwell, 81 High street. For several weeks Bishop Bowman has been confined to his bed, and he is steadily growing weaker. His physician says his death is a matter of only a few days.

Until his present illness came on Bishop Bowman was in good health. He has dedicated 1,100 churches, one or more in every state of the Union. In 1865 he had warned President Lincoln that he was in danger of being assassinated, and five days later Lincoln was killed.

DOCTORS' CORPS IN THE Y. M. C. A.

Local Physicians Will Furnish Innovation in Local Association Work.

TESTS MANDATORY

All Members Will Have to Pass Medical Examinations Before Using Gymnasium—Elaborate Program of Work Proposed.

One of the innovations to be introduced into Y. M. C. A. work in this city, which has proven a success in other cities, was inaugurated this morning at an open meeting of the boys' department when Physical Director E. C. Ostlin outlined a plan he had adopted for physical examinations for every member of the association. A corps of six local physicians, including Drs. D. T. Blair, Norman H. Probasco, Edward S. Krans, H. D. Corbusier, C. B. Lufburrow and Sidney S. Titsworth, have agreed to give their services. It means that the members of the association this year will be tested in a scientific way. Never before in the history of the local associations have members been examined by a corps of physicians and the only requisite has been a physical director's certificate. Hereafter a person failing to pass the necessary tests will not be permitted to use the association gymnasium until he brings his deficiency up to the standard.

The first of the examinations will be held next Tuesday afternoon when Mr. Ostlin has registered nearly fifty boys to undergo a physical test and those passing the requirements will be permitted to enter into the boys' department activities which open Monday, October 6.

A large number of boys attended the opening sessio ncalled by Boys' Secretary C. William Bingeman this morning in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium and listened to a carefully prepared outline of the proposed season's work.

All of the association officials made announcements in regard to their particular lines of work. Herbert E. Parker, general secretary, spoke to the members on "A Big Job," using for his illustrations facts and figures relating to the greatest of engineering feats, that of transforming a big ditch into a navigable waterway to be known in commerce hereafter as the Panama Canal.

C. William Bingeman, who led the meeting, welcomed the fellows into a new era of boys' department work and the enthusiasm at the opening sesion indicated that this coming season would be a banner one in the local Y. M. C. A. work. Following the talks by the various officials, one reel of motion pictures was thrown on the screen showing a "Boys' City," with self government and an array of novel activities that were attractively as well instructively portrayed.

Mr. Ostlin will introduce many new ideas in the work of the senior department during the coming fall and winter and has made extensive changes in the schedule of work in that special division. Instead of promoting a Color League as was the case last year, and which proved to be popular, Mr. Ostlin has organized a Number League.

MR. BARNEY ESCAPES FROM THE BOROUGH

Gains His Liberty and All Efforts to Re-capture Him Prove Futile.

"Whatdya mean you lost your monkey." Friends of D. G. Verschuur, of 34 Washington avenue, have asked him this question several times today, all because a servant carelessly opened a window while "Barney," a pet monkey imported from Africa, was roaming about the dining room—and of course Barney, seeing his dreams of liberty suddenly realized, disappeared.

Of course there are no cocoanut trees in Washington street, but all trees looked alike to Barney in his scramble for freedom, and so, when the excited servant ran to grab the creature, monkey promptly ascended the first tree-trunk he saw. And when a nimble boy, prompted by the offer of a large tip, climbed to the lofty perch occupied by the African, Mr. Barney was not to be fooled. Scrambling to the tip of a limb, with a nimble spring he landed in an adjoining tree and repeated the feat as often as any one tried to reach him. Evidently thinking he was safer many miles away, the monkey went from tree to tree in quick succession and is gone. Although followed by a crowd of youngsters, Barney finally lost his pursuers and a monkey is less in the borough.

Barney was a great favorite of the Verschuur household. He was given to Mr. Verschuur by a relative, Captain DeBrown, who is commander in a craft plying between Europe and Africa. The "monk" has been in American just two months.

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY OPENS 167TH YEAR'S WORK

Princeton, Sept. 27.—Princeton University has opened for its 167th academic year. President John Grier Hibben has outlined a new system of final honor work by upper class men and will recognize the efforts of men who make study the primary object of their college lives.

This system provides that a student who for his freshman and sophomore years has maintained good rank shall be eligible for final special honors. He may then select one department in which he will specialize, taking two of his four courses in it.

Dr. Hibben has also announced the dedication of Princeton's new graduate college, which will be opened October 22. It is expected that virtually all of the prominent universities and colleges of this country will be represented at the dedication. Word has been received that many European institutions will be represented also.

SCHEME TO CUT OUT EIGHT COAST ROAD DANGER SPOTS

Trenton, Sept. 27.—Commissioner Lippincott, of the Department of Motor Vehicles, has forwarded to State Road Commissioner Stevens blueprint plans prepared by County Engineer L. M. Rice, of Cape May, indicating a way in which one of the main arteries of travel to the coast could be so changed as to eliminate eight dangerous grade crossings. In his letter to Mr. Stevens, Mr. Lippincott said:

"Upon examination of the inclosed map, it would seem that by changing two and three-quarter miles of road, this very important result could be obtained. I am informed that the people in this community are very anxious that this stretch of road should be altered in accordance with the plan proposed. They have submitted this sketch to the motor vehicle department because of the activities which we have undertaken in eliminating dangerous grade crossings.

"I am in favor of any scheme which would tend to eliminate grade crossings, and this plan appeals to me as a practical method of doing so. I am informed by the local authorities of Cape May county that the railroads would be very glad to give assistance to the State authorities in this matter.

Take an inventory of her housewares and fill in the gaps at the great savings offered in the September Sale of Housewares

Next Monday and Tuesday being the last two days of the month are also the last two days of the sale.

The very lowest saving is ten per cent. from the usual prices; but on the larger part of the articles the economies are from twenty to thirty per cent.; on a great many they amount to forty and fifty per cent.

Please bear in mind that the greatest housewares store in the world is making this offer to the women of the home.

Why not let this list be as a guide in going over your stock of household articles—

Tinware	Brushes	Sewing Machines	Bird Cages
Woodenware	Chamois	Dress Forms	Andirons
Cutlery	Brooms	Trunks	Enamelware
Trunks	Casseroles	Carpet Sweepers	Japanned Ware
Refrigerators	Chafing Dishes	Brass Ware	Medicine Cabinets
Dusters	5 o'Clock Tea Kettles	Aluminum Ware	Nickel Bathroom Fixtures and Stools
	Mirrors	Iron Ware

Then Monday morning—Tuesday at the latest—pay a visit to the Wanamaker Housewares Store and be one of the many thousands of women who have this month shared in its economies.

Subway Store, New Building.

The Housewife's Corner

Linen pillow cases, towels, table cloths and fancy pieces of special interest, will be offered in the Wanamaker Linen Store—Monday.

Linen Pillow Cases, attractively embroidered, are now 75c each, because they are soiled. All may be had in matching pairs. They were made to sell originally at $1.25 each.

Huck Towels, heavy, with good sturdy flax, are $3 dozen; after these are sold we cannot duplicate them.

Scalloped Napkins in large sizes are now $4.50 dozen; they were originally made to sell for $10.

Table Cloths and Napkins from Ireland are of double damask in the popular designs of chrysanthemum, carnation, poppy and morning glory. Table cloths, $3.50 to $5; matching napkins, $4 and $5 dozen.

Odd Linens and other pieces, soiled with handling, include bureau scarfs, tea cloths, centerpieces, tray covers and embroidered and lace trimmed table cloths. They are now one-quarter to one-half less than the original prices.

Linen Store, First floor, Old Building.

One of the greatest of our recent accomplishments —the first of the new instruments to arrive—is

The Lindeman-Angelus Player-Piano at $585

The player-piano is the piano of the future—of TODAY.

The ANGELUS was the first and is today the finest player the world has yet produced. The LINDEMAN piano is one of America's oldest pianos, its manufacture having been continued without a halt since 1836.

The LINDEMAN-ANGELUS is the first of the Angelus player-pianos to be offered under $650.

There is no player-piano comparable with it at or near its price.

No matter how well pleased you may be with any other player-piano, come and see and hear the LINDEMAN-ANGELUS. You will be very agreeably surprised.

It has good lines; no earmarks of a player; pedals, when not in use, are hidden away in the bottom of the case; the phrasing lever, melodant and melody buttons of the Angelus are under a frame which set off the keyboard and is part of the case design.

If you want to use it as a player-piano, turn down the frame—key-slip is its trade name—and the pedals automatically drop out, ready for use.

When you have finished playing, step sharply on one of the pedals, and presto! the pedals spring back into the case. Turn up the key-slip and you have a piano once more; a piano which any musician is delighted to play.

The Quality of Its Tone is Beautiful

It is a home-tone; mellow and rich; especially adapted for use in the average size living room; a tone that reaches to the walls and softly loses itself; good to sing to; splendid to dance to.

More fully than by any except the most accomplished pianist are the values of the Lindeman tone brought out by the ANGELUS. What is the result? Music is produced in its finest possible form, a delight to all who hear it, and most attractive to the children, who are drawn by it to learn to play by hand.

Terms of Purchase Are Reasonable

The Wanamaker Educational Plan was designed for the convenience of those who do not desire to pay at time of purchase the full cost of a piano.

A small first payment, and the balance in convenient deferred payments fixed to suit the reasonable convenience of the purchaser, make it possible for any home to begin to enjoy the wonderful music of the LINDEMAN-ANGELUS tomorrow.

Proper allowance for pianos taken in exchange.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 12.

DISPOSING of what you have or getting what you want is no longer a matter of luck.

It's a matter of going after the people whom you want to reach.

Thomas Dreier, editor of "Associated Advertising," the official organ of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, said in a letter which I received from him recently: "The way to get what you want is to find out the man who's got it, and then go after him and hang on."

And isn't that good logic? Isn't it a fact that none of us is really independent—that we are all interdependent—that the things one man has serve to supply the needs of some other man—that we are all subject to the great law of Supply and Demand?

Take the WANT ADS., for instance. Do they not form a daily market place where the man who wants to sell can get in touch with the man who wants to buy—where the woman who wants a domestic can get the attention of the domestic who wants a job—where the man who is looking for a position can reach the eye of the employer who is looking for men?

I venture the assertion that eight persons in every ten have never thought about, and consequently never realized, the far-reaching power of the CLASSIFIED columns in their daily newspaper.

The people who use the WANT ADS. aren't trusting to luck.

They are going after what they want in a mighty quick, sure and inexpensive way.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

Marriage As Economy.

There are probably hundreds of young men who feel that they "can't afford to get married." Some of them receive a few hundred dollars a year for their labor, some of them receive as many thousand. In a way their problem is the same.

And it is a recognized problem. Miss Jane Addams thinks it is one of the saddest aspects of American life—this inability of young men to marry because they are too poor to do so.

Why Too Poor?

But what are the happiness-destroying standards set up by the young men and women of the day worth? Why must a girl name one servant and a house with electric lights as the minimum equipment which will bribe her to keep house? Or perhaps it is no servant but an apartment with an elevator, or perhaps not this but some smaller but just as knotty condition. And why must a man think that the woman he marries must not work? Why is he afraid to ask her to marry him until he feels able to provide her with all the luxuries or comforts she has been used to in her girlhood?

Our European sisters—or is it the brothers?—have taught us one way around this difficulty. There the woman of moderate circumstances, who marries a man of moderate circumstances, expects to help increase the family income. Take the case of a tradesman. The wife helps in the store, and feels the work no whit beneath her dignity. She is earning the wage of a capable, interested and faithful assistant, and it is to her good as well as to that of her employer to make the business grow. She need not neglect her home because of her work in the store, for she is on part time. She works in the store in the busiest hours, perhaps; for, if she takes charge of the books and the business end, perhaps she does this in the evenings, and early in the morning.

Perhaps the moderately circumstanced in America are waking up to the possibility of married economy. At a college of pharmacists it was said not long ago that a number of women had taken and were taking the pharmacist's course there so that they could be their husband's assistants. In many States there is a law saying that no pharmacy shall be open for a minute unless there is a graduate pharmacist on duty in it. Now it is impossible for a single man to stay on duty from eight in the morning until ten at night. He must, therefore, hire an assistant as well trained as himself to relieve him whenever he goes off duty for meals and rest. And if his wife is a graduate pharmacist she can take this position—it is interesting, and gives her delightful occupation—and so save the high wage of another pharmacist. Together she and her husband get their living from their business, a business which they build up and cherish together.

So after all, if only the man and the woman are both willing to do their share, there is a way to marr even when you can't afford to.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

The things that thoughtful, patriotic women are striving for are so well described by Mrs. Stannard, of the Mothers' Congress, that I venture to repeat them from Wednesday's Press, adding a comment or two when appropriate to show how successfully, although in some cases slowly, these results are being brought about throughout the union.

* * *

Would Advance Civilization.

1. The women of this age are fighting for an infinitely finer and higher civilization than the world has ever known. The purpose, as exemplified in the work of the Mothers' Congress, for example, means that we are definitely waging war against the forces that pull civilization back and fighting for the forces that help it forward.

Seek Home Employment.

2. We are fighting to improve the home in every department. The home represents with absolute fidelity the degree of understanding to which the parents have evolved. Therefore, in order to improve the home, we must train the home makers first.

Must Protect Children.

3. We are fighting to rouse the whole nation to a sense of its duty toward children. It is to the children we must look for the achievements of the future, for the civilization of the future. We cannot do too much toward laying the right foundations

Colorado, as the boys, and yet women have been voting there for twenty years or more.

* * *

Want Trained Fathers.

4. We want our men to have higher standards of morality and a deeper sense of the sacredness and purity of marriage. Therefore we are fighting for the education of the young men as future fathers and founders of homes. We believe in training men for fatherhood, as well as in training girls for motherhood.

Would Teach Girls Executive Work.

5. We want our girls of the present day to learn how to do the executive work of a home—this is what the modern girl must learn if she would be a true success in the womanly profession of wife and mother.

Want Higher Standard for Men.

6. We want our girls to insist upon higher standards and closer habits in the young men with whom they associate. I think it is a girl's duty to refuse to condone even the smaller vices indulged in by her men friends and thus establish at the start a rule of conduct from which they will not dare to depart, at least while claiming her friendship.

Must Rouse Leisured Women.

7. We want the women of leisure, the women of means, to use their time and their influence in the great upward and onward movement for better social conditions. The woman of leisure is the free lance in society and it is she who has the big opportunities to further civilization.

Girl of Leisure Must Help.

8. We want the girl of leisure, the girl with the exceptional advantage for culture, to give herself to the study of the vital problems affecting the race. Her influence may be unbounded, for she has the ways and the means to do great things. She should turn her talents, her brain, her culture, to the end that really means most to humanity—the study of home-building in the largest sense.

* * *

Look at our women and girls of leisure now. There are few that do not realize that part of their time, at least, must be given to studying and bettering conditions. And a large proportion of these workers are strongly opposed to woman suffrage.

* * *

Would Promote Efficiency.

9. We are fighting for greater efficiency in our young people, in all practical matters of life. Especially do we want to see girls and women of today well trained, thoroughly equipped, in household arts. The girls of today are sadly lacking in such usefulness. Why, how many girls of the present day can actually run a house, as their mothers can do it? How many girls can do the buying?

A girl should know all these things and more than that, she should do them. A girl should be taught to buy her own clothes, should be taught the value of a dollar.

But the young woman of today depends on her mother, or perhaps the mother insists upon doing these things herself, as she thinks she is a better judge of values and can buy more economically

I don't think Mrs. Stannard comes much in contact with the present day girl. It is their efficiency that makes it possible for so many of the older women to accomplish what they do for bettering conditions.

Mrs. Stannard says we need the ballot to accomplish these ends. But so long as we can point to great results all along the line brought about without the vote, why plunge ourselves into the quagmire of politics to gain a very problematical good. "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush."

How a vote would help in cases 4, 5 and 6, I fail to see, while I do see that it might have certain hurtful effects. We certainly can't vote for higher standards and home training. Those can be brought about only by public opinion.

No, to do the best work we women want to keep out of the maelstrom of politics.

PRESERVING QUINCES.

QUINCES should never be stored in air tight boxes or other vessels, for they will then develop a strong odor and flavor which are disagreeable. If stored they should be placed in the attic or laid out in some open place until they are to be put up.

Quince Honey.—Pare and grate five ripe quinces. Put a pint of water into a saucepan with five pounds of lump sugar and bring to a boiling point. Then add the grated quinces, cook for fifteen minutes, pour into glasses and cool before covering.

A Handsome Preserve.

Quinces In Jelly.—Scald, pare and core the quinces and cut into large pieces. Allow one-half pound of sugar to one-half pound of quinces and half a pint of apple juice. Melt the sugar in the apple juice. When the sugar is dissolved set it over the fire in a pan and let it boil quickly until it is clear. Take a pint of apple juice and one pound of sugar, strain the quinces from the sirup and put them into this. Boil two minutes, stir gently until nearly cold and put it into glasses.

Preserved Whole Quinces. — Take large green quinces. Boil them very gently until soft. Pare them very thin and core without breaking the fruit. Weigh the quinces and allow their weight in sugar. Take one-half of the sugar and with it make a sirup, then put in the quinces and boil them quickly. Have ready enough apple juice cover the quinces. Make this into thick jelly, with the rest of the sugar When the quinces are clear put them into his jelly and let them simmer for ten minutes, until they are very white. Then pour into glasses.

A Combination Jelly.

Apple and Quince Jelly.—Wash, wipe and core the fruit. Put the same through the coarse part of the meat grinder. Place the pulp in a granite kettle, cover with water and let cook slowly about fifteen minutes. Pour into a muslin bag and drain. Return juice to a clean kettle, boil down one-half and skin. To every cupful of juice allow two-thirds cupfuls of sugar. Boil quickly for ten minutes or less, if it begins to thicken.

Quince Marmalade.—Rub the quinces with a cloth. Cut them into quarters, core them, but do not peel. Place them in a saucepan and cover with cold water. Cook until the fruit is quite tender, then rub through a fine sieve. To every two cupfuls of pulp allow one pound of lump sugar. Return to the saucepan and boil very gently for about one hour, stirring constantly. It should be pink and firm when cold.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — Fair Iris, the Nimble Rainbow Messenger Maiden.

Her Wings Were of Gold.

JACK and Evelyn waited patiently as daddy shook up the cushions on the sitting room couch.

"We want you to be quite comfy, daddy dear," Evelyn said.

"Yes, and then you won't mind telling us a longer story," Jack added.

Daddy smiled. "Mother's rule is that all stories must be done by 8, so that little folks can pop into bed," he warned.

"But maybe you won't notice the clock strike," Evelyn suggested. "Sometimes you don't, you know."

"You asked me today about the beautiful rainbow that you saw in the sky after the shower," daddy began. "It is no wonder you admire the rainbow with its seven lovely colors—violet, indigo, blue, green, yellow, orange and red.

"The old Greeks who made charming stories about everything they saw called the rainbow the bow of Iris.

"Now, you will want to know about Iris. She was a lovely young girl who, they said, served the greatest of their goddesses, Queen Juno. The Greeks believed that their gods and goddesses often came down to earth to see how mortals were getting along. Sometimes they wished to punish the bad and sometimes to reward the good. They had many errands which some one else could do for them. In such cases King Jupiter would send as his messenger Mercury, a clever fellow, who wore a winged cap and had wings on his feet; while in his hand he carried a magic wand tipped with wings and with two snakes twined around it. Queen Juno, who was Jupiter's wife, had as her messenger the dainty Iris, the daughter of a sea god and goddess.

"Iris was a lovely slim young girl, wearing an airy gown of the color of the rainbow and with shining silver sandals on her swift young feet. Her wings were of gold.

"The rainbow which we sometimes see after a shower, the Greeks said, was the bridge which Iris let down when she wished to cross from the god's home in the sky on her way to earth.

"As Queen Juno's errands were not always good natured ones, the Greeks often spoke of Iris as a trouble maker. They liked Mercury better because he was believed to visit them more often on kindly missions than Iris did. This, however, was not the fault of the pretty little messenger, but of the goddess.

"Of course we do not believe these old tales. Now we know that the rainbow is caused by the sun shining through the raindrops falling from the clouds. The seven colors into which the raindrops divide the white light of the sun are then reflected to us in the form of a bow."

THE TUNIC OR SHORT OVERSKIRT QUITE OVERSHADOWS THE PLAIN OR DRAPED SKIRT

At the moment it is difficult to mention a gown without speaking of the tunic or overskirt, as in one form or another it is seen on most of the new models. Those wired at the hem swing away from the figure gracefully and are most effective when not carried to extremes. They are seen a great deal in transparent materials trimmed with fur or heavy embroideries. The sheerer the material the heavier the trimming seems to be the rule. Many of the overskirts are made excessively full, with the direct idea of adding to the size of waist and hip lines. They fail in their effect, however, when transparent materials are used, as the slender outlines of the underskirt are thrown more in evidence than ever.

When soft silks are used the tunic is often draped, the folds falling gracefully about the hips. In No. 7912 is shown a two-piece draped tunic that would be most attractive in charmeuse or in chiffon over a foundation of charmeuse. Chiffon would lend itself well to the folds of the underblouse. Nine yards of 36 inch silk are required to copy this model in size 36.

In 7910 another very graceful short overskirt is brought out with just a suggestion of fullness at the waistline. This design is also suitable for soft silks or chiffon and could be edged effectively with a narrow strip of fur or a broad band of lace. No. 7910 may be copied in size 36 with 7¼ yards of 36 inch material. Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

An Artistic Design for a Pillow Cover in Stencil or Embroidery.

Pillows for the living room, library or porch may be made of very inexpensive material such as linen, cotton poplin, rep, shantung, pongee craft canvas, Monk's cloth or Egyptian cloth. These materials are all serviceable and come in a good range of colors. The pillows should be finished with a seam, a stitched hem or with a cord.

This attractive design may be developed in stencil or embroidery in outline and darning-stitches, using brown for the leaves, blue for the small flowers and red for the large ones. The design, if stenciled, may be accentuated with an outline-stitch in a dark color.

The size of this design is 15½ inches square. Pattern number 14226 will be supplied to readers for fifteen cents.

GIANTS THE FAVORITES.

Command Even Money to Win Series. Athletic Talk, but Little Cash.

New York, Sept. 27.—Betting in the financial district continues to favor the Giants at even money in the world's series, with plenty of Athletic talk, but little money in sight.

Several freak bets were reported. One man put up $40 against $50 that Mathewson would pitch the first game for the Giants. Another wagered $50 even that Demaree would win the first game he pitched. There was a bet of $50 even that the series would run to six games.

Oct. 10—Plainfield H. S., at Plainfield.

Sporting Editor:

Query—With a runner on second and third bases, man on second goes down to third. Ball is thrown to the catcher who tags home plate and the umpire calls man on third out by force. Was it right? P. M.

Answer—By no means, he had no right to make such a decision. Runners had to be tagged to retire either man. This play has been explained a number of times. Man on third base could not be forced off, but if both men occupied third base, man on second would be out if tagged with the ball before he could return to second.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is the track at Parker Field good for motorcycle racing? H. L.

Answer—Not on your life. Do not attempt it unless you are prepared to die.

Sporting Editor.

Query—How many football gridirons are there in Plainfield? C. V. B.

Answer—Parker Field has the only local gridiron for football, but there are two in North Plainfield, one at Hyde Oval and another at Cricket Field. Neither of the latter are public fields, however.

FOOTBALL NOTES

Harvard, as usual, has no midweek game scheduled this year, and Yale only one, the game with Wesleyan.

The greatest "prep" school game in the East is scheduled for Nov. 8, when Exeter and Andover will clash at Exeter.

The two Bakers in line with Trenkmann and Dewitt should give the Princeton Tigers a strong backfield this fall.

John Corbett, the former Harvard gridiron star, has been secured to coach the football squad of the A. and M. College, at Stillwater, Okla.

Nine of the regular Navy eleven that beat West Point 6 to 0 last year at Philadelphia, are members of the Annapolis team again this year.

University of Texas has a player named Eddie Slaughter. If he lives up to his name his opponents on the gridiron will retire from the game in quick order.

Eddie Mahan, captain of the crack Harvard freshmen eleven of last year, looks to be the most likely candidate among the punters of the Crimson varsity squad.

Yale's new football coliseum, to be completed in 1914, will seat approximately 61,000 persons and will have standing room for at least 6,000 or 7,000 more.

George Brooks, who not only was Pennsy's greatese punter, but the best the game ever has produced, expects to have 150 men in his varsity squad at the University of Pennsylvania.

"MAC" SAYS

[redacted]

Fable—Once upon a time there was an old man who believed a hard luck story related by a football coach.

Have you noticed those Plainfield High School warriors limping around on one foot or eating with the left hand? Several have been eliminated because of weak hearts.. The "weak heart" malady is something new in P. H. S. student circles.

Colleges all over the country open their gridiron schedules today and the open season for doctors and institutions for the rebuilding of broken limbs gets underway.

Although the gridiron game is at present crowding the center of the limelight and pigskin has now raised several points over horsehide we still have to keep our spirits in rooting order for the world series. As a preliminary appetizer the National Commission has set a precedent in baseball by ordering the replayal of that Philadelphia-Giants game next Thursday.

While the National League directors are at it they might as well direct that the game be played with the same crowd and the same peanut merchants peddling the same peanuts in the same tone of voice and stepping on the same corns.

A number of local athletes, both masculine and feminine, are taking daily morning runs and walks as a method of training. Many of them claim to be doing it on bets of various kinds, mostly of the eatable variety.

We have heard of many an individual walking around the world on a bet, but have you ever heard of a person collecting the bet? Neither have we.

Some men are born lunck and others are sentenced to pitch against Jimmy Clinton. If you don't believe it ask George Ortlieb, he still remembers the time, the place and the man.

We note that those North Plainfield High School maidens in giving a reception to the innocent little freshies had conspired to masquerade in male attire. Some good fairy appeared on the scene and induced them to moderate the scenery, however.

DOYLE'S SHOULDER HURT IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT

Laughing Larry Doyle, captain of the Giants, and one of the best hitters on the team, will be out of the game for four or five days as the result of an automobile accident which occurred Thursday night. While driving along the Pelham Bay road with Art Fromme, in the machine which was presented to him last fall, Doyle was thrown when the auto ran into a tree on the side of the road.

At first it was thought that Doyle's shoulder was dislocated and that he would be unable to take part in the world's series. Doyle's shoulder was wrenched and badly bruised, but McGraw said yesterday that it would be only four or five days before Larry is able to play again.

If Doyle should by any chance fail to play in the world's series, Tilly Shafer will play second base and Herzog third.

DUNNING WINS HARD CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

N. P. H. S. Title Holder Was Pushed to the Limit in Final Court Games.

The final match of the North Plainfield High School singles tennis tournament was played yesterday afternoon on the courts of the Watchung Tennis Club with a hard earned victory credited to Frank Dunning, '14, over Hoyt Tomkinson, '15. The contest proved to be the hardest fought battle of the tournament and four sets were required to make a decision. The scores were 7-5, 11-9, 1-6 and 6-1. The first two sets, as the scores will show, were very closely contested and the scores see-sawed back and forth many times before the deciding points could be safely placed by the winner.

Tomkinson took the first three games of the match easily and Dunning won the next four. The junior player then evened it up with a game and the next two went to his opponent for the first set. The third set was easy for Tomkinson and he allowed Dunning but one game.

Every game in the final set went to deuce except the first, which was won by Tomkinson. During the latter part of this set, Tomkinson, in trying for a hard shot, turned his ankle and play was called for a time. He refused to call the match off, however, and gamely played it to the finish. A large crowd witnessed the contest. The officials were, Warren Townley, '16, referee; Duclos Van Mater, '15, scorer; Elmer French, '15, and Franklin Lowe, '14, linesmen.

No foot faults were called by the linesmen throughout the match and a very few double faults occurred. Dunning outpointed his opponent in aces but Tomkinson led in overhead strokes.

KRAFT'S ELECTRICAL BENDERS WIN PUBLIC SERVICE FLAG

In the deciding game for the Public Service Corporation's inter-department baseball championship, played yesterday on Hilton Oval, Newark, the electrical department defeated the railway department representatives by a score of 13 to 11 and won the pennant. Eddie Kraft, the Somerville Central League hurler, twirled for the winners, and Jack Torpey, captain and catcher on the Somerville team, caught Kraft's slants.

The score by innings:

Railway	2	0	4	0	0	5	0	0	0	—11
Electrical	6	0	3	1	0	0	0	1	2	—13

ALMOST A DUEL.

John Falconeri, of Terrill road, was arraigned before City Judge DeMeza this moning, charged by Angelo Brancati, with disorderly conduct. Sentence was suspended, after the latter proved that the complainant was to blame for a quarrel the two engaged in.

MAKE MONEY WITH POULTRY

AMERICAN POULTRY is a magazine devoted entirely to helping earnest men and women make a financial success of poultry raising. Its staff of writers is composed entirely of those who have made a practical, instead of theoretical, success of poultry farming, and who are glad to pass on the results of their hard earned experience to AMERICAN POULTRY readers.

There are many pit-falls in the path of the novice which may be entirely avoided by those who will follow the teachings set forth in this magazine. It fully explains how to make a start, how to construct houses, coops, and other devices, how to get a large egg yield, how to cure and prevent disease, how to exhibit, how to get the top price for eggs, how to use incubators and hundreds of other points which everyone wishes to know. It explains the famous secret system through which poultrymen have become rich and afterwards sold for hundreds of dollars.

AMERICAN POULTRY is a large, handsomely illustrated, monthly journal, well printed on fine paper, and should be found on file in the home of every poultry lover. No beginner in the poultry business should think of being without it. It will save him many times the small subscription price. The advanced poultryman will also find it of great value; the articles being varied in their scope.

SPECIAL OFFER. The regular price of AMERICAN POULTRY is 50c per year, but in order to introduce it to several thousand new readers, we will, for a short time, give a large 200 page poultry book, which is a complete guide in the poultry business, absolutely free to everyone sending 50c for a yearly subscription or $1.00 for a three year subscription to AMERICAN POULTRY. A trial six months' subscription (without book) will be sent for 25c. Never has so much been offered for so small a sum. Advantage of this offer should be taken at once.

One Man's Neglect

Two men were talking while at lunch in a downtown restaurant.

"Are you going to Smith's funeral?" one asked the other.

"Yes, I guess so," was the reply. "Seems too bad that so young a man should have to die."

"How was he fixed? Leave his family in good circumstances?"

"No; guess they haven't much."

"Didn't he carry any insurance?"

"No. He bought a house a few years ago and had just made the last payment on it a few days before he died."

There being sufficient material in that portion of the conversation for editorial comment, what was said afterward is of little consequence.

The subject of the conversation between the two men is dead. Advice will do him no good. His lack of foresight is what prompts this comment.

This young man made a mistake which should be a lesson to others. That he was industrious and, to all appearances, economical, because of the sacrifices made to install his family in a home, is presumed. He succeeded in that direction and died. The wife and children have the home. But what are they going to do with it, having no money? A mortgage will relieve the situation for a time, but what will be available when that money is gone?

A very easy way for this young man to have overcome the obstacle that now confronts those left behind is suggested to those who are in similar circumstances. A life insurance policy, even though the principal were but $1,000, would now be a great relief to this family.

The salaried man of family who argues against life insurance doesn't know what he is talking about. It is the greatest protector of the home ever discovered. What better proof could one wish for than the word-picture above painted?

OBSERVE 125TH ANNIVERSARY OF MEETING HOUSE BUILDING

Local Friends' Society Holds Appropriate Celebration, the Past Being Reviewed.

HISTORICAL ADDRESS

Miss Vail, Oliver B. Leonard and Others Recall Earlier Days of the Religious Sect—Mayor Stewart Makes Welcoming Address.

Rich with its memories of considerably more than a century during which there was recalled the sacrifices of those early days in defense of the faith, the members and friends of the Plainfield meeting of the Religious Society of Friends, on Saturday, observed the 125th anniversary to commemorate the erection of the meeting house on Watchung avenue. This edifice, conceded to be the oldest in this vicinity stands today as sturdy and well preserve as it did many years ago, and within its four walls there still lingers the memory of the faithful saints who used to worship there.

The century and a quarter milestone which has been reached was observed in that quiet and dignified way characteristic of the Friends. Simple, yet attractive decorations of autumn foliage, gave an added interest. There was an afternoon and evening program in charge of Richard D. Williams, who acted as chairman. He read the Scriptures, after the customary silence, and then introduced Mayor Percy H. Stewart.

"It is appropriate that as executive of the city, that I should speak of the influences this society has had in the community as well as the country," said Mr. Stewart. "It would be difficult for some of us to go back to the founding of the building and society, but we can recall the forces which have produced great men."

Mr. Stewart then reviewed briefly the early life of William Penn, emphasizing his sacrifices in behalf of the faith and pointing out how much the world owes to such a character. Referring to the Puritan, Cavalier and Friend, the speaker said that the world has benefitted from them. He said that it had been his pleasure to know many of the members of the society and that they had been a strong factor in the religious life of the city. He expressed the hope that the quaint structure, the meeting-house, might continue to be a landmark of the city, that future generations might appreciate the sacrifice of the original members.

An interesting feature was the historical sketch compiled and read by Miss Margaret Fitz Randolph Vail. She is a great-granddaughter of Abram and Margaret Fitz Randolph Vail, former residents of Green Brook. The last named and Edward Fitz Randolph, who escorted General Washington to the "Rock," were brother and sister, consequently Miss Vail is a great-great niece of Edward Fitz Randolph. Miss Vail's historical sketch follows:

"I love to ponder the annals of this old house,
Established here on the plains of long ago,
By the prayerful zeal of far off Quaker sires.
I love to read their records—what steadfast faith,
What loving kindness there—what shining deeds."

We learn from our old records that the Society of Friends which had its rise in England in 1647 through the preaching of George Fox, and many of whose members, driven by persecution to leave the home country, sought in the new world "freedom to worship God," established a meeting at Amboy, in the province of East Jersey as early as 1686. No meeting house was built there, for we read "Friends agreed to Pay three pounds money of this province for the yearly rent of a meeting room." This meeting did not become permanent until 1704, when it was held at the home of Nathaniel Fitz Randolph at Woodbridge, a few miles from Amboy. Here Friends gathered in their Meetings for Worship, for their Monthly Meetings and for the solemnization of marriages, until 1714 when a meeting house was completed. I say completed, for that little meeting house at Woodbridge was nine years in building. The story of the building of that first home of the Society of Friends in this part of the country is an exceedingly interesting one, sometimes almost amusing, often pathetic.

When we consider that the meeting since its establishment had been held in a rented room or at the home of a member, where it had doubtless outgrown its accommodations, and that with their many handicaps and hinderances nine years had elapsed between the start of the building and its completion, cannot we, two hundred years later, sympathize with that evidence of pride with which they record from 1714 to 1716, that the monthly meeting at Woodbridge was held at "Our New Meeting House?" At the end of those two years the word new was dropped, but for more than thirty years the minutes read "held at our Meeting-house at Woodbridge," after which it was simply "held at Woodbridge."

I have given this much time to the Woodbridge meeting house because it was the parental home and birthplace of Plainfield meeting. A few extracts from the old records will best tell of its beginning and growth.

"At a monthly meeting held at Our Meeting-house at Woodbridge, the 10th of 9th month 1721,—Our friend John Laing proposed on behalf of himself and others living near him, that they might have liberty from the meeting to keep meeting at his house on Firstdays, during the winter season," which request was granted. The house of the said John Laing was in Piscataway Township, Middlesex county, just beyond the present city line and near the grounds of the Plainfield Country Club.

In 1722 the same request was made and granted, but this time the privilege "to continue until they have reason to alter it." The meeting thus became permanent there, and was known as the Plainfield meeting, so while we commemorate the 125th anniversary of the building of this meeting house, the Plainfield meeting which has its home here was established one hundred and ninety-one years ago.

"At a monthly Meeting held in 3rd. month 1731—The Friends belonging to the meeting held at John Laings (deceased), desire liberty to build a meeting house on the land given for that purpose by the said John Laing. This meeting grants their desire and orders that John Kinsey should pay the money given by John Shotwell to that use." At the next meeting "Abraham Shotwell and Benjamin Smith are appointed to manage the building of the meeting house near John Laing's, deceased, the said house not to exceed 24 feet square and 14 feet between joynts." We find that when this house was finished there was a balance of 16s-ld returned to the meeting.

"At a meeting held the 21st of 6th month 1760—A motion was made for the removing of Plainfield Meeting-house. Joseph Shotwell, Samuel Marsh, John Vail, Shobal Smith and Soloman Hunt are appointed to consider whether it be necessary or not, and if they think necessary to conclude where, and to desire a Friend to promote a subscription and report at the next meeting."

In due time they reported it to be their "sense and judgment that the house should continue where it was at present," which the meeting agreed to.

"At a meeting held 19th of 5th month 1763—The Friends who had atended the Quarterly meeting at Shrewsbury brought from thence the judgment of that meeting, which was, that in the future the Monthly Meetings should be held at Woodbridge in the 4th, 5th, 7th and 8th months, at Plainfield in the 3rd, 6th, 9th and 12th months and at Rahway in 1st, 2nd, 10th and 11th months; a meeting having been established at Rahway about 1750. Eventually the meeting at Woodbridge was laid down as the tide of membership had moved toward Rahway, and the monthly meeting was given the title of "Rahway and Plainfield Monthly Meeting," a title which it still retains.

"In 7th month 1763 there came a proposal from the Plainfield Meeting to hold a circular meeting at the homes of John Webster, Zachariah Pound and others, at four o'clock on First-day afternoons from this time until ye 10th month next, which was agreed to." Although unable at this time to locate the homes of these Friends, it is reasonably certain that they were in the vicinity of the present meeting house. This same request for a circular meeting was made and granted for a number of years thereafter.

This brings us down to 1787 and for a moment we will consider the conditions existing at that time. The echoes of the Revolutionary War had but recently died away, the Federal Government had just been established, Washington had not yet been elected President of the United States; travel by team, either on land or water was unthought of, and the most vivid imagination had not dreamed of harnessing electricity to vehicles of locomotion, nor of the multitude of other ways in which it would be made to serve us. Where the city of Plainfield now stands was a rural district, with probably a cross-road, a mill, a school-house and a few scattered houses. Friends covered the miles between home and meeting house on foot or horse back with perhaps an old-time chaise or gig for the elders of the family. Clearing and tilling the soil was the principle occupation of the men, while the women in their homes did the spinning, weaving and knitting as well as making their supply of cheese, soap and candles.

These were some of the conditions when at a Monthly Meeting held in

WILL FOWLER RUN FOR CONGRESS?

Expected That Former Representative Will Be a Candidate for Nomination.

TUTTLE IN THE CONTEST

Pierce May Have Stewart as His Opponent for State Senatorship—Some Political Gossip—Will Runyon Be In Congress Fight?

Elizabeth, Sept. 29.—Congressman Charles N. Fowler refused yesterday to deny or confirm the rumor that he is to be a candidate for Congressman on the Republican ticket next year. Should he decide to run, and it is believed that in view of his carrying Union county at the primary last Tuesday he will, he will have as his opponent William E. Tuttle, of Westfield. Mr. Tuttle is the present incumbent. He will be a candidate again next year. It is not known whether William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, who has twice run for the office on the Republican ticket, will be a candidate again.

The former Congressman is willing to talk on any political subject with the exception of his candidacy. He expressed his opinion that Colby would poll a vote of 80,000 throughout the State, and that Fielder would carry Hudson by the largest majority ever given a candidate in that county. He was of the opinion that had he won the nomination the fight would be between Fowler and Fielder, with Colby announcing his withdrawal from the race. When Mr. Fowler was asked regarding his candidacy he said: "I have already been asked that question. A year is a long time. It is too soon to talk about candidates for 1914."

According to those who are in close touch with the Republican situation in New Jersey, if State Senator Pierce had carried Union county at the primary he would have been the logical Republican candidate for Congressman next year. His failure, it is said, has practically eliminated Pierce from the race. He may, however, again be a candidate for State Senator. Mayor Percy H. Stewart, of Plainfield, also is being spoken of as a likely Congressional candidate.

BOER WAR '1ST AID' 'KINKS' TO BE SHOWN

Brodzaik, Who Went Through Boer War, to Be at Boy Scout Meeting.

A. L. Brodzaik, who went through the Boer War on the English side of the conflict as a first-aid expert, will demonstrate some first aid "kinks" to the members of Troop 5, Boy Scouts of America, tomorrow night. The members of the troop will attend with all the equipment they have including knapsacks, haversacks, staffs, drams, bugles, fifes, etc.

Each member of Troop 5 will have with him a card on which is plainly written his name, address, day, month and year of birth, date of passing "tenderfoot" examination, date of passing second class test, and date of passing first class, also the number of merit badges he holds. This information is being collected for the National Scout census now being taken.

The payment of National dues subscribed by the scouts of America to help put the movement on a self-supporting bases may also be made tomorrow night. Fifty cents per boy has been pledged. Of this five cents will be used for the maintenance of the local scout council; twenty cents for National headquarters and twenty-five cents for the local troop to go into its treasury to be used for equipment.

Commissioner Allen E. Beals has requested that all scoutmasters in the city collect this information and in addition to sending the date to National Headquarters on the blanks provided to supply the commissioner's office with a full list of troop members at their earliest convenience for presentation to the local scout council at its next meeting.

THEIR NEW YEAR THIS WEDNESDAY

Hebrew Faithful to Hold Services at Local Synagogue in Observance.

ELABORATE PROGRAM

Rabbi Davidson Will Be in Charge and Rev. Nathan Mieler Will Be Cantor—Special Choir of Seventeen Voices.

With next Wednesday evening the Jewish year 5674 will begin, and the members of that faith in this city in common with those throughout the world, will observe the New Year with special services at the Synagogue of the Congregation of the Children of Israel. Rabbi Davidson will be in charge.

Rev. Nathan Milier, of New York, has been engaged as cantor, and he will have charge of a specially trained choir of seventeen boys who will sing at the services.

On Thursday morning the shofar, or ram's horn, will be blown. Of the three great holy days that fall so close together at this season, New Year (Rosh Hashonah) comes on October 2; the Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur), on Saturday, October 11, and the Feast of Tabernacles (Succoth), on Thursday, October 16. Each holy day begins on the preceding evening.

Jewish months commence with the new moon; but the New Year may not fall on Sunday, Wednesday or Friday. This year the astronomical new moon falls, according to the calendar, a little before midnight tomorrow evening, and on Tuesday evening a crescent moon will be visible. Ordinarily the New Year should begin that evening. But as it may not fall on Wednesday it is deferred a day. Similarly Passover can not come on a Friday, Monday or Wednesday.

BELLIS MAY LOSE PARTY NOMINATION

Name Printed Incorrectly on Ballots Sufficient to Give Linbarger the Place.

Somerville, Sept. 29.—When the returns from Bernards township were filed in the office of the county clerk on Saturday morning, it was learned that the name of Lewis A. Bellis had been printed incorrectly on all the ballots, his name being spelled wrong, the initial "A" was also left out. As the courts have ruled that these ballots cannot be counted only for the name as actually printed, it is believed that Mr. Bellis will lose out against Walter C. Linbarger if these are not counted for him.

The four districts of Bernards township gave Mr. Bellis a total vote of 150, and as he was credited with winning the nomination by 116, he would lose out by 34 if the votes of Bernards township are not counted for him. Mr. Bellis has sought counsel in the matter, and it is expected that an early decision will be rendered.

"Under no consideration," said Mr. Linbarger today, "would I accept the nomination unless, should the votes in question be thrown out, I am compelled by law to do so. I do not wish to take advantage of this unfortunate situation particularly as it was the intent of the voters to cast their ballots for Mr. Bellis."

Bellis and Linbarger talked the matter over shortly after noon today, Linbarger assuring the former that under no circumstances would he accept a nomination under the circumstances. Linbarger also pledged his support to Bellis. The latter asked him not to withdraw but to await developments.

PENNY LUNCHES FOR THE PUPILS

Mothers' Association Provides Nourishing Meals for School Children.

BRYANT SCHOOL FIRST

Feast for Few Pennies and Teachers and Reporters Join With Youngsters in Enjoying it—To Be Extended to Other Schools.

Penny luncheons for Plainfield school children were introduced in the Bryant School today by the Mothers' Association, and although plans had been made to provide for eighty pupils, approximately 120 children, several teachers, and two reporters enjoyed a nourishing meal, the maximum price of which is six cents for one portion of each item on the menu, although a plate of nutritious soup and two slices of bread may be had for one cent. As Theodore Roosevelt said, when he ate a luncheon served in a similar way in the New York schools very recently, "It's bully; it is de-lightful."

The luncheons were served in the sanitary, white basement of the school. About 11:45 as the pupils descended the steps leading to the basement, a moving line of children was seen, each carrying an aluminum spoon, and a silver tray. The line-up led to the kitchen where a cook engaged to prepare the food dished out nutritious macaroni soup. Mrs. G. Stuart Simons took the pennies and handed each youngster a bowl of the soup, which each child is compelled to buy—it is known as the nourishing dish. With the soup, the children pass on to a clean long table, where the diners are given two slices of bread—all for the same cent. A table nearby in charge of one of the committee of the Mothers' Association distributed other food, according to the selection of the children, who ate as long as their capital held out. For six cents the menu looked something like this, which solves the high cost of living, at least for the school children of Bryant School; Macaroni soup, bread; jelly sandwiches; stuffed baked potatoes; assorted sweet crackers; cocoa; sweet chocolate stars.

Each package of sandwiches costs one cent, and the potato, the cup of cocoa, the package of crackers and chocolate, each cost a like amount. The sandwiches were wrapped in sanitary waxed paper to prevent any dust or germs to gather on them. The cocoa had been tested by the Planifield Board of Health and found to be absolutely pure. The food was served in graniteware dishes.

The idea of giving luncheons for the school children at cost fills a long felt need and is a blessing to the average mother, who finds the preparation of a nutritious noon-day meal a hardship. Eighty women have volunteered their services as "overseers" in the preparation of the food, which is cooked by a woman engaged for the purpose. Unfortunately, the assistant to the cooks was called out of town by the death of a relative and one of the committeewomen, assigned for today's work was also unable to be present, but under the direction of Mrs. O. H. Smith, chairman of the general committee from the association, and Mrs. C. L. Penn, head of the operating department of the new feature, the first luncheons were served quickly. Other volunteers were Mrs. Herbert L. Parker, Mrs. Stephen A. Voorhees and Miss Mary Radford. Benjamin Evans, custodian of the public school buildings, also assisted in directing the children to the various tables. Several of the older pupils were on duty carrying the trays of food for the smaller youngsters who were unable to successfully manipulate a big bowl of steaming soup on a tray to the tables. In this way, many of the pupils earned their dinner. By helping to prepare the food, some pupils in the future will receive pennies with which to buy their noon-day meal.

The new feature is the result of long and careful study by the luncheon committee of the Mothers' Association composed of Mrs. Smith, chairman; Mrs. Penn, Mrs. G. O. Stevens, Mrs. H. G. Henwood, Mrs. Voorhees, Mrs. Simons and Mrs. Samuel Clark. Others actively interested in the movement include Mrs. C. G. Munroe, president of the association; Mrs. Parker, Mrs. H. D. Corbusier and Mrs. William Sandford.

Highly elated over the success of the movement, the interested women in interviews made a plea for contributions to carry on the work which will soon be extended to the Lincoln School and eventually to other institutions. Cupboards, a white enameled sink, a gas stove have been provided by the Board of Education, but salaries for the cooks, dish washer and boy to push a cart to carry

MEN UNEARTHED AN OLD COFFIN

Remains Dug up While Excavating for Cellar for New High School Addition.

BODY IS UNIDENTIFIED

Similar Discoveries Made When the Present Structure Was Erected in 1904—Was Sent to Hillside Cemetery for Reburial.

While excavating to make a cellar for the new high school addition on the Arlington avenue side of the present structure this afternoon, workmen encountered a large oblong chest, about six feet long and two feet wide, and upon examination found it to be an old coffin with its contents still intact. One of the Italian laborers hit a wooden substance while digging with a pick and called the foreman's attention to it. Experienced men were despatched to bring it to the surface. The box was one of the kind commonly used for an outer covering for coffins when they are lowered in the earth.

A portion of the box had been chipped off and through it the casket was plainly discernable and when it was seen that the chest was a body container it was sent to Hillside to be reburied.

The site of the present high school building was originally the site of the Seventh-day Baptist burial ground and was purchased in 1903 for the erection of a school building to relieve the increasing strees on the old high school building which is now the Stillman School. In clearing property for the erection of the new structure the bodies were unearthed and reburied in the ground now known as Hillside Cemetery. It is supposed that the coffin unearthed Friday was one of the many overlooked when the work of removal was being done. A number of other bodies were dug up when the school building was erected in 1904 and the place where these remains were found was a portion of the property used for tennis courts. During the process of grading the ground and building the courts several layers of earth have been piled upon the original surface and the coffin found last week was fully fifteen feet from the present level.

ELEVEN SLAIN IN FIERCE RACE RIOT

Sheriff, Deputy and Merchant Among Victims.

TEN NEGROES SHOT DEAD

Two Others Lynched and Their Bodies Riddled—Drug Crazed Blacks Run Amuck, Starting Fight Which Puts Town In State of Siege.

Fayette, Miss., Sept. 29.—In a race riot at Harrison, a small town five miles from here, nine men were shot to death, two were lynched and many others were wounded, three probably mortally. Large posses of deputy sheriffs sworn in for the work under the direction of B. F. Truly, judge of the circuit court of Fayette, are now trying to drive all the negroes out of the town to prevent another threatened outbreak, which, it is feared, will be even more serious.

The riot started when two young negroes, William and Walter Jones, brothers, eighteen and twenty years old, respectively, ran amuck through the village street, shooting and stabbing at every white man they could see. Before even temporary peace was restored more than half the population of the town, heavily armed, was in the streets and guns were flashing from every corner.

When hostilities supended for a moment the bodies of the Jones brothers were hanging from a signal tower in front of the station of the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railroad, three white men and eight negroes lay dead in the streets and three other white men were reported dying in the town's little hospital, while more than a dozen were wounded and under the care of physicians.

Dead and Wounded.

The dead white men are Sheriff Grover Hammett of Fayette, Constable Frank Kinsley of Harrison and Claude Freeman, a business man of Harrison, who had been sworn in as a special deputy sheriff. The mortally wounded white men were Circuit Court Clerk Gillean, Edward B. Appleby, conductor of a Yazoo and Mississippi Valley train, and W. O. Bond, a flagman employed by the same railroad.

The negroes attempted to flee after shooting the railroad men and when close pressed took refuge behind some freight cars and lumber and stood off the armed white men. Other negroes in the meantime had armed themselves and hurried to the assistance of their friends. A pitched battle followed.

Scores of windows were broken by bullets from revolvers and rifles in the fusillade, and several negroes and the constable were killed. When the battle was still on Sheriff Hammett arrived and hastily swore in a score of deputies. He then attempted to walk into the barricade which had been improvised by the negroes and make arrests, but was shot down and killed without a chance for his life.

Posse Pursues Murderers.

In the added excitement which followed the white men rushed the negro stronghold and several were wounded. The Jones brothers, who had started the trouble, fled along the railroad track with a posse of whites in pursuit and were captured a short distance from the station.

A rope was quickly produced, and as the two negroes, now cowering and pleading for life, were dragged to the nearest railroad signal post, a band of their friends attempted to rescue them. Another pitched battle followed, in which Claude Freeman, one of the deputp sheriffs who was attempting to dissuade the lynchers, was shot and killed and others wounded.

The attacking band of negroes was driven back, and the two youths were lynched.

MOTT OSBORNE GOES TO AUBURN AS CONVICT

Prison Reform Head Will Study Conditions There.

Auburn, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Thomas Mott Osborne, anti-Tammany leader and chairman of the prison reform committee, will enter Auburn prison today on the same basis as a convicted felon. He has voluntarily sentenced himself to an indeterminate period for the purpose of learning the mental processes that operate when a man is committed to a state's prison.

He insists that all the procedure, even to parting with his mustache and pompadour, shall be carried out, and if peradventure he should violate the rules he is ready to take a spell in the dungeon.

Outlining his plan to the convicts at chapel services, Mr. Osborne said in part:

"As chairman of the commission on prison reform appointed by Governor Sulzer the superintendent of prisons and Warden Rattigan have kindly given me permission to carry out a plan to determine the psychological effect of the present prison system on the prisoners.

"Most of the books that have been written about you by so called 'penologists' are written largely from the outside standpoint and seem to be based on the assumption that the prisoner is not a human being like the rest of us, but a strange sort of animal called a 'criminal,' wholly different in his instincts, feelings and actions from the rest of mankind.

"I want to find out whether our prison system is intelligent, whether it flies in the face of all common sense and human nature, as I think it does; whether, guided by sympathy and experience, we cannot find something far better to take its place, as I believe we can."

Boston, Sept. 29.—Representative A. P. Gardner, Republican candidate for governor, and the Republican state committee have parted company.

The committee adopted a resolution upholding Republican principles and took another vote commending Chairman Hatfield, who refused again to quit the job at the behest of Mr. Gardner. The latter told the committee that he wanted Mr. Hatfield's scalp and that he would go into the convention and demand a platform containing progressive measures. He further informed the committtee that he would manage his own campaign and would appoint his own finance committee.

HUNT FOR SLAYER OF TANGO TEACHER

Clerk May Throw Light on Woman's Murder.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—One hundred special deputy sheriffs, sworn in by A. A. Kuhn, sheriff of Dupage county, are seeking for Lincoln Spencer, a cigar store clerk, living in Wheaton, in the hope that he can shed some light upon the murder of Mrs. Mildred Allison of 6933 Eggleston avenue, Chicago, who was lured to a lonely spot near Wayne, Ill., choked and shot to death and her body placed upon a railroad track, where it was mangled almost beyond recognition.

Mrs. Allison was a teacher of tango dancing. Lincoln Spencer, who is wanted, was interested in a dancing class at Wheaton, and it is said he knew the woman. The body was found by an engine driver on the Joliet and Eastern railroad, who stopped and investigated when he felt his engine strike some object in the dark.

A bracelet inscribed "From W. H. A. to M. A., 1-5-13," and scraps of a note found by school children and pieced together were the means of identification. The note bore the coat of arms of the Congress hotel and as far as could be deciphered read, "Dear—Gang—girls — Dunam farm — money — $14—$500—you can have what you want"—It was signed "E. Herron."

A motive for the murder was revealed by the discovery that Mrs. Allison wore a $500 diamond ring when she left her home. The ring was missing from the dead woman's hand. Near the body was found a purse turned wrong side out, a powder box and a card bearing the name "Mildred Allison." On the reverse side of the card was scribbled the name of Frank L. Oleson, owner of the Felita Dancing club, East Thirty-first street and Cottage Grove avenue, where for a time Mrs. Allison had taught dancing.

MR. MORGAN IN DINGY ROOM.

Occupies Ancient Quarters at Harvard as Senior Class Student.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 29.—Junius Spencer Morgan, son of J. P. Morgan, is living in a dingy college room at Harvard during his final year as an undergraduate. This is in accordance with the Harvard tradition that compels every member of the senior class to dwell in one of the yard dormitories.

When Mr. Morgan gets up in the morning he finds himself in a small bedroom about the size of a hall room, with his room mates sleeping in beds beside him. The study room is one of the low ceiling kind that was luxurious a hundred years ago, when Holworthy hall was built. The hallways are well worn and have not even a cheap carpet to cover them.

ALIENS' INCOME TAX ALTERED

Tax Will Not Be Retained at Source of Income.

Washington, Sept. 29.—It was learned that in the closing hours of the tariff conference the Democratic conferees struck out of the bill the amendment numbered 501 in paragraph A of the income tax law. The amendment authorized the retention at the source of income of the tax imposed upon individuals who are nonresident aliens.

It is understood that the members of the conference committee finally decided to eliminate this feature, on the theory that the nonresident alien would probably be subjected to taxation of the same property abroad.

FACES TRIAL ON MURDER CHARGE

Dictograph to Help Convict Woman's Slayer.

HE DENIES ACCUSATION.

W. J. Leehan, a Stenographer, Charged With Killing Mrs. Caroline Turner, Sister of a Banker, at Lakewood. Crime Stirs Town and Surrounding Community.

Toms River, N. J., Sept. 29.—William J. Leehan, a stenographer, was placed on trial here on the charge of killing Mrs. Caroline Turner, wife of Charles N. Turner, a gardener, on George J. Gould's estate, Georgian court, Lakewood, N. J., and the authorities are relying on a dictograph to obtain his conviction. Mrs. Turner's body was found under a pile of leaves in a lonely thicket on April 28, 1911. She had disappeared two days before. Her friends and relatives kept up an unrelenting search, but it was not for two years that suspicion was directed toward Leehan and he was arrested.

Conversations of Leehan caught by the dictograph while he was in the supposed privacy of his home in White Plains, N. Y., led to his arrest and indictment. He was lured from White Plains to Fort Lee, N. Y., by an agency detective who had wormed himself into his confidence. He collapsed when charged with the crime.

The murder of Mrs. Turner stirred Lakewood and the surrounding community as it has seldom been stirred before. She was the daughter of William Parmentier, one of the community's pioneer citizens. Her brother is Charles Parmentier, treasurer of the Lakewood Trust company.

When arrested Leehan, it is alleged, said, "I never had anything to do with the murder of that Turner woman." The prosecuting attorney says that he has witnesses to prove that Leehan entered the lane about the same time that Mrs. Turner did. The full conversations said to have been caught by the dictograph will be presented to the jury.

Leehan, although denying his guilt, has not disclosed his line of defense.

SEND GIRL BY PARCEL POST

Seventeen-year-old Immigrant Gets to Destination by Mail.

Metuchen, N. J., Sept. 29.—A seventeen-year-old girl was delivered by parcel post.

She was Rosie Hulick, who landed at Ellis island a few days ago. She got off a train here and wandered to the postoffice. She couldn't speak English but Postmaster George Carman saw from a tag pinned to her coat that she wanted to go to the farm of Thomas Adams at New Durham.

The postmaster informed the rural carrier, Peter T. Kempson, that he had a package to go by parcel post. Kempson, who is unmarried, looked once at the pretty girl and said he thought he could get the package to its destination. A parcel post tag and a "fragile, handle with care" card was attached to Rosie's ninety pounds and four and a half feet. In three hours she had reached her new home.

FEARS WIFE, STRIPS HOME.

Cleans Out Atlantic City Cottage to Keep Her Away.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 29.—Fearing, it is said, that Mrs. Annette Bromley, his handsome young wife, who figures in an action he has instituted against Frank Schultz for $20,000 damages, would return and take possession, Thomas Bromley, Jr., of Philadelphia, a carpet manufacturer, sent wagons here to strip his seashore cottage, 4509 Winchester avenue, of furnishings worth thousands of dollars.

While men stood guard movers carried everything portable from the cottage to vans, which carried the goods to Philadelphia. The blonde Mrs. Bromley has been a striking figure on the Chelsea beach and boardwalk for several summers.

DEER TRAPS ITSELF IN BARN

First One Ever Caught at Northfield, N. J., Set Free.

Northfield, N. J., Sept. 29.—The first deer ever caught alive in this section and the first seen in several years trapped itself in the barn of Jacob Hildebrandt. In stealing hay from an iron manger the animal caught its antlers and was held prisoner.

Hildebrandt loosened the deer's horns and turned it loose. James Higgins turned up later to offer the farmer $100 for the animal to place on his preserve.

DEATH ENDS LONG WALK.

Eric L. Nilsson, Hiking Across Continent, Contracted Typhoid.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 29.—Word was received here of the death in Ogden, Utah, of Eric L. Nilsson, who was hiking across the country with Patrick Dobbs, also of Newark. The boys were walking to San Francisco. They started May 10.

Nilsson contracted typhoid fever on reaching Ogden. He was a pupil in the east side high school and gave up his studies to make the walk.

PUPILS' LUNCHEONS.

In fulfillment of its carefully made plans, the Mothers' Association of Plainfield today opened a luncheon counter at the Bryant School. The purpose is to provide the children with a nourishing meal for three cents. If the scheme proves successful and there is no reason why it should not the scope will be extended to all local public schools within a reasonable time.

The idea is not a new one. It long ago passed the experimental stage in New York and elsewhere. The prime need is due to the fact that many mothers have not the time to get a nourishing luncheon for their children at the mid-day hour. It has been found that on an average half a hundred mothers of pupils in a given school here are working away from home during the noon hour or for some other reason are absent from their own household. To remedy this condition or to provide an improved substitute, the local association aims to furnish good nourishing food without any idea of making a profit, but on the contrary for the sole purpose of seeing that the children have nutritious food and thereby be able to do better work in the classrooms. A sound mind in a sound body can not be unless the stomach is properly cared for. It is a great and laudable undertaking and deserves the support of all citizens interested in the youth of Plainfield.

A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE.

George L. Babcock has reason to be proud of the run he made for renomination on the Republican ticket at the primaries for the Assembly. Not only was he high man but he polled an extraordinary vote in his home city, where he has ever been held in high esteem. Moreover, he was high man in the county. This goes to show that his party unqualifiedly approves of his conduct as a legislator. Whatever may be the fate of his colleagues on the Republican county ticket, it is quite safe to predict that young Mr. Babcock will be sent back to Trenton.

"—SINCEREST FLATTERY."

Adopting the plan inaugurated by the Daily Press some eighteen months ago, the New Brunswick Home News threw its editorial columns open for popular expression on Saturday. As the initial contributed editorial, Prof. Eckels, the city superintendent of schools ,discussed "The Attitude of the Public Towards the Schools." We are glad to see the Home News introduce this feature for our own experience has proven that the local public is mightily interested in the editorial views on live current affairs as expressed by its prominent citizens.

As one walks through the long corridors of the United States Senate office building in Washington he will be impressed by the white marble floors and the superbly polished black walnut doors opening into the private offices of the representatives of the States. There is a sameness everywhere until one happens to get to the door of James E. Martine's sanctum. On all of them is a plate bearing the name of the occupant but not so with Room No. 408, for there is inscribed "Walk Right In." Martine thoroughly believes in democracy in all things.

The Progressive party presents to the voters of Union county an exceptionally fine trio of candidates for Assembly. Among them is former Mayor Moy, of our own city. It is needless to say that should he be sent to the Lower House he will know no master other than the people and he can be relied upon to give a faithful account of his stewardship just as he did as our honored mayor.

The man who becomes Governor of New Jersey for the next three years will have a heavy burden of plain, hard work, for which he will receive very little popular acclaim.—Newark Call.

MORE PARNELL LETTERS OUT

Show John Dillon Started United Ireland Newspaper.

Cork, Ireland, Sept. 29.—William O'Brien has published another batch of Parnell letters which show that John Dillon and his fellow prisoners in Kilmainham jail were revolters against Mr. Parnell in the matter of starting a United Ireland newspaper. If Dillon had his way, says Mr. O'Brien, the entire movement would have collapsed on the suppression of the Land league and the leaders would have disappeared like Dillon himself, who intended to go to Colorado.

JOSEPH LEON LAIBLE.

Joseph Leon Laible, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laible, of 18 Elm place, died this morning. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon.

She Wasn't Affected.

Mrs. Brown from Boston has a colored cook—from Georgia. The other day Mrs. Brown went into the kitchen, and Liza put in a request:

"Mis' Brown," she said, "won't you please, ma'am, git me a calendar?"

"Why, Liza, there's a calendar hanging by the door. You don't want another calendar."

"Yas'm, I does. But I mean a calendar what you presses things through. Dat's de kind ob calendar I wants."

Mrs. Brown had a glimmer.

"Oh, Liza, you mean a colander!" she exclaimed.

"Well, it's de same thing," said Liza patiently. "You uses de broad 'a,' but I doesn't. I just says plain calendar."—New York Globe.

Keelmen of Newcastle.

The Newcastle barges claim a place in English song, for they are the inspirers of that ancient ditty "Weel May the Keel Row." According to A. G. Bradley, "it is a very old Newcastle air, and the keel, a local coal barge which has been used from earliest times to convey the coal from wagons to the vessel, the word being, I believe, the old Saxon equivalent for ship or boat. The keelmen of Newcastle were a distinct body of men, and their boats were constructed to measure, like the wagons, for the convenience of the customs and the trade generally."—London Chronicle.

MINNESOTA'S NOSE.

Curious History of the Jog In Our Northern Boundary Line.

How did the United States come to get that small corner of land which juts out from the extreme northern boundary of Minnesota? History of that little "nose" which sticks out into Canada from Minnesota and which constitutes the northernmost point of the United States is very interesting.

Under the treaty of 1783 the boundary between the United States and British possessions was fixed. A certain point on the Lake of the Woods was mutually agreed to as one starting point, this being considered the headwaters of the St. Lawrence river and great lakes system.

At that time it was not known whether this point was north or south of the forty-ninth parallel, but it was known to be close to it. The understanding was that from that point the boundary should go north or south to the forty-ninth parallel, as the case might be.

Later and more accurate surveys showed that point was about twenty-five miles north of the forty-ninth parallel, and so at this place the boundary makes a jog above that line.

Uncle Sam thus has a little piece of territory of about a hundred square miles in extent north of the general boundary. And the joke of it is that any one has to go by water in order to reach this little piece of territory unless he wants to go through Canada.—Pathfinder.

LOVE SWAYS THE ARTIST.

His Work Shows the Glorifying Power of the Grand Passion.

"How Wagner must have loved when he wrote that!" exclaimed old King William of Prussia when he heard "Tristan und Isolde" for the first time. We know now through the publication of Wagner's love letters and other biographical and autobiographical material that he was in love with Mathilde Wesendonck when he composed the opera. This passion was warp and woof of that immortal music drama, the greatness of which compelled Wagner all the rest of his life to hold himself up to his highest level of production.

Frank Harris has pretty definitely proved that Shakespeare wrote "Antony and Cleopatra" under the influence of a tragical and hopeless love for Mary Fitton. It has been declared by a great critic that "Antony and Cleopatra" has in it every shred of Shakespeare's vitalizing power and that as tragedy it marks the zenith of his achievement. If it is indeed Mary Fitton who is in it she possesses a monument more glorious than any memorial of stone ever raised to a potentate, a saint or a god.

Not every man who lives by art is a Shakespeare or a Wagner, but every artist, great or small, is subject to the same principle of the animating and glorifying power of love.—Joseph Edgar Chamberlain in New York Mail.

Mental Medicine.

"Imagination," says a doctor, "must always be reckoned with in medicine—sometimes as a friend, sometimes as a foe. I know a doctor who treated an old woman for typhoid, and on each visit he took her temperature by holding a thermometer under her tongue. One day when she had nearly recovered the doctor did not bother to take her temperature, and he had hardly got 100 yards from the house when her son called him back.

"'Mother is worse,' said the man. 'Come back at once.'

"The doctor returned. On his entry into the sickroom the old woman looked up at him with angry and reproachful eyes.

"'Doctor,' she said, 'why didn't you give me the jigger under me tongue today? That always done me more good than all the rest of your trash.'"—New York Tribune.

Sharpening a Pencil.

An expert manual training man talked with the writer about so simple a thing as sharpening a lead pencil. In the first place, he says, the knife should not be oversharp, but should be a little dull, as if too sharp it will cut quickly through the wood and cut away the lead. Then, again, he says, it is best to hold the pencil in the left hand with the end to be sharpened pointing away from you and to cut away with a pushing cut rather than toward you with a drawing cut, as then the point of the pencil is rested against the side of the thumb and is sharpened by a draw cut stroke of the knife blade.—Scientific American.

Told by London's Bishop.

The bishop of London told the following story to illustrate the difficulty sometimes met with by missionaries among the working class.

"A curate goes to a house," he said, "and knocks timidly at the door. He hears a voice shout, 'Who's there, Sally?' and Sally replies, 'Please, mother, it is "religion."'

"It requires a little bit of tact for a man to do what he ought to do when he is ushered in as 'religion' on washing day."—London Standard.

At the Theater.

"What! You can't see anything? Didn't you bring your opera glass with you?"

"Yes, but I can't use it."

"Why?"

"Because I forgot my rings."—London Telegraph.

Sounds Better.

"It's all in the way you word it."

"What do you mean?"

"A thing seems much more desirable if it's popular priced that if it's cheap."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SULZER TO CALL MANY WITNESSES

Sleuths Get Another Big Batch of Subpoenas.

TO TELL DRAMATIC STORY

Understood Chief Contention Will Be That He Considered Contributions Personal Gifts — Declared That Accused Has Entire Defense Written Out.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Before the impeachment trial was resumed this afternoon final arrangements for the defense that Governor Sulzer is to make before the court of impeachment were completed at the executive mansion. A conference of the governor's lawyers was held, and the entire answer to be made to the charges of high crimes and misdemeanors was elaborately constructed.

Fifty subpoenas obtained by Chester C. Platt, secretary to Governor Sulzer, have been made out and are now in the hands of private detectives, who began the service of them today. It is expected that the defense will obtain many more subpoenas during the coming week and that at least a hundred witnesses will be called in an attempt to refute the charges of larceny and perjury made by those called in behalf of the prosecution.

That Mr. Sulzer will not only take the witness stand in his own behalf, but will undo the prosecution in his revelation of unrecorded campaign contributions, telling of at least 300 "gifts" which have never received publicity, was the report here.

It is now understood that Mr. Sulzer's chief defense will be that he considered the contributions personal gifts and their use a personal matter, not covered by the corrupt practices act and not necessitating any public accounting. This contention, it is understood, will be supported by a candid recital of his financial affairs, backed by innumerable details. By telling of many gifts as yet unrecorded, but similar to those revealed by the prosecution, it is hoped that the implication of evidence already in that the governor wilfully and corruptly sought to hide these transactions will be lessened.

To Tell Sensational Story.

Startling revelations of political graft in the state government and an intimate and candid recital of Mr. Sulzer's twenty-three years of public service are expected to lend weight to this recital.

Governor Sulzer himself refused absolutely to discuss his case. He was under the orders of his counsel, but confidentially he gave to his close personal friends an expression of his belief that he would ultimately win vindication.

The story that Governor Sulzer is to tell to the judges of the court of impeachment will be sensational. From information gathered it was learned that he has his entire defense written out, and it is intention to read it to the impeachment court when he goes on the witness stand. For several weeks he has been busily preparing the facts concerning his political career, and it is said that in his recital of it he will spare none.

Every incident and every move during the twenty-three years Governor Sulzer has been in political life will be read into the record by the executive. And in support of all this no less than fifty witnesses will be called. It is expected that the story to be told by Governor Sulzer and added to by his witnesses will be without precedent in the history of the United States.

There are still thirty witnesses on the program for the prosecution, and it will be at least a week before Governor Sulzer will have his opportunity to make an attempt to clear himself.

Will Accuse Murphy.

The governor himself, if his story is admitted by the court of impeachment, will be on the stand for two days. He will accuse Charles F. Murphy of persecution and lay to the leader of Tammany Hall the blame for his present predicament.

As heretofore told, the governor will say that at the time of his nomination he was not only a poor man, but that he was under obligations to the extent of from $40,000 to $50,000 and, acting on the advice of friends, he accepted all contributions made during his campaign. He will assert that he was of the belief that the contributions were personal ones, and because of this he did not consider it his duty to mention them in his campaign statement.

Chester C. Platt, private secretary to Governor Sulzer, and the latter's military secretary, Major Edward C. Schermerhorn, it has been announced, will be the corroborating witnesses for the accused executive.

It was admitted by counsel for Governor Sulzer that no subpoena had been served on Charles F. Murphy, but from them came an intimation that as soon as the defense's case opens the leader of Tammany Hall will be summoned.

ANOTHER DELAY FOR THAW.

Governor Felker to Make Final Decision on Oct. 7 or 8.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 29.—Governor Felker granted Harry Thaw's counsel an additional two days in which to prepare their briefs. Consequently the briefs will not be filed until Monday, Oct. 6. The governor promises that his decision to extradite Thaw or to give him his liberty in New Hampshire will be given Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

It became known that the lawyers for Thaw expect to make the best part of their last fight before Governor Felker on the Dutchess county grand jury indictment question. They still assert that an indictment was not found against Thaw, though William Travers Jerome said that one had been.

A cold which Thaw contracted two weeks ago became so severe that he was unable to sleep. He coughs almost continually. No physicians have been called in, however, and Thaw continues to eat heartily.

TALK 4,000 MILE DISTANCE.

Goldschmidt Wireless System Now Greatly Improved.

Paris, Sept. 29.—There was a regular meeting of the Universal Wireless Telegraph and Telephone company, which controls the rights of the new Gollschmidt invention in every country in the world except Germany and in which it was announced the Marconi company had acquired a controlling interest.

Lazare Weiller, presiding at the meeting, said that since July 2 day and night communication had been established between Ellverse, near Hanover, Germany, and Tuckerton, N. J., a distance of more than 4,000 miles. The first working of the machines had suggested various improvements which had been effected since the beginning of September.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 12.

DISPOSING of what you have or getting what you want is no longer a matter of luck.

It's a matter of going after the people whom you want to reach.

Thomas Dreier, editor of "Associated Advertising," the official organ of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, said in a letter which I received from him recently: "The way to get what you want is to find out the man who's got it, and then go after him and hang on."

And isn't that good logic? Isn't it a fact that none of us is really independent—that we are all interdependent—that the things one man has serve to supply the needs of some other man—that we are all subject to the great law of Supply and Demand?

Take the WANT ADS., for instance. Do they not form a daily market place where the man who wants to sell can get in touch with the man who wants to buy—where the woman who wants a domestic can get the attention of the domestic who wants a job—where the man who is looking for a position can reach the eye of the employer who is looking for men?

I venture the assertion that eight persons in every ten have never thought about, and consequently never realized, the far-reaching power of the CLASSIFIED columns in their daily newspaper.

The people who use the WANT ADS. aren't trusting to luck.

They are going after what they want in a mighty quick, sure and inexpensive way.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

The Housewife's Daily Economy Calendar

FRANCES MARSHALL

What Shall I Serve With It?

Not every housewife knows offhand just what side dishes to serve with every sort of meat or fish or soup. This knowledge comes almost instinctively to some women. They always, unconsciously, plan their menus harmoniously, even artistically. But to others bean soup, baked beans, lima beans and bean salad seem to constitute a well-planned meal, and doubtless if there were some bean dessert they would add that, too.

Here are a few suggestions for the housewife who has difficulty in choosing suitable combinations of food:

With thick soups—bisques and purees—serve croutons.

With thin soups serve bread.

With all soups serve celery in season.

With chowder serve soda crackers.

With broiled fish serve cucumber salad, and a butter sauce of some kind, with creamed potatoes.

With boiled fish serve cream sauce of some kind, caper or parsley, or drawn butter sauce and small boiled potatoes or big ones cut in little rounds.

With beefsteak serve French fried or hash browned potatoes, fried onions or mushrooms, and fried or baked tomatoes.

With roast beef serve horseradish, mashed potatoes, and green vegetable—peas, beans or spinach.

With a pot roast serve carrots or parsnips, mashed potatoes, and either horseradish sauce or a brown gravy seasoned with green pepper or tomato.

With lamb chops serve peas and scalloped potatoes.

With ham serve spinach and sweet potatoes.

With roast pork serve browned potatoes, either white or sweet, apple sauce and creamed onions.

With roast lamb serve mint sauce, currant jelly, string beans and mashed potatoes.

With boiled lamb serve caper sauce and stuffed peppers or scalloped tomatoes.

With roast chicken serve creamed onions, quince jelly, bread stuffing and browned sweet or white potatoes.

With fried chicken serve hominy and spinach.

The Nursing Bureau And Its Works

It would be hard to estimate the real value of the work done by the visiting nurses of the Nursing Bureau of Plainfield. During the last year 5,343 visits were made to 627 cases. These cases were reported at the office by the doctors, neighbors, relatives, Charity Organization Society, the King's Daughters and other sources. Many of them were unable to pay anything for the service rendered. Others paid what they could, 10, 15, 25 or even 50 cents a visit.

The nurses' daily schedule is as follows. She visits the office early in the morning and receives the calls for the day. Then she goes out upon her rounds, making ten or twelve calls a day, giving treatments, baths, etc. In each place she follows directions given or left by the physician in charge of the case. We do not visit cases unless they have a doctor as the nurses cannot prescribe. About 600 of the visits made this year were to obstetrical cases. Here the nurse visits every morning for ten days following confinement, and after that makes occasional calls. The baby is bathed and dressed every day and the mother cared for. Often the nurse finds that there is no one in the house capable of caring for the patients. Sometimes she has to cook a meal for the mother and dress and care for the other small children.

In few places does the nurse find proper utensils for caring for the ill. These are supplied or loaned by the bureau but as far as possible the nurse makes use of what she can find in the home.

Another part of our work is assisting the doctors in operations which must be done in homes where they cannot afford a resident nurse. Here the nurse visits the home beforehand if possible and makes sure that everything is clean and sanitary and the patient ready for the doctor. After the operation she waits until the patient is over the effects of the anaesthetic, arranges the room and makes the patient as comfortable as possible before she leaves, making supplementary visits when necessary.

Three times a week the nurses visit the Day Nursery and looks over the children there, visiting in their homes those who are excluded for sickness. Once a week she visits the Alms House and gives baths and treatments to those who need this service.

At the close of the afternoon, the nurse comes back to the office to write up her daily report and often finds calls which take her attention until late in the evening. She is of course in touch with the office through the day, receiving then what calls have come in after she left in the morning.

Once or twice a month, sometimes more often, the nurse is out all night on a serious case, going on with her regular work again through the next day, as we canot maintain a large enough force to relieve her for a much needed rest. Fortunately, the doctors are very considerate and do not often call the nurse until near morning.

Of course, the figures quoted above do not include the school work. This is quite separate yet is done under the direction of the Bureau as is the Tuberculosis Work in order that our nurses may not visit the same cases. In this way their energy and time is directed to the best advantage. 110,068 inspections were made in the Public Schools last year and 1,760 home visits. This means that the nurse assisted the Medical Inspector in preventing the spread of disease and in obtaining glasses, dental treatment, operations on tonsils and nose for the children who needed it, and in other important ways.

A very important part of our work is that among Italians and other fortigners who do not understand English and who need a great deal of help in acquiring "our ways." These people through ignorance break every law of health and the work of the nurses in these homes is of great value to the whole population of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

This year we had hoped to enlarge our work and to make it more efficient but unfortunately our funds are very low. The Bureau was originally started by contributions from the members of the Relief Committee of the Charity Organization Society and has been carried on for the past two years by them and by monthly subscriptions from the City Union of King's Daughters, Anti-Tuberculosis League, Charity Organization Society, Boards of Education of Plainfield and North Plainfield and by payments collects from patients. The North Plainfield Board has now had to drop their work in the schools so that our income has been reduced. Our force consists of a chief nurse and a pupil from Muhlenberg Hospital to assist her, a school nurse and a tuberculosis nurse.

We need $600 additional to carry on the work at all this next winter. Contributions for this purpose may be sent to Miss Helen Lovell, treasurer, 323 Babcock Building.

McALL RALLY MEETING.

The Plainfield Branch of the McAll Auxiliary will meet at the home of Mrs. Frederick G. Mead next Thursday morning at 11 o'clock, when Miss Florence St. John Baldwin, who has just returned from Paris, will address the members.

Some Cookery Suggestions

KEEPING GRAPES.

YOU will hear of many ways of keeping grapes for winter use, but the only plan that can be depended upon is to put them up. Among the many delicious methods of treating them some of the most popular are suggested here.

Raisins Epices.—Take three pounds each of grapes and sugar, two teaspoonfuls each of cinnamon and allspice, one-half a teaspoonful of cloves and one-quarter cupful of vinegar. Boil the skins of grapes until tender, cook the pulps, then strain and add the skins, spices and vinegar. Boil until of the consistency of marmalade.

Delicious Sweets.

Seedless Grape Preserves.—Wash and stem and squeeze the pulp in one pan while you put skins in another. Cook pulp until mashed, then put through a colander to remove seeds. Take skins and pulp, put on to boil, adding a cupful of sugar to two cupfuls of grapes, cook twenty minutes and then skim. Seal in glass jars.

Grape Conserve.—Take three pints of pulp and skin after removing the seeds from the grapes. Add three pounds of sugar, one pound of raisins cut into small pieces, one orange cut up fine, one pound of walnut meat broken into small pieces and added during last ten minutes of cooking. Cook slowly forty-five minutes, put into jelly glasses and when cold cover with paraffin.

A Popular Recipe.

Grape Marmalade.—Pick, wash, drain and remove stems from grapes. Separate the pulp from the skins; put the pulp in a preserving kettle, heat gradually to the boiling point and let simmer until the seeds separate from the pulp; then rub through a sieve. Return to the kettle with skins, add an equal quantity of sugar, again bring to the boiling point and let simmer thirty minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent burning. Put in jars and seal.

Canned Grapes.—Take grapes that are not too ripe. Pick from stems and pack in jars as closely as you can without breaking the skins. Make a sirup of half a cupful of sugar and a cupful of water and pour over each jar of fruit. If this sirup does not fill the jars add more water until it does; then put the top on without screwing down. Set the jars in a boiler upon folded towels or pieces of wood, anything to keep them from touching the bottom of the boiler. Pour in hot water to reach within two or three inches from the tops of the jars. Cover the boiler and place over the fire. Let the water boil for an hour, then remove the jars and seal.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—How Harold Tried to Rescue Naughty Kitty.

EVELYN gave Tabby three little pats as she seated herself beside the cushion on which the patient pet was trying to snatch forty winks of sleep before it should be time for her to go out.

"Tabby climbed up in the apple tree, and we had an awful time coaxing her down," Jack remarked.

"Ah, Frankie Green should teach his dog to let the pussies alone!" daddy declared. "Speaking of your trouble in getting Tabby down makes me think of a funny story I heard about a little boy whom a friend of mine knows.

"The little boy lives in a beautiful country town, and he has a number of pets. Just now the favorite is a little black kitten.

"A few weeks ago he went one morning with his mother to visit his grandma and grandpa and insisted on taking his kitty with him.

"They were given a warm welcome by grandma and grandpa, and after they had had something to eat the little boy took his kitten and went out on the lawn to play.

"Perhaps kitty was cross because she had been taken away from home. At any rate, she ran up a tree and, though Harold called and called, she wouldn't come down.

"Grandpa said he was too old to climb the tree, but he thought if Harold would just let the kitten alone by and by she would come down of her own accord. Then grandpa went back to the porch to finish his nap. Harold thought for a few minutes, and then he went into the house, took down the telephone and called to central to give him the fire department. When he got that number he said:

"'Come on over to Mr. Blossom's house. You are wanted right away.' Then he hung up the telephone and went back to watch the kitten.

"Presently the fire company came tearing down the street, with a mob of small boys at their heels. They swarmed over the lawn and up on the porch.

"'There isn't any fire here,' every one insisted—that is, every one but Harold.

"'No,' spoke up the little boy; 'they ain't no fire, but my kitty's up the apple-tree, and I wanted you to bring your ladder and get her down. It was me that runged the bell and talked to you.'

"Laugh? You should have heard people laugh. The firemen were not very well pleased, though, and never offered to get down the pussy.

"However, when they had gone away and Harold had been spanked and was sitting on the porch steps thinking how mean grown folks were sometimes, kitty came walking down herself and snuggled up to her little master as much as to say: 'Never mind; I love you. . Don't care about any others.'"

TRANSPARENT SLEEVES DISTINGUISH MANY OF THE NEW BLOUSES

Great is the vogue of the blouse this season. In chiffon, net and delicately patterned laces they are worn with skirts of moire, silk poplin, duvetyn and the numerous other supple drapy stuffs so smart at the moment.

Simple in line and design many of the blouses depend more or less for effect upon odd frills, quaint collars, vest effects and decorative materials. One distinguished little model (7913) has an overblouse with slightly low shoulder that would be most attractive in flowered chiffon. The underblouse, which has a full length sleeve, could be in one of the finely figured laces that are used so much just now. These laces are often dipped and tinted slightly to harmonize with the skirt or suit for which they are intended. A narrow frill finishes the neck prettily.

A most becoming conceit to wear the low cut blouse is a narrow band of satin or velvet ribbon not wider than a quarter of an inch, tied around the throat very high in the back.

7913 may be copied in size 36 with 2¼ yards of 36 inch material.

Another blouse in peasant design is perfectly plain without tuck or plait. The V shaped neck is finished with a softly folded fichu. Embroidered net or figured crepe is suitable for this model. Size 36 will require 2 yards of 36 inch material.

Loose and comfy to a degree are the blouses that slip on over the head, without opening front or back. No. 7933 is an attractive design in this style, the pointed peplum is a new fashion detail this season. This design requires for size 36, 2⅛ yards of 36 inch material. Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

Hygiene For Business Women.

First of all, seven or eight hours of sleep are necessary and if possible nine. Always have fresh air circulating in the bedroom. Cold weather need never be an excuse for tightly shut windows. No one who has honestly tried sleeping in a thoroughly ventilated room will willingly go back to the slow suffocation caused by the want of oxygen.

If after a day's trying ordeal the body is tired, the mind sore and discouraged and the spirit drooping, eat sparingly of something very wholesome and simple that is easily digested, relax for half an hour, read a light book or stretch out in some comfortable chair, then sponge the body over with the following lotion, which will soothe the wornout nerves, rest the limbs and induce sleep: Sea salt, four ounces; spirits of camphor, two ounces; spirits of ammonia, two ounces; pure alcohol, eight ounces.

Add sufficient water to make a full quart. Dissolve the salt in the hot water and let it stand until cool. Pour the spirits of camphor and ammonia into the alcohol, add the salt water and shake well, then bottle for use. Wet the body with this, then rub vigorously until the skin glows.

Whether the cold bath or the warm bath is taken, it is purely a question of individual taste and pleasure. If the cold water is chilling and there is no reaction after the friction the cold bath should not be indulged in. The French dermatologists object to the habitual cold plunge, preferring the warm bath with the use of a cooler spray afterward and a final rubdown with a toilet vinegar or astringent water. But this again is a matter of taste.

The next most important factor in the business woman's care of herself is exercise. Of course it is often impossible for her to take very much outdoor exercise except on Sundays and holidays, but a few moments in the morning given to physical culture or a few simple exercises adapted to her particular requirements will perform wonders.

Work will never injure looks or health if even ordinary care is bestowed on our bodies and if we follow conscientiously and carefully as far as possible the simple, homely rules of health. Physical culture is the result of long years of thought and experience and is designed to develop and does develop every muscle of the body. It gives poise and physical authority. Select three or four simple exercises and rise fifteen minutes earlier. It may seem trying at first, but after a few efforts the results will be so gratifying that the fifteen minutes given up to these exercises will become a pleasant habit.

Diet is another great factor in the care the business woman should give to herself. The first and most essential point in the matter of diet for the beauty seeker is that it should be plain and wholesome, not flavored with rich sauces or condiments, simple, nutritious and, above all, well cooked. Breakfast should be light, but ample, and the midday meal be more solid. For the hard worked business man and for the great army of women toilers it essentially applies that this meal should be wholesome, but not heavy—a repast that will give as much nourishment and stamina as possible in small bulk. Begin the day with a glass of hot or cold water; then the rest of the meals can be taken dry. Drink several glasses of pure water between meals.

No woman should ever go to bed hungry. A light luncheon of wafers and warm milk, hot water and brown bread or even a few dates is enough to stay the craving and induce sleep. The mistake is to eat heartily and hurriedly, imposing upon the stomach a full meal of half masticated food.

No Iced Drinks For Beauty.

Any girl who values or who is trying to cultivate a good complexion should not drink ice cold drinks of any kind. Plenty of cool water should be drunk, however, and two quarts each day is none too much, at least during the warm weather, says the Philadelphia Telegraph.

Some girls declare they never drink much water. To those I would say then it is high time they began. Just as the body requires to be flushed externally by bathing, so does it need internal flushing, and plenty of cool fresh water will do this better than medicine. If you are no water drinker try it for the summer and note the difference in your complexion a few months later. But do not be like the young girl who said, "Oh, I tried it, but it's no good." When asked how long she had tried, she said, "A couple of weeks." She might better not have tried at all. Another girl said that she was just becoming discouraged when one day she noticed how soft and satiny her skin appeared, where formerly it was muddy and sallow. When asked how long it had been since she started to drink water regularly, she replied, "About a year," and added that she really thought it worth while to cultivate the habit of drinking water. She realized, as many girls do not, that all the old refuse had to be got rid of first before any change for the better could take place, and naturally this takes time.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor.

Query—I have had a number of people trying to solve the following problem and all of them either give it up or could not agree as to the correct answer. As a last resort I appeal to you to help me out. A and B start from the same point and travel in opposite directions. If at the end of three weeks they are 1,800 miles apart, and two-thirds of the distance which A has traveled is equal to one-half the distance that B traveled, how far did each travel? B. F.

Answer—A traveled 792 6-7 miles. B traveled 1,057 1-7 miles. To prove this answer add the number of miles A traveled to the number B traveled, which total should be the number given in the question; also two-thirds of A's distance and one-half of B's should be equal. It's a cinch, who did you ask?

Query—Is it compulsory for my sister, coming from England, to have a certain sum of money with her or would the immigration officials permit her to land if I was there to claim her? X. D. R.

Answer—Your sister will be able to land provided she is passed by the health inspectors, as long as you are on hand to meet her and give assurances that she is not likely to become a public charge. Immigrants who have no money or friends here are not permitted to enter this country.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Has Brooklyn any more home games to play P. O.

Answer—No, not this year.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly let me know if Brooklyn led the National League at any time during this season? P. O.

Answer—Brooklyn led the National League something like thirty-six hours. They all fall.

Sporting Editor:

Query—A says when Toronto won the pennant last season the league was called the International League. B claims that it was called the Eastern League. Now tell the truth, who is correct? H. A. S.

Answer—International League. Why insist so strongly on the truth? Do a little "fibbing" yourself, is it?

Sporting Editor:

A team has lost twelve and won twenty-one games. What is the percentage? K. L. M.

MARSTON WINS MATCH.

Max R. Marston, the interscholastic golf champion, won the chief cup in the invitation tournament of the Essex County Country Club Saturday by defeating J. E. Cheeseman, of the home organization, by 7 up and 6 to play in the 36-hole final round. This is the first important trophy Marston has won this year outside of his interscholastic achievement.

FRANK LAPORTE SOLD.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 29.—Frank LaPorte, utility fielder of the Washington baseball club, was purchased yesterday by the Kansas City club of the American Association, according to a telegram received from President Tebeau, of the local club, who is in New York. The purchase price is not stated.

LEWIS LED AT TRAPS.

New York, Sept. 29.—Bert Lewis, of Auburn, Ill., carried off all the honors in the three-day trap shooting tournament which ended yesterday at Long Branch. Against a stiff wind he broke 91 out of 100 targets, winning the metropolitan handicap. The second man was J. H. Hendrickson, of Brooklyn, a member of the Olympic team, with 89. Lewis, who finished second in this year's grand American handicap, won another prize by breaking 138 out of 150, and still another for the fifth score of 419 out of 450 targets during the three days.

CROWN FOR TY COBB.

Ty Cobb's wonderful batting Saturday practically made certain that he would lead the American League again this season. It each game Saturday he got three hits, while Jackson's total for the afternoon was two. Cobb pounded out two triplets, a double and three singles.

CHAMPION MARSHALL WINS.

Champion Frank J. Marshall beat the Bohemian champion, Oldrich Duras, in the first match game of a series of five at the Manhattan Chess Club yesterday after thirty-six moves. In the afternoon a grand rapid transit tourney with Capablanca, Marshall, Duras, Kupchik, Ettinger, and Dr. Adair was played with a two-seconds time limit. Every player played one game with every other contestant, the resule being that Capablanca won the tourney with five straight wins to his credit. Marshall was second with four wins, while Duras and Kupchik were tied for third prize.

TEST FOR HEAVIES.

Sam Langford and Joe Jeannette, two of the three leading heavyweights in the ring today, and in some quarters considered the real top notchers of the division, will hold the centre of attention among the boxing enthusiasts of New York this week. The same is true in every section of the boxing world, as the bout should prove whether either or both of the negroes have retrograded and will furnish a line on their ability such as has not been furnished in two years. As the winner has been promised a match with Jack Johnson in Paris in December, neither will leave anything undone to get ready for the battle.

MILWAUKEE WINS IN WEST.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—The Milwaukee team clinched the pennant in the American Association Saturday by breaking even in a double-header with Louisville. The season closed yesterday.

PENNANT FOR DENVER.

Denver, Col., Sept. 30.—By defeating Des Moines Saturday Denver won the pennant in the Western League for the third consecutive time. Post series games with the winner of the American Association pennant are being negotiated by the owners of Denver to begin Oct. 7.

STARS WILL PLAY AGAIN.

Manager Ernest Dorflinger, of the Plainfield baseball team, has signed the International League Stars to play here again next Saturday against the Pets and will pit Harry Jennings against the leaguers on this occasion. Jennings twirled some good ball for the locals against Somerville two weeks ago and should make the visitors hustle this trip.

MARTIN TO BOSTON.

Jack Martin left for Boston, Mass., this morning, where he will report in uniform this afternoon to the Boston Braves manager. He will be given a tryout this week with that team by whom he has been drafted for next season.

TWO GIRLS WIN CUPS IN TENNIS TOURNEY

Miss Violet Cronce and Miss Margaret Endress the Church Champions.

Playing in the final round for the senior and junior feminine tennis singles championship of the First Baptist church on A. M. Harris' courts on Central avenue, Saturday afternoon, Miss Violet Cronce and Miss Margaret Endress were returned winners after wading through some hard fought matches in the preliminary and semi-final rounds. Two cups had been offered by A. M. Harris for competition in two classes of singles aspirants and the girls were divided into junior and senior divisions with a cup as the trophy for the winner in each department.

During the past three weeks numerous racquet wilders have engaged in the preliminary court battles and the series gradually narrowed down to a fight between Miss Violet Cronce and Miss Minnie Endress in the seniors and Miss Margaret Endress and Miss Travis Nash in the juniors. Miss Cronce beat her opponent in two hard fought matches Saturday afternoon, each of the sets being decided by scores of 6-4, and the winner of the cup was extended to the limit in her efforts to annex the trophy. The junior fight was a little more one-sided, Miss Margaret Endress defeating her opponent with apparent ease by scores of 6-1, 6-0.

PLAINFIELD AND NEWARK ONLY LEADERLESS TEAMS

With the exception of Newark and Plainfield, all the teams in the Elks Bowling League have elected captains and are trying out material with a view to selecting the members of their teams for the coming season. Plainfield will be somewhat handicapped because of the fact that the new alleys in the Watchung avenue clubhouse are not yet installed. It is expected, however, that they will be ready for use during the first week in October.

The captains of the various teams with the exception of those in Newark and Plainfield, follow: New York, L. Westphal; Jersey City, Thomas J. Corydon; Elizabeth, Henry Clauss; Rahway, Thomas Fyffe, New Brunswick, Walter L. Burton; West Orange, Fred W. Oetgel; Paterson, William Dill; Hoboken, William H. Maxon, Jr.

P. J. M'KEON WINS P. C. C. TOURNAMENT

P. J. McKeon, by defeating W. A. Engeman, 2 up and 1 to play, won the Fall tournament, Class A, at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday. This match was to have been played a week ago, but was postponed by mutual consent. The Class B match was decided last week.

There was a match play handicap against the par score of the course, which is 70, in which there were about thirty entries. This was won by J. Whitney Baker, who was 3 down to par. Charles A. Reed was 4 down and R. S. Rowland and George T. Rogers were both 6 down.

These scores were returned in the weekly sweepstakes:

W. M. Alling, 96, 27-69; T. S. Wheeler, 89, 19-70; R. C. Blanck, Jr., 97, 22-75; George T. Rogers, 103, 27-76; Burnett C. Kenyon, 99, 20-79; Will T. Glenney, 84, 4-80; J. R. Evans, 101, 19-83; R. G. Morse, 94, 11-83.

There was the weekly dinner-dance at the clubhouse in the evening, which was largely attended by the members.

P. C. SWEENEY CHAMPION OF PARK GOLF CLUB

Peter C. Sweeney won the championship of the Park Golf Club, Saturday afternoon by defeating Dr. H. K. Carroll, 1 up (19 holes), in the finals. The match was one of the best witnessed on the course this year and a good sized gallery followed the players. The winner went out and came home in 44, the total being 88, while Dr. Carroll was two 47s, for a total of 94. The contestants were all even at the 18th hole and on the extra hole, Mr. Sweeney won out.

These cards were returned for the President's cup:

HONORS FOR GIRL ATHLETE.

Miss Alice Mehl, who graduated from the Plainfield High School in the class of 1911 and who took a post-graduate course in that institution in 1912, was elected president of her class in the Montclair Normal School last week, where she is a sophomore.

PLAINFIELD LOST BUT JACK MARTIN GAVE THE FANS SOME REAL BASEBALL

If Jack Martin had been wearing a Pet uniform Saturday afternoon instead of one with a big "Rochester" scrolled across the front, and if his big brother Britt had been playing the role that Jack Breen starred in around the keystone bag at Parker Field, the band could have rendered "Auld Lang Syne" with all appropriateness and the fans would have yelled their heads off to celebrate the return of the prodigal to the Queen City fold. But Jack was garbed in foreign regalia, his brother was not in evidence, there was no band to render the old time hit, and last of all, the fans wanted the Pets to show the Martin herd that they were just as good as the International's All Star troupe. Jack had everything against him but his desire to trim his former associates and he completed this end of the deal by giving the locals the short end of a 6 to 0 score.

In wielding the brush of kalsomine the International Leaguers performed some feats of rare baseball and taken altogether, the bill on the Pets' home battlefield was the best offered here this season. With nothing to lose and everything to gain the leaguers lambasted the offerings of "Germany" George Ortlieb to the four corners of the lot and when the final gun of the bombardment was boomed and the curtain fell the champions of the Central New Jersey League were smeared "or smothered" with whitewash and the runners-up in the International organization had annexed six runs, pounded the pellet for nineteent bingles and returned a card unmarred by misplays.

It was a big day for Jack Martin and his company of cultured leaguers and when the sun-browned Plainfielder strode to the plate in the opening round he received an ovation that rocked the stands and made up for the absence of a brass band. He responded by giving the soberiod an express train trip to the center garden for a clean hit. Jack did likewise in his second time at the bat and in his last trio of appearance before Ortlieb he dented the German heaver's delivery for vicious drives to the outfield patrol who gobbled them up on the wing. Between the acts Martin sparkled as a fielder and his lightning stop and quick throw to first in the opening round for a double play was a sight that pulled a burst of applause from the home folks. His second double play was equally as clever and totaled up and balanced the Plainfielder's day's work in Rochester woolens was enough to supply any hot stove fan with enough of the reminiscent stuff to last all winter.

Over 1,400 wore a path from the trolley car to Parker Field (the-land-of-the-free-when-you-pay-for-it) and they were treated to a great finale of the Pets' diamond season. So much of the brilliancy prevailed, however, that Dorflinger decided to double up the finale and send Harry Jennings in to tame the leaguers next week on the same field. Saturday furnished the necessary prelude to the big exhibition and the crowd ought to be doubled next week.

Hardly before the battle had opened George Orelieb signaled for a hearse but there was no one available to ride in the second carriage and the big blonde had to continue serving them over the pan to the relentless opposing forces. The visitors could have just as well scored twenty-six as six runs but they knew that their teammate, Jack Martin, had to exist in this burg during the winter months and took their spite out by splitting several wagon tongues rather than circling the bases. Rysiegle (he wants to be called Murphy, because his name is never spelled the same way twice) on the other hand, was invincible and took a sarcastic delight in humiliating the local sluggers. Hoff was originally slated to twirl but was taken sick at the last moment and patroled the right field beat instead; but even if the sorrel topped hurler had performed it is doubtful if he would have done any better than the big fellow with the legs as far divergent as the flag pole at Parker Field is from that 1911 Central New Jersey League pennant.

In fielding Plainfield was good but its opponents were better. The Stars' hits were all scorchers and the Pets' infielders had their hands full in trying to handle the bingles. Eddie Stallings stopped one off Jordon's bat that made a noise resembling a ferryboat hitting the slip at Liberty street and Stalings' glove was red hot for three minutes after the contact.

MARTIN'S STARS FORFEIT A GAME

New Brunswick Awarded the Contest in Tenth Inning Yesterday Afternoon.

MARVELOUS PITCHING

Work of Rival Moundsmen the Brilliant Feature—Two Local Boys in the Lineup—Hillock Supporters Fanned 23 Batters.

After wading through ten scoreless innings, during which many thrills had been uncorked, the New Brunswick and International League Stars ended their battle with a fight of words in the tenth stanza which resulted in the umpire awarding the contest to the Brunswick players by a score of 0 to 0, at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon, he having declared the leaguers at fault in their arguments. The greatest feature of the game and one that attracted no little amount of attention from the fans was the air-tight pitching of the rival moundsmen, "Doc" Scanlon, formerly of the Brooklyn National League club, and Reisgle, who shut out the Pets Saturday, opposing each other on New Brunswick and International All-Star mounds, respectively.

Reisgle duplicated his pitching stunt of Saturday and allowed the opposition but a trio of bingles and fanned an even dozen, while Scanlon was touched for five hits and disposed of eleven along the one-two-three route. Each side made two errors, neither of which figured prominently in the contest.

RANDOLPH WAS BUMPED.

Cliff Randolph was pounded for a total of fourteen hits in Brooklyn, yesterday, pitching for the Brooklyn Suburbans against the Brooklyn National League team and lost out by 7 to 2. Randoph's shoots were easy picking for the leaguers and his record of scoreless innings, which had totaled themselves up to thirty-six, was marred completely by the Dodgers.

TENNIS PLAYER INJURED.

While playing in the final match against Frank Dunning for the tennis singles championship of the North Plainfield High School last Friday, Hoyt Tomkinson severely wrenched his ankle and will be unable to compete in the class doubles championship which opens today.

HOW "MATTY" TRAINS FOR THE WORLD'S SERIES.

Christopher Mathewson, the peer of baseball pitchers, who is expected to play the leading role once more in a World's Series, visited his sister-in-law, Mrs. P. B. Cregar, of Grant avenue, yesterday and took a little exercise while in the Queen City by limbering up on the links of the Plainfield Country Club.

"Matty" made the trip from New York in his big touring car, the gift of admiring fans, and brought with him his golf clubs, his latest acquisition along the athletic lines. Matty is a golfing enthusiast of the thirty-second degree and believes in wielding the brassie and treading the greens as a training diet for the big series.

ERRATIC PLAYING MARRED THIS GAME

Joe Albert's Crew was Humiliated by Central League Stars Yesterday.

An all-star cast composed of Central New Jersey League players defeated the Scotch Plains baseball club on the latter's field yesterday afternoon by a score of 8 to 4. Louis Slocum, who twirled for the home nine, received discouraging support from his teammates.

Pierce Harney twirled for the visitors, and Louis Dixon holding up his speedy underhand shoots, had the 'Plainers completely puzzled at times. He too received rather poor backing up.

FINAL MATCHES TO DECIDE CLUB TITLE

Mrs. Morris Dumont and Miss Edna Wildey Win the Women's Doubles Title.

Contesting the last women's tournament of the season at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday afternoon, Miss Edna Wildey and Mrs. Morris Dumont won the women's doubles tennis chaimpionship of the club by defeating Miss Elsie Burke and Miss Burke by scores of 6-0, 6-3. Playing a steady and aggressive game the winning pair had little trouble in disposing of their opponents who were unable to come out ahead in a single game in the first set. The second match was more evenly fought but Mrs. Dumont and Miss Wildey were never in immediate danger.

During the early part of the afternoon Miss Wildey and Mrs. Dumont earned the right to compete in the finals by vanquishing Mrs. F. C. Osbourne and Miss Eleanor DeGraf with scores of 6-0, 6-2. The champions won their title playing against a large field of entrants and will receive gold bar pins as a reward for their superior racquet wielding during the tourney.

OBSERVE 125TH ANNIVERSARY

10th monthly, 1787, the subject of a new meeting house having again been brought up, a large committee was appointed to select a site for such a house in a more central location, as at this time Friends were located along Green brook from Scotch Plains to the fulling mill, about seven miles west, a place better known in recent years as Sebring's mill.

The 11th month this committee reported as follows: "Tthe committee all agreed that a lot of land containing three acres near the house of John Webster, 3rd, would be a suitable place for said house to be built on, and proposed that the house should be about 34 by 48 feet. They have promoted a subscription and it appeared there was upwards of three hundred pounds subscribed. After duly considering this report the meeting agreed upon the place proposed and the size of the house and appointed William Shotwell, Hugh Webster, William Webster, David Vail, Ambrose Copeland, Edward Moore, William Smith and Edward Fitz Randolph as a committee with authority to purchase the land, agree with some persons to undertake the building, as might be judged best and to call on the subscribers for the money." At a later date "said committee was given liberty to use the timber on the lot where the old meeting house stood, and also to decide as to the expediency of appropriating any part of the old house toward building the new one." About this time a committee was appointed "to examine the titles of our several meeting-house lots and take new conveyances if it appeared necessary and to deposit them in the hands of the clerk of the meeting." These Friends were also to act as trustees of the Monthly Meeting's property. About a year later we find the following: "The committee on meeting-house deeds report that by the will of John Laing, deceased, half an acre of land was left by him and which they expect is the same whereon the old meeting-house now stands and the burying ground; that the deeds for the other lots, viz.: Those at Woodbridge, Rahway, Mendham and where the new meeting-house now stands, are delivered to Joseph Shotwell, clerk of this meeting, till called for by the meeting. As it appears that the deed taken from Joseph Laing may include the same ground the old meeting-house and burying ground at Plainfield stands on, and he agreeing to refund the money on the deed being delivered up, David Vail and Edward Fitz Randolph are appointed to the service and desired to report to the next meeting." In their report they state, "He is willing to return paper money on the deeds being delivered up," and the same Friends are appointed to finish the business and pay the money to the committee appointed to build the meeting-house in this place, to be applied toward building the same, "which service was performed before the next meeting." It may be of interest just here to mention that Edward Fitz Randolph, who was not only a member of this committee and the committee to have the care and oversight of building the new meeting-house, but was a mechanic who assisted in its erection, was the same Edward Fitz Randolph who, a few years before, had conducted General Washington, at his request, to a prominent point on the brow of the Watchung Mountain that he might get a commanding view of the country and locate the camp of the enemy. That spot has since borne the name of Washington Rock. We find it recorded that the Monthly Meeting of 8th month, 20th 1788, was held at "Our New Meeting house at Plainfield," but new meeting-houses were not so rare by this time and this heading was modestly confined to that first Monthly Meeting held in the new building. While the meeting-house was so far completed as to be used by 8th month, 1788, the final report of the committee was not presented until 4th month, 31st 1790, and was as follows: "The committee appointed to have the care and oversight of the new meeting house at Plainfield report they have performed the service and the expense of the house was £474-7s-10d exclusive of what stuff was got from the old meeting-house. Adding to this the £47-17s-3d, which was paid for the three acres of land and fencing the same, the total was £522-7s-10d, all of which was paid by subscriptions received and the sale of the old meeting-house property, and a balance of £1-2s-2d returned to the monthly meeting."

Trusting I may not be infringing on the subjects of those who follow me I have copied from the minutes of a Monthly Meeting held 11th month, 1788, an item which attracted my attention and which shows that Friends were early in the temperance work: "An extract from the minutes of the Yearly Meeting was read and contents recommended to the observances of our members individually, and it being the concern of that meeting to discourage the use of ardent spirits, recommends that committees be appointed in each Quarterly and Monthly Meeting to visit such as are in the practice of importing it for themselves or agents for others and those who purchase and retail in greater or less quantities, or those who are concerned in the distillation of spirits from grain or other products either in their own families or encouraging or promoting it in others, and to recommend and advise those who make use of it in a medicinal way to be careful to keep within the bounds of true moderation in the use of it for that purpose, and that our members in general refrain from the practice of using it in the time of harvest or otherwise." While this concern was directed toward the restoration of our own members from the use of ardent spirits, a brief extract from a Monthly Meeting held at Amboy 31st of 5th month, 1688, just one hundred years earlier, presents another side of the subject. This, too, came down from the Yearly Meeting and was as follows: "The practice of selling rum or other strong liquor to the Indians directly or indirectly or exchanging rum or other strong liquor for any goods or merchandise with them, considering ye abuse they make of it, is a thing contrary to ye mind of ye Lord, and great grief and burden to His people and a great reflection and dishonor to the truth, so far as any professing it are concerned. And for yet more effectual preventing this evil practice we advise as aforesaid that this our testimony may be entered in every Monthly Meeting book and every Friend belonging to the meeting to subscribe to the same."

The first marriage on record as having taken place in Plainfield after the completion of the new meeting-house, and which presumably took place in this building, was that of David Pound and Mary Shotwell. A perusal of the certificate recorded in the book of marriages will show how far a Friend's marriage differs from a common law marriage:

"Whereas, David Pound, of the township of Piscataway, county of Middlesex, in the province of East Jersey, and Mary Shotwell, of the same place, having declared their intentions of marriage with each other before several meetings of the people called Quakers, of Rahway and Plainfield, according to the good order used amongst them; and having the consent of parents their said proposals were allowed of by the meeting.

"Now these are to certify, to whom it may concern, that for the full accomplishment of their intentions this twenty-seventh day of the tenth month in the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety, the said David Pound and Mary Shotwell appeared at a public meeting of said people at Plainfield, and the said David Pound taking the said Mary Shotwell by the hand, did in solemn manner, openly declare, that he took her, the said Mary Shotwell to be his wife, promising with the Lord's assistance to be unto her a loving and faithful husband until separated by death. And then and there in the said assembly the said Mary Shotwell did in like manner declare that she took him, the said David Pound, to be her husband, promising with the Lord's assistance to be unto him a loving and faithful wife until death should separate them. And moreover, the said David Pound and Mary Shotwell, she according to the custom of marriage, assuming the name of her husband, as a further confirmation thereof, did then and there to these presents set their hands, David Pound, Mary Pound, and we whose names are hereunder subscribed, being present at the solemnization of said marriage and subscription, have, as witnesses thereunto, set our hands the day and year above written." Then follow the names of thirty-seven witnesses.

In 1888, when this building had braved the elements for one hundred years, Plainfield Friends desirous of appropriately recognizing that event appointed a committee consisting of Nathan Harper, chairman; George R. Pound, Samuel B. Underhill, Aaron M. Powell, Mary Jane Field, Catherine R. Webster and Sarah Underhill to arrange suitable exercises for that occasion. The following program was prepared and carried out on the 8th month, 20th of that year:

Scripture reading by Nathan Harper, chairman; also Historical Paper by Nathan Harper; Biographical Notes of Early Friends of Plainfield by Oliver B. Leonard; Women in the Society of Friends, by Elizabeth Lo Tetra; Past and Future of the Society of Friends, by Aaron M. Powell poem written for the occasion by Edward N. Harned and read by Robinson Pound; reading of Whittier's poem, "A Quaker of The Olden Time," by Anna Rice Powell.

A large and appreciative audience was present, many from out of town We find that among the forty-seven persons mentioned in the Daily Press of that issue as being present at, or taking part in these exercises, all but three have passed on into the great beyond.

I quote a few thoughts from the able paper prepared by Nathan Harper and read at that time: "The storms of one hundred winters have beaten upon this venerable pile and yet shingle sided and wrought nailed—with the exception of a portion of one end that was damaged by fire and repaired in 1873—it stands outwardly as of yore, while within its massive framed timbers richly browned, not by artistic brush but by the mellowing hand of time, clearly shows the marks of implements wielded by the sturdy forefathers of 1788. The great and distinguishing history of this old house is interwoven with the sacred and vitally important cause of religion. Here thronged congregations met to engage in silent adoration or listen to words of earnest exhortation. From these raised seats the most eminent ministers of the Society have proclaimed with demonstration and power the glad message of gospel truth and love and borne valiant testimony against worldly evils and human wrongs. Generations have come and gone; the years have performed a hundred circuits; still the protecting wing of Ancient Goodness remains outstretched, and numbers weekly assemble within these age tinted walls to partake of spiritual communion after the plain and simple manner of Fox and Penn."

For years this meeting-house was the only place of public worship in this vicinity, the surrounding country being settled principally by Friends; but as the city has grown up around us many other denominations have come to be our neighbors The railroad with its roar and rumble, the trolley with its clang and clatter, the ever increasing city traffic have encroached upon our quietude, but still the consecrated worshipper having entered into his closet and closed the door against this outside confusion, may in that "Holy of Holies," meet and commune with the Father of Spirits.

Although our numbers at the present time are not large, memory for some of us can fill this room with the familiar forms and faces of those who have passed on into the higher life, leaving us to move foreward and take up the work they laid aside. We miss those serene faces beneath the plain bonnets and broad brimmed hats; we long for the dignity, the stability, the spirituality which they represented but we have had to learn that while they may not come back to us, God, who is the Fountain of Truth, of Wisdom and of Inspiration is the same yesterday, today and forever and a Father ever ready to give spiritual gifts to His trusting children.

At the conclusion of Miss Vail's sketch, Mrs. Ella H. Williams recited a poem by Hayes, entitled, "Old Meeting-houses." The address of the afternoon was given by Henry W. Wilbur, a New York lawyer, who is prominent in the Society of Friends. The subject assigned the speaker was "Why Friends Exist As a Separate Religious Organization?" He said at the beginning that the subject chosen was by request and not inspiration.

"When we fail to respect the honored past we should cease to make history," declared Mr. Wilbur. He said that upon a visit to Christ Church College, Oxford, he noticed that there was no picture of the famous seventeenth century student, William Penn, which he thought was a mistake.

Returning to his topic, the speaker said that it was genuinely modern. Everything is being challenged today and if it cannot show a valid reason for existence it must get out of the way. One cannot get away from the law of descent. It makes no difference what it is everything present is based on the past. Mr. Wilbur then reviewed the history of the Society of Friends from the beginning, pointing out how religious bodies were divided and adding that the Society of Friends is the only one to perpetuate its system to date. In this respect the society is unique

Mr. Wilbur said there was a time when Friends and Baptist were put in jail for the same offense, but they have ceased to quarrel. Turning to the present day conditions, Mr. Wilbur said that modern life is keyed up to the intensity of electricity. All are in a hurry and there is overwrought nervous tension. This is the transitory period in religious history. It is a time when men cannot be driven into the Kingdom of God nor driven from the other place.

"There are inherent reasons why we should continue," said the speaker. "We have boxed the compass of truth. The modern world is tired of mere entertainment of worship. It is hungry for the truth to be found in a divinely appointed Friends meeting What is wanted is not less liberty but more. There is inspiration in the prayer, Scripture reading, sermon and even the song. A larger type of democratic feeling is required and we should not be unmindful of social obligations and duties. Friends have a right to occupy their present ground We do not want to seek the level of a debating society, but should seek the proper spiritual impulse. We cannot expect those who are to follow to do the work we have failed to do, we must do it ourselves."

Concluding the afternoon session, Mrs. Phoebe C. Wright, of Sea Girt who is about 84 years of age, spoke a few words of encouragement. Daniel Willett, of Trenton, also spoke Between the afternoon and evening session, women of the society served supper in the upper room of the meeting-house.

The evening session at 7:45 o'clock was devoted to two strong and able papers, one by L. Hollingsworth Wood on the subject of "The Message of Quakerism to the World Today," and the other by Miss Carolena M Wood on "Our Inheritance and Its Modern Application." Mr. Wood said that the message of Quakerism, ancient and modern, is and always has been love, confidence and unbounded faith. He said that Christ bearing the sins of the world means something and that to be partakers of Christ means suffering. Men are drawn by their sense of need and that they will find in the message of Quakerism.

In speaking on the subject of "Our Inheritance and Its Modern Application," Miss Wood dwelt on the magnificent faith of Quakerism, its enormous sympathy, its superb energy and indominitable courage. She said that there are 125,000 Friends in America and about 20,000 in England, and then she went on to show what the society is doing both at home and abroad in its far-reaching influence for the cause of Christ. She said that it was a blessed thing to have a seeking world, but far more so to have a finding world. Miss Wood closed her remarks with a fervent prayer.

While the anniversary services closed last night, the meeting yesterday morning was made interesting by the presence of Joel Borton, of Philadelphia, Pa., who addressed those present.

The heads of the various committees in charge of the anniversary were: Clarence B Vail, chairman of committees; Richard D. Williams, chairman for the day; program, Mrs Ella H. Williams; reception, Mrs Gertrude M. Stringham; refreshment Harry C. Vail; press, Edward D. Hutchinson.

THE OLD BRITISH

Convict Ship "SUCCESS"

The Oldest Ship Afloat (launched 1790 A. D.) and Only Survivor of England's Terrible Fleet of "Ocean Hells."

NOW IN NEWARK ON TOUR OF THE WORLD

THIS WONDERFUL VESSEL HAS MADE HISTORY

Through three centuries. She marked the beginning and the end of England's monstrous penal system.

She has held lurid horror and dreadful iniquities beside which even the terrible stories of the Black Hole of Calcutta and the Spanish Inquisition pale into insignificance.

She is the oldest ship in the world and the only convict ship left afloat out of that dreadful "Fleet of Hells" which sailed the Seven Seas in 1790 A. D.

She is unchanged after all these years, nothing being omitted but her human freight and their suffering from the cruelties and barbarities practised upon them.

Aboard her are now shown, in their original state, all the airless dungeons and condemned cells, the whipping posts, the manacles, the branding irons, the punishment bails, the leaden-tipped cat-o'-nine tails, the coffin bath and the other fiendish inventions of man's brutality to his fellow man.

From keel to topmast she cries aloud the greatest lesson the world has ever known in the history of human progress.

The Convict Ship "Success" is the Greatest and Most Extraordinary Exhibition That Ever Visited America. It is a Theme for the Pen of a Dante. When You Walk Her Decks, Grooved with the Chains of Her Miserable Victims, the Past Will Speak to You Its Sad and Mournful Lesson, But You Will Leave Feeling Better Because You Live in a Better Age.

The Convict Ship is lighted throughout with electricity so that her manifold wonders can be comfortably inspected. A corps of high-class guides and lecturers are always on duty, to conduct visitors over her three decks brimful of historic and educational interest.

STATE ENDEAVOR SOCIETY TO MEET

Three Days' Annual Convention Begins Tomorrow at Camden.

PROGRAM IN DETAIL

State President John T. Sproull to Preside—Rev. Dr. Floyd T. Tompkins and Rev. Dr. Russell P. Conwell to Be Among the Speakers.

The New Jersey Christian Endeavor societies will gather in Camden tomorrow, when the State union will begin its twenty-seventh annual convention in the Calvary Presbyterian church.

State President John T. Sproull, assisted by leading State workers, has prepared a program of much interest for the three days' session.

Rev. John W. Van Zanten, of Metuchen, chairman of the program committee, will have all in readiness for the opening meeting at 2 o'clock, when a workers' conference will be held.

At 6 o'clock the executive committee will hold its final session, followed at 8 o'clock by the attendance of the delegates at the regular church prayer meetings, a new feature of a State convention, but an innovation sure to prove popular with the local pastors.

Thursday morning there will be an early prayer service at 6:30 o'clock, conducted by Mr. Sproull, and a similar meeting on Friday. The topic both days will be "Looking Unto Jesus."

The convention proper will convene Thursday morning, when the usual greetings and responses will be made. A prominent feature Thursday will be a quiet hour service led by Rev. Dr. Floyd W. Tompkins, of Philadelphia.

Following Dr. Tompkins the heads of the State departments will present their annual reports as follows: Junior, Miss Mae Hice; intermediate, Mrs. G. D. Baker; missionary, Miss Margaret H. Logan; evangelistic, Rev. J. Francis Morgan; Bible study, Rev. J. Madison Hare; fresh air, H. A. Marshall; Christian citizenship and Sabbath observance, Rev. F. W. Johnson, D. D.; colored societies, Rev. J. J. Adams; introduction, Percy R. Nuessle; press, Frederick L. Minter. Mr. Marshall, Miss Logan and Mr. Nuessle are from the Essex union.

The afternoon session will be devoted to Dr. Shiver's address on "Immigration." Mr. Sproull will present the result of the new headquarters committee, toward which New Jersey Endeavorers have pledged $1,000, to be erected in Boston.

Rev. Dr. Russel P. Conwell, of Philadelphia, will speak at night on the work the Baptist Endeavorers are doing.

Miss Nellie K. Foote, of Elizabeth, will read the report of the State secretary and W. C. Acken, of Metuchen, will present the treasurer's annual report.

The nominating committee, Rev. Judson Conklin, of Trenton, chairman, will report, and officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

A reception, arranged by the Camden committee, will follow the session Thursday evening, the delegates meeting in the chapel.

Friday will be a day full of interest. The morning addresses will be by Rev. W. Ralph Hall, of Philadelphia, on "Young People's Work;" Rev. W. B. Greenway, of Philadelphia, former president of the Essex Union, and John G. Wyburn, superintendent of the Jerry McAuley Water Street Mission, New York city.

A school of methods on prayer meeting, lookout, social and missionary work will close the morning session.

Junior and intermediate work will be the theme for Friday afternoon.

The principal address in the afternoon will be made by Rev. Dr. J. M. Farrar, of Brooklyn, on "The Children's Church."

The closing session Friday evening will include the usual roll call of the counties, reports of committee on resolutions and announcement of awards from the State union. One address will be a message by State President Sproull.

FINED IN POLICE COURT.

Charged by the Board of Health with an offense which has long been a nuisance to those living in the vicinity of Exchange alley running from West Second to West Front street, Richard Henderson, was fined $5 this morning by City Judge DeMeza.

LODGE MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of Craigielea Lodge, No. 431, Auxiliary to Clan Mackenzie, will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Several matters of importance will come up for discussion.

HOLY NAME MEMBERS TO PARADE OCT. 12

Annual Demonstration of Union County Societies Will Be Held at Elizabeth.

A committee of members of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's church is making preparations for the monster annual parade of the Holy Name Societies of Union county, which will be held this year in Elizabeth, on Sunday, Oct. 12, the day preceding Columbus Day.

Last year's event took place in this city, when over 5,000 Catholics walked in line through the city's streets, and took part in services on the grounds surrounding St. Mary's church. This year's parade, as planned, should eclipse any previous demonstration held in the county against blasphemy and immorality.

The local delegation will take a special train for Elizabeth from the North avenue station shortly after 1 o'clock. Headed by a band of standard bearers, a line will be formed near the Elizabeth railroad station and the marchers will proceed to the place arranged for the start of the parade.

ELIZABETH TIMES PRAISES PLAINFIELD

Quotes Dr. Maxson's Contributed Editorial in This Paper.

In its editorial columns yesterday, the Elizabeth Times had this to say:

"Henry M. Maxson, in The Plainfield Press, explains what is being done to improve the physical training department of the public schools by the establishment of a swimming pool in the new High School, now in a state of near-completion. There will be a few to dispute Mr. Maxson's position and only words of praise belong to The Plainfield Press for the support it has tendered the movement. A new High School is being constructed in this city, and it might be well for the Board of Education and the Superintendent of Schools to pay Plainfield a visit for the purpose of looking over the work described by Mr. Maxson. Elizabeth's new High School should lack nothing in its equipment that will tend to promote harmonious development.

"Mr. Maxson says, in part:

"'The physical training department will be further improved by the installation of a swimming pool. By many people this is considered a 'frill,' but that is a wrong conception. In my judgment, it is one of the most important parts of the building. There is no better all-around exercise than that of swimming. In these days, when all natural opportunities to swim have been closed, it is essential that every city should have a place where its boys and girls can learn this indispensable art. It will be one of the most constantly used features of the building, and will be in charge of trained instructors, who will insure the safety of the users and give instruction in swimming. Through its means, practically every boy and girl that enters the High School in the future will learn to swim, and so be fortified for saving his own life and the lives of others in the water. The pool will be equipped with filters through which the whole contents of the pool will be run every eight hours. By the use of the filters and by means of chemicals, all impurities are removed, so that chemical analysis shows that the water in the pool is even more pure than it was when it came from the water mains of the city.'"

IN POLICE COURT.

Three runaway boys from Newark, who wandered into this city Sunday from South Plainfield, where they had alighted from a Lehigh Valley Railroad train, were brought home yesterday by their parents, who were notified. They are: William Keimbler, 12 years old, of 544 Bergen street; Walter Blair, 15 years old, of 579 Bergen street, and Charles Tumblety, 11 years old, of 916 Chadwick avenue.

IN AN ACCIDENT.

Herbert Havelin and Elmer Felton, both of Rahway, riding tandem style on a motorcycle Sunday, collided with James George, 16 years old, of Greenbrook road, at Front and Somerset streets, and caused injuries to the local lad, which necessitated his removal to Muhlenberg Hospital. He was sent home yesterday, suffering with bruises about the head and body.

Y. M. C. A. SCHEDULE FOR SEASON'S WORK

Physical Department Medical Examinations to Be Started This Afternoon.

The first of the medical examinations to be conducted at the Y. M. C. A. for all members will be held in the association this afternoon when fifty members of the boys' department will undergo the tests at the hands of a corps of six local physicians who have offered their services. There are about 185 boys in this department that will have to take the examinations before they will be allowed to go on the gymnasium floor and the applicants will be handled in sections of about fifty each, so as to assure a thorough test for each individual.

The members of the senior department will be examined later in the week, at a time set by Physical Director E. C. Ostlin who has charge of this new innovation. The regular schedule of association work will get under way next Monday afternoon when the boys' department will open its doors. The schedule for this term as compiled by the Y. M. C. A. officials is as follows: Seniors, Tuesday and Thursday evenings, from 8 to 9.30 o'clock; business men, Monday and Wednesday evenings, from 5.40 to 6.30 o'clock; employed boys, Monday and Friday evenings, from 8.15 to 9.30 o'clock; high school (National League), Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, from 4 to 5 o'clock; High School (Freshmen), Tuesday and Thursday mornings, from 10 to 11 o'clock; boys (14 to 16 years, College League), Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, from 3 to 4 o'clock; boys (12 to 14, Indian League), Monday and Wednesday afternoons, from 3 to 4 o'clock; Leal School, Monday and Wednesday afternoons, from 4 to 5 o'clock; suburban boys, Tuesday afternoon, from 5 to 6 o'clock, and Friday afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock; Boys' Club, Friday night, from 7 to 8 o'clock; basketball league, Wednesday and Saturday evenings, from 8to 9:30 o'clock.

PUBLIC ORCHESTRA READY FOR CONCERT

Dr. Maxson Attends Rehearsal—Miss Ryno Supervisor of Recreation Committee.

The Senior Municipal Orchestra held a most successful rehearsal at the Washington School, last night, in preparation for the first public concert to be given on Monday night, October 13, in the main auditorium of the First Presbyterian church. The public is invited to be present. Dr. H. M. Maxson, together with members of the Public Recreation Committee, was present last night, and Dr. Maxson made a few interesting remarks of encouragement to the musicians.

The recreation committee at its meeting, last night, decided to engage Miss Emma Ryno, of North Plainfield, as temporary supervisor, succeeding Miss Lois Nutting, until a permanent supervisor is obtained. Miss Ryno has had experience in this work, but as she is a pupil in the North Plainfield High School, she would be unable to devote her whole time to the work at present.

SELL THEIR BUSINESS AFTER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

The Misses A. L. and M. D. Gorsline, for the past twenty-five years engaged in the art embroidery business in this city, have sold out the business to Mrs. S. J. Bininger, also of this city. The change will take effect October 1, when the Misses Gorsline will retire.

This business which is one of the oldest in the city has been conducted at its present location on Park avenue for the past fifteen years. Prior to that for ten years the store was located in the basement of the old First National Bank building on Front street, opposite Park avenue. The firm's reputation has extended far beyond the borders of New Jersey and it has had a considerable trade in far distant places. Mrs. Bininger, the new owner, has had an extensive experience in the business and is well known here.

BORO FIREMEN MEET TONIGHT.

A meeting of members of the North Plainfield Fire Department has been called by Chief McCullough for tonight at 7.30 o'clock, in the engine house in Somerset street.

REMOVES HIS OFFICE.

M. F. Gano has moved his real estate and insurance office from North avenue to the Babcock building.

IMPROVE EDIFICE OF CONGREGATION

Many Changes Made at First Baptist Church Now Ready for Use Again.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE

Fine Romanesque Decorations With Window Lights in Harmony—New Flooring, Lighting, Ventilators and a Tower Included.

With the exception of rebuilding the stone tower, which will take some time, the extensive improvements at the First Baptist church are about completed and the congregation will again worship there on Sunday for the first time in two months. During that period the interior of the edifice has been entirely redecorated, new flooring has been laid, there has been a re-arrangement of the electric lighting system about the organ, three ventilators have been placed in the roof, and new stained glass windows have replaced the old ones. All of the work has been under the supervision of Charles H. Smith, as architect.

The decorations, which are in Romanesque style, have for the chief color effects brown and green and are much lighter than before. This work was done by John Hartell & Co., of New York. The design about the arch over the organ is especially attractive, and instead of the pulpit lights there are concealed lights above the arch, the work of A. M. Higgins, of this city.

The new stained glass windows are much lighter than the old ones, being opal glass also of Romanesque design, and the effect is pleasing. It is proposed to place a memorial window in the front of the church, which will be either Holman Hunt's "Light of the World," or "The Baptism of Christ by John the Baptist." That window will be put in position as soon as a decision is reached by the officers of the church. The windows have been put in by George Rae & Co., of New York.

One of the most notable improvements is that in the floor covering. A cork composition tile floor, green in color, has been laid by the Dreadnought Flooring Company, of New York. A green linoleum has been placed in the pews. This covering is such that it can be flushed and washed the same as a cement floor. The linoleum was furnished by the Woodhull & Martin Company.

Another decided improvement is to be found in the new system of ventilation. Two thirty-six and one forty-eight combination skylight ventilators have been installed in the roof by Robert Jahns' Sons, and this will furnish a free circulation of air at all times. The roof gutters have also been repaired by this firm.

The pulpit platform has been repaired and a handsome silk plush carpet used for a covering. The carpenter work has been done by Walter Apgar.

The work of reconstructing the stone tower is progressing rapidly. This is in charge of Albert Pangborn, and when completed the tower will be more ornamental than before. The bell, which has been in service since 1846 will continue to be used as before, the contractors assuring the officers of the church that there will be no further danger when the mason work is completed. Commencing Sunday the regular services will be held in the church as usual.

DR. MAXSON STATES NO BODY WAS FOUND

Schools Superintendent Says Paper Was Misled in Publishing Story About Find.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

The Daily Press is usually so careful to investigate before using a story that you must have been misled in publishing yesterday the story of the finding of a body in the new High School excavating.

It is not a matter of great importance, but it may cause uneasiness of mind to some who in the years past have laid the bodies of friends to rest in the old burial ground where the High School now stands and may feel there has been neglect. The statement that many bodies were overlooked when the ground was cleared is also a reflection on the trustees. For this reason I must ask you to correct the error.

Before the trustees who had charge of the old burying ground turned the property over to the Board of Education, they carefully removed every body and transferred it to Hillside cemetery. The graves were all marked, and the work was done with the greatest care and thoroughness. No bodies were found when the school building was erected in 1904; no body was found last Friday; no body has ever been found since the Board of Education came into possession of the property. Out of a piece of moldering board, someone's imagination created a whole casket and a dead body, but it was imagination only.

Sincerely yours,
H. M. MAXSON.

(The Daily Press cheerfully gives prominence to Dr. Maxson's letter in justice to itself, regretting that the report accepted from an apparently reliable source has proven untrue and that publication had been given it.—Editors.)

Dunellen & Vicinity

At a special school election tonight to be held in the Whittier School, the school voters of Dunellen, will ballot to authorize the Board of Education to erect a two-room addition on the easterly side of the Whittier School at an expenditure of $6,000. There is considerable opposition to the proposed erection of the addition as planned, as many believe the borough is growing at such a rate, that a new school should be built at a saving, the adherents claim, of subsequent expense. Residents of several sections of the borough are also promoting agitation directed toward having a school building erected in their respective localities and the fight may be carried to the Board of Trade.

CAMPAIGN COST OSBORNE $3,757 AND FOWLER $1,191

Trenton, Sept. 30.—Two candidates for Gubernatorial nomination, former Representative Charles N. Fowler and Edmund B. Osborne, filed with the secretary of State yesterday, detailed statements of their campaign expenses. The expenditures in behalf of Mr. Osborne were $3,757.85, and those of Mr. Fowler, $1,191.68.

Mr. Osborne contributed $2,157.70 of his own fund, and a contribution of $1,000 was made by the Joseph Fels fund. The expenditures included music, advertising, circulars, printing, renting of halls, luncheons and similar items.

Among the items in Mr. Osborne's expenditures was one of $250 for "James G. Blauvelt, expenses, Paterson Mayoralty fund." Another item of $100 was for "George L. Record's work Paterson Mayoralty fund." Other expenditures through Mr. Record amounted to $128. The Osborne Company, of which Mr. Osborne is the head, received $1,543.75 for stationery and printing.

Charles G. Dawes contributed $500 toward the campaign fund of Mr. Fowler, the remainder being contributed by Mr. Fowler himself.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

A New England idyl, the sweetest of all the plays that have presented New England life and people on the stage, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," will be seen at the Plainfield theatre, Tuesday evening, October 14, presented by a fine company and with Klaw & Erlanger's original production that reveals the ideas of scenery and architecture described in Mrs. Wiggin's story. Rebecca herself, the heroine of the play, is the most enchanting creature that has come out of New England. She charms by her naivette, her humor, her cheerfulness and her merry heart. Her conquest of the rigid discipline of her old maids aunts, her winning of the love of a brave, good man, form the thread of the story, which is filtered through with very delightful scenes of comedy and touches of pathos that reach to the heart.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

During Miss Terry's absence from school there have been no Camp-Fire meetings and the progress of the club has been suspended.

Miss Eva Terry, instructor of history in the High School, who was called home two weeks ago, on account of the serious illness and death of her sister, returned to her duties at school this morning.

Warren Townley, '16, and Frank Dunning, '14, were the only two borough tennis entrants in the city championships last Saturday who succeeded in winning two matches. Elmer French and Sherman Chandler both met defeat in their first match.

The class doubles tennis championship games will be started tomorrow afternoon. The Seniors will act as defenders of the title.

An executive committee of the Sigma Gamma Kappa has been appointed. The committee consists of the officers of the club and one delegate from each class in the High School. The following are members of this committee, Lucy Douglas, Edith Dalley, Marion Avery, Aline Giddes, Marjorie Burtis, Edna Green, Ann Hall.

Principal Albert Earley has supplied each of the High School teachers with a copy of the New Jersey School Law, the latest amendments and also a high school manual issued by the State, on April 1, 1913.

The work on the shower baths for the use of the High School was begun yesterday and will be finished as soon as possible.

Miss Nellie Merrill, of Syracuse, N. Y., has been secured to teach in the High School. She is a graduate of Syracuse University in 1912. Miss Merrill will teach three classes of mathematics and one of English.

The High School enrollment has increased from 161 to 170. The classes are now divided as follows: Seniors, 26; Junios, 31; Sophomores, 51; Freshman, 62.

Financial difficulties in the Freshman and Sophomore classes are holding up the class doubles tennis championship. It will be delayed about a week.

At the chapel exercises today Principal Earley announced that he was making a collection of college and normal school pennants with which to beautify the High School class rooms. All of the teachers and many alumni have promised to give pennants of their respective colleges. Miss Terry started the collection today by presenting a Wellesley flag.

PARCELS POST PAYS.

That the parcel post will more than pay its way is beyond question, according to officials at Washington. While Postmaster General Burleson will not predict a surplus for the fiscal year ended June 30, other officials insist that there is no doubt on that point, and declare that a surplus of approximately $10,000,000 is a certainty, due largely to the establishment of the parcel post.

Postmaster General Burleson takes the conservative position that he wants to show a surplus that cannot be explained away by any kind of figuring. He is quoted as saying that he had in contemplation two further changes in the parcel post system that would make an annual surplus a certainty. The exact nature of these changes he would not indicate.

The present surplus is made up largely of increased postage revenues from the sale of fourth-class mail matter between January 1 and June 30. For that six months' period the revenues from fourth-class matter approximated $14,000,000. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1912, the receipts were approximately $12,500,000, or nearly $1,500,000 less than for the first six months of the parcel post system. The railroads received no compensation for carrying parcel post matter between January 1 and June 30, but they were paid the usual compensation for carrying the regular weight of fourth-class matter. Inasmuch as all fourth-class matter bore parcel post stamps the railroads technically were paid for carrying parcel post matter, but were not given an increased compensation on account of the larger volume of business. After deducting the amount which the railroads were paid for carrying the usual volume of fourth-class matter and all other charges that can be properly credited to the parcel post a surplus of several million dollars remains. This, of course, will not be as large at the end of the next fiscal year, during which the railroads will be paid an additional 5 per cent. for carrying parcel post mail and other expenses will be added.

In addition to the parcel post surplus, there was a saving of $1,500,000 during the fiscal year through sending magazine and periodical mail by fast freight. Officials hope to convince Congress that the extension of this service should be permitted. When it is made to cover the entire country, instead of the Central and Middle Western section, as at present, another $1,500,000 will be added to the annual saving.

STUMP SPEAKERS EXIT.

Time honored methods in campaigning are gradually being abandoned, the mass meeting and rally being supplanted by a more far reaching and effective plan of getting to the voter. This is evident to everyone and was never more convincingly demonstrated than in the recent primary campaign when printer's ink played the part heretofore enacted by the stump speaker. As the Trenton Times observes:

"The fact is that the newspapers of today leave little for the spellbinders to say. They reach the homes, and their readers are quite familiar with the issues, the pledges and records of the candidates, and the arguments on both sides of the important questions of the day. The day of the stump speaker has passed. There is yet some curiosity to see and hear the leading candidates; and, properly manipulated by shrewd managers, this curiosity can be turned to good advantage in a 'whirlwind campaign.' But the usefulness of the spellbinder is gone. The voters depend on the newspapers and are doing their own thinking."

Though defeated in his own county, it cannot be said that Pierce is a "dead one" politically. Men of his type are not so easily scared to "the tall timbers."

The happiest days are the days of childhood, 'tis said. The kids in the public schools get a hearty luncheon for three cents.

The contributing editor for Saturday's issue will be a local clergyman. You will be glad to read what he will have to say.

When Stokes starts on his long trip up the Salt River, Colby may be on the landing waving an "au revoir."

If you do not read the Daily Press every day you do not get all the local news, all truthfully told.

Do It for Plainfield!

WAR CORRESPONDENT WILL BE A SPEAKER

Benjamin March, Who Covered Balkan-Turks War, to Give After-dinner Talk.

Benjamin March, a well known war correspondent who went all through the recent uprising in the Balkans, will be the speaker at the dollar dinner to be held on Tuesday night, October 28, under the auspices of the Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. Mr. March not only "covered" the war for a number of the great dailies of the world, but has been a frequent contributer to magazines and is an authority on the subject he will discuss. He was sent back to London after the war had been halted temporarily to record the doings of the peace delegates. At the present time he is taking an active part in the Fusion campaign in New York city.

Samuel T. Carter, Jr., is chairman of the committee which is arranging for the dinner, and it is expected that there will be a large attendance of the men of the church. The club is planning many activities for the coming winter, and this dinner will inaugurate the season's activities.

RUTGERS COLLEGE BEGINS 148TH YEAR

New Building to Be Erected at Old Institution of Learning Which Has Reopened.

New Brunswick, Sept. 30.—Rutgers College has begun the 148th year of its history with the largest freshman class that has ever been enrolled. Of the two hundred and fourteen applicants for admission, one hundred and fifty-two have been found properly qualified to enter. The student body now includes over four hundred members. The faculty has also been increased somewhat in membership and now numbers fifty-three professors and instructors.

Substantial donations have been received by the college during the year, among which is the gift of a new dormitory by John H. Ford, of New York city, which is to cost $110,000. Work on the construction of the new agricultural building for which the Legislature appropriated $100,000 has begun. Both of these buildings will be ready for use in 1914.

Among the youths who have entered the institution are Lawrence Henry French, of this city; Elmer Gladstone Bracher, of Rahway, James Coxe Stiles, Jr., of Springfield, Harry V. Duzan, Clifton Henry Luster, George Frederick Wales, Jr., and William Whynman, of Elizabeth.

MONEY SECRETLY HIDDEN WAS STOLEN IN DUNELLEN

A discharged employe is thought to be the thief who entered the grocery store of D. T. Heaume & Son, North avenue, Dunellen, early yesterday morning, and stole $18 in silver which was hidden in a secluded spot to be used during Monday, according to a statement made b D. T. Heaume, Sr., to a Daily Press reporter. The money had always been secretly placed away as a safe-guard against burglary. No one knew the hiding place except trusted employes of the establishment. A clerk was discharged several weeks ago and has been out of employment since, according to those in charge of the store.

The Plainfield police, it is said, have been notified of the looting and are seeking the suspect who is said to live in this city. The Dunellen authorities have not heard of the matter. Entrance was forced into the store through a rear window. The looter after securing the money, and leaving many other valuable articles behind, unconcernedly and without notice, unbolted a door leading to Washington avenue, that borough, and made his get-away.

He said that the board would meet October 21, when the offer would be considered.

PASTORS CONCERNED IN HOME MISSIONS

Local Ministers' Ass'n Plan Today to Map Out Agressive Home Campaign.

The ministers of the city and borough, chiefly those comprising the membership of the Plainfield Ministers' Association, will meet at the Y. M. C. A. this afternoon for the purpose of discussing plans to inaugurate an aggressive campaign in this city in the interest of home missions and to arouse the local churches in the cause of missions, especially at home.

Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church, has taken the initiative in the movement and it was upon his invitation that the ministers will gather this afternoon. Just what plan will be adopted is not known at present, but feeling the urgent need for more home mission work, Dr. Zelie has undertaken to inaugurate a movement that will include a meeting of members of all the churches of the city and borough.

"THE CONSPIRACY."

"The Conspiracy," presented by Charles Frohman, thrilled the audience at the Plainfield theatre last night. By all odds it was the best show at that playhouse this season. In fact, it is hardly possible that a better performance will be given during the entire season.

The Misses Lillian and Sarah Rothstein, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rothstein, who were born in this city, but have been living in Washington, D. C., for the past eight years, have returned to this vicinity and have established their residence at 90 Grove street.

THE FORUM.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE IN BOROUGH.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Somerset School in North Plainfield has been doing excellent work. The president, Mrs. Foulk, and the vice-president, Mrs. Ewart, together with all the parents and teachers they represent, are to be congratulated.

It is a case of intelligent interest backed by power. When a need was felt in the school the Parent-Teacher Association made a thorough investigation. Then some of the women of North Plainfield went to the School Board meeting, told what they wanted and voted an appropriation for it. Local politicians say that they would not have gained their point without the vote.

There is but one voting privilege for the women of New Jersey. They may vote for educational appropriations in townships, incorporated towns and borough school districts. This privilege has just been used so successfully that the suffragists are led to hope that Mrs. Ewart will soon become a member of their organization and join with them in asking for the power to protect their children not only in the school but elsewhere.

PROCTOR'S FINE BILL.

The vaudeville bill being offered at Proctor's this week is well balanced and the photo-plays are excellent. The State Fair Girls, present a big musical comedy act of country life, entitled "Hi Perkins Picnic." There is a chorus of five classy girls, including the fat girl with a wonderful voice. John West and his musical wolf is another strong act, well worth the price of admission. John is full of comedy and the wolf is full of noise. The Charles Ferris Company present a fine sketch, "The Preacher and the Man," and Veroni Verdi and Brother offer a dandy musical act, violin and 'cello, while Tenderfoot, an Indian athlete, gives a marvelous exhibition.

"KELLY FROM EMERALD ISLE."

"Kelly from the Emerald Isle," with Barney Gilmore, will be the feature photo-play at the Plainfield theatre, today. The picture tells the story of a feud between two Irish gentlemen, a fight for a girl, a perilous escape, a race across the Atlantic, a big railroad scene in which Kelly makes a flying leap to safety, besides many little comedy scenes true to Irish life and character. It is considered one of the best comedy pictures produced recently.

SCHEDULE OF TRAINS WILL BE CHANGED

Jersey Central Railroad's New Transfer Will Alter Service to Newark.

Many changes in the schedule of train service on the Elizabeth-Newark branch of the Central Railroad will go into effect when the Central road opens its new transfer station just west of the Passaic River the latter part of next month. The work of elevating the tracks across the meadows is now practically finished and the elevation will be used for the first time next Sunday. The cost of elevating the tracks and erecting the transfer station will exceed $2,000,000.

After the opening of the transfer the schedule of about one-third of the trains running between Newark and Roselle will be affected as a result of the opening of the Cranford engine terminal and yard. With one or two exceptions every "local" run between Newark and Roselle has been extended to Cranford. The changes in train times will range between two and ten minutes.

Trains from New York will take a the Newark and Elizabeth tracks at a point about 600 feet west of the transfer, joining the main line in Elizabeth. At Oak Island junction, where the Newark and Elizabeth line of the Central crosses the Pennsylvania and Lehigh Valley freight tracks, an entirely new interlocking plant has been installed. There are interlocking plants just to the west of Brill's where the Newark and Elizabeth line connects with the line between Newark and New York, and another at the other end of the Y, where the trains from New York will leave the Newark and New York line to get on the tracks to Elizabeth.

By taking the route connecting with the Newark transfer, the trains which now follow the main line between Jersey City and the Elizabethport station wil lcover only about one-half mile more of the distance. This will make little, if any, change in time on the long runs.

BRIDE WON IN JEST WILL BE HIS WIFE

Their Mock Marriage Being Annuled, Couple Will Wed Again.

New Brunswick, Sept. 30. When Harold Anshem, of Boston, Mass. was going to Rutgers College two years ago he took a great deal of interest in Miss C. Augusta Myers, daughter of Mrs. G. N. Myers, of Raritan avenue, Highland Park. One day Anshem suggested, as a bit of undergraduate humor, that the should have a mock marriage. As long as it was to be only a sham ceremony Miss Myers agreed, and at the end of a college festival day they were wedded in jest.

A short time after, however, they discovered that they were more deeply involved in matrimony than they had suspected. Somehow or other, it turned out that, instead of a mock ceremony, performed by a mimic clergyman, the ceremony had been everything that it should be, and the minister was one who had been duly ordained, and under the New Jersey laws the two young persons were as fast man and wife as Church and State could make them.

Some said that Anshem's surprise at this discovery was not utterly unfeigned. Anyway, after the couple had talked it over, they did not feel inclined to correct the mistake.

Here the tale would have ended but for the mother of the bride. She would not have her daughter married in jest, and she employed some New Jersey lawyers, who found a way to annul the marriage. The decree was signed in January, 1912.

But with the help of Mgr. John A O'Grady, it all ended happily on Saturday in St. Peter's rectory here. Anshem had quit college, got a job in the First National Bank here, overcame the objections of Mrs. Myers and has now recovered his bride by a ceremony not to be disputed.

GOV. FIELDER PUBLICLY FLOUTS SMITH AND NUGENT

In a public statement that goes direct to the point, Governor James F. Fielder, has repudiated James Smith, Jr., and James R. Nugent, so far as countenancing their support of his candidacy was concerned.

The Governor declares his belief that Smith did not take part in the primary, but that Nugent did. He expresses the convinction that neither of the Essex machine leaders was in sympathy with his candidacy. This, he says, was because he had not been in accord with their political principles.

"I shall not be displeased in not having the support of the so-called organization in Essex county," the Governor said.

Expressing the belief that Nugent favors the election of Edward C. Stokes as Governor, Mr. Fielder said:

"Stokes and Nugent have worked together in the past and could do so again."

COMSTOCK PULLS A GUN.

BECKER'S APPEAL OCT. 13.

MURPHY SILENT ON CROKER.

Tammany Boss Won't Discuss Attack on Gaynor.

New York, Sept. 30.—Charles F. Murphy was at Tammany hall, but he would not comment on the statement issued by Richard Croker attacking the late Mayor Gaynor. Mr. Murphy said that he didn't care to make any comment on it.

"Mr. Croker says that Mr. Gaynor advised your right hand man that you could get more from him on the quiet than you could by nominating an out and out organization man. Is that true?" Mr. Murphy was asked.

"I have no comment to make," was his reply.

Denial Is Made by President Wilson.

COAL MAGNATES OPPOSED TO J. E. MARTINE'S BILL

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—Pennsylvania business men and stockholders in coal mines have petitioned Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, against the enactment of a bill offered by Senator Martine, of New Jersey, prohibiting the employment of armed men to guard private property.

It is claimed that the bill militates against property-holders and will make impossible the maintenance of order in the event of strikes.

Senator Penrose introduced the petition into the Senate yesterday, calling attention to the fact that it had been signed by the Philadelphia Board of Trade, one of the wealthiest bodies in the United States.

KATZENBACH'S PRIMARY EXPENSES WERE $8,383.30

Trenton, Sept. 30.—Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., according to a statement filed with the secretary of State yesterday, spent $8,383.30 in his primary contest for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination.

The Katzenbach campaign committee expended $5,805.65 and the Katzenbach League $2,577.56.

ELIZABETH MAYOR FAVORS POLICE COMMISSION RULE

Elizabeth, Sept. 30.—Although the Board of Works question cannot be voted on at the coming election because of failure of its backers to comply with the law in advertising the proposed referendum before the primaries, the city still has the privilege of adopting the police commission referendum. Commenting on this yesterday, Mayor Victor Mravlag stated that the Council should favor the plan.

There are a score of vacancies to be filled in the department. These places should have been distributed nearly a year ago, but politics, it is asserted, has prevented. Several promotions are also due, but are not being made because alleged "deals" between the Democratic faction, which now controls the Council, and the Republican wing of that body have resulted in disagreements.

It is still rumored that Chief of Police John A. Peters contemplates resigning. The appointment of a successor probably will cause a contest, as the man in line for the position is Captain John J. O'Leary, an anti-Collins Democrat.

MAY NAME NEWARK SLEUTH AS METUCHEN POLICE CHIEF

Metuchen, Sept. 30.—The police committee is silent on what recommendations it proposes to make to the Council at the next proposed meeting with reference to the appointment of a chief of police. It was understood at first that the promotion rule would be observed, which would mean that Patrolman Willard B. Hutchinson, who is now acting chief, would be elevated to the office of chief.

It is said, however, that Metuchen officials have been making overtures to Ferdinand A. David, who runs a detective agency in Newark.

"TIM" WOODRUFF VICTIM OF NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Sept. 30.—Timothy L. Woodruff's son, John E. Woodruff, said at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, today, that the paralytic symptoms that his father had manifested were passing off and that the patient was mentally normal. "My father is simply suffering from a complete nervous breakdown," he said.

The physicians will issue a statement later.

LITTLE TALKS BY THE WANT AD MAN

Copyright, 1913, The Int. Syndicate, Baltimore.

No. 13.

I WAS reading the WANT ADS. The room was warm, the air a little stuffy and, still holding the printed sheet, I went off into a doze.

An old man broke his way, with some effort through the newspaper page and stood before me. In his left hand he held a crumpled mass of newspapers. Looking closely, I discovered that only the CLASSIFIED pages from various newspapers were represented in that mass.

"I am Old Man Opportunity," he said, in a voice that vibrated through the room. "I come to every one, not once, but many times. To those who keep an eye on me I offer frequent opportunities to secure good positions—to sell various things quickly and advantageously—to acquire whatever may be wished for—to find the lost and to supply the various needs that the activities of man are forever creating.

"Go to the people in your Little Talks, young man, and tell them that I shall never cease to exist. For years I have been striving for recognition. For years I have been ignored. But I am slowly coming into my own. Already I am recognized by the few, and there are some folks even who look for my coming. It shall always be so. For I am the WANT ADS."

He flourished the crumpled papers in my face. "See," he fairly shouted, "a million men and women have profited through me in these pages. Tell the people that. Tell them I was born to serve, and shall go on serving. Tell them"——

But just then the telephone on my library table clanged noisily for attention, and Old Man Opportunity made way for returning consciousness.

I do not know what else the old man wanted me to tell you, but it seems to me he had time to say some things that are worth consideration. Don't you think so?

Some Hints About Lights.

The season of long evenings is here again and with it our eyes and thoughts and attention are focussed on the lights about which we gather.

There is something startling wrong about most lights. They are too high or too dim or too bright or too cold or in the wrong position or else they are shaded with the wrong color. Yet good lights need not be expensive. A ten-cent glass candlestick holding a three-cent candle gives a light as beautiful as any that can be found in the best-lighted room in the world. And many expensive chandaliers cast a light so hard, so ugly and so trying, both on eyes and temper, that we should be far more happy sitting in the dark than sitting under this same light.

Shades.

Shades of the right color work wonders with any light. Rose-pink, yellow-green or yellow are the best colors for lamp shades, because they cast the warmest, pleasantest lights. These shades can be made of glass, silk or paper, according to the effect you want to produce and the condition of your purse.

The right placing of the lights is another important thing. High lights are cold and hard, and low lights always give a sense of hominess and cosiness. So even if you have a central chandelier in your living room, have lamps or candles on the table and mantle-shelf. Low lights in the living room, too, are far more artistic than high ones. That is one reason why candles on the table always cast a pleasant light.

For some reason, most kitchen lights are so placed that they throw the shadow of anyone standing in front of the sink blackly over the sink. Look in almost any house and you will find this to be so—much to the discomfort of the dishwasher. The kitchen should have a light at the side of the sink to light the dishpan.

Oil Lamps.

Even if your house is lighted with electricity, do not hesitate to complement the electric lights with kerosene lamps, if the light is not adequate. Kerosene casts a pleasant light. In summer time kerosene lamps are a little too warm for comfort, but in winter they are not at all disagreeable. Keep them clean, full of oil and well shaded and they are as pleasant as any light obtainable.

You can effect real economies in lights by turning them off or down when you do not really need them. Because it is easy to snap off and on electricity is economical. It is not necessary to leave a light in the hall or bath-room or any other room you are not occupying, because you can turn it on before you enter the darkened room.

But if you have to leave lights, do not leave a turned-down lamp. There is a gloomy, pinched look about a wick turned down. It is dangerous beside. If you use electricity, get some eight-candle-power bulbs to use in halls and bath-room when it is necessary to leave a light. If you use gas, cloak the turned-down flame with a soft, small, rose-colored shade—for isn't a blue, turned-down gas flame wierd and unpleasant, especially for a sick room or a night light in a nursery? If you use kerosene, have a tiny lamp—some come that hang against the wall—that burns only a few drops of oil an hour, but does it in a whole-nearted sort of way.

Some Cookery Suggestions

PIQUANT PRESERVES.

THERE is a tang to the fruit recipes which are given here. They are good to tempt and tantalize the appetite. They are nice for invalids.

A Delicate Jelly.

Plain Grape Jelly.—Grapes must be covered with water after they are stemmed and washed thoroughly. Allow a quart of cold water to every two pounds of grapes or enough water to entirely cover them. Let them heat slowly until they are soft, then drain overnight or until the pulp is dry. Measure the juice and allow two-thirds of a pound or one and a third cupfuls of sugar to each pint of juice. Finish like any other jelly.

A Spicy Pickle.

Watermelon Pickle.—Cut lengthwise three medium sized melons and put in a kettle with enough water to cover after removing seeds and green skin from them. Add two tablespoonfuls salt and a piece of alum the size of a hickory nut. Cook until the melon is clear and can be pierced with a straw. Drain and when cool enough to handle squeeze out all the juice. The pulp will look stringy after this, but will fill out when added to sirup. Make the sirup of two quarts of vinegar, one pint of water, a dozen cloves, a handful of cinnamon bark and three quarts of sugar. Boil the sirup until thick, then add squeezed melon rind and set on back of range and simmer gently for two hours. If the juice is not as thick as cream by that time drain it off and boil down, then pour over rind.

Made With Care.

Crab Apple Jelly.—Siberian crab apples make the best jelly. Whatever kind you use, be sure that the fruit is fresh and sound. Cut the crab apples in halves and do not peel them. Put in a preserving kettle with water to the depth of an inch. Let them boil until soft, then strain through a colander, allowing the juice to drop through into a bowl without pressing. In the morning pour the juice into jelly bags. When strained measure the juice and pour it into the preserving kettle. Let it come slowly to the boiling point, skimming it with care. Boil fifteen minutes. To every pint of juice allow one pound of sugar. Heat the sugar in the oven. When the juice has boiled add the warm sugar and let it all boil five minutes, then pour it through a fine strainer into jelly glasses.

Anna Thompson

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Rush Elf's Gift to A Good Boy.

His Mother Helped Him.

ON the edge of the brook in the woods grew some willow trees. Grandpa promised Jack and Evelyn he would show them how to make little baskets.

"We are going to make a nice basket for Dinah," said Evelyn.

"That is very kind of you. I once read of a little boy who learned to make baskets. The boy's name was Michel, and he lived in a tiny cottage in faraway Russia," said daddy.

"Michel's mother was a widow and very, very poor. As long as she could she worked for her little boy and his sister Anne. She worked so hard, though, that at last she became ill, and she was able to work no more.

"Then little Michel, who was a strong, clever boy for his age, said to her: 'I know how to plait rushes to make mats and baskets. Plenty of these rushes grow in the marsh. I can make baskets that people will buy from me.'

"Now, the baskets which he made were very pretty and quite different from any which were shown in the neighboring town where he went to sell them. People paid him a good price for them. He went home and made more and in a short time had many orders for his baskets.

"One evening Michel went to the swamp to get rushes and found that some one else had cut away all these plants and carried them off.

"There was another marsh about a mile farther on, and, although it was getting late, he hurried to it.

"When he reached the marsh he began to cut the rushes, but was stopped by a tiny man in green who wore a cap of plaited rushes.

"'This is my marsh. Why are you cutting these rushes?' he asked.

"Then Michel told how he needed them to make baskets to sell, for his sick mother and little sister had no one else to work for them, and this was all he could do to earn money for food.

"'For such as you,' the little man said, 'I have rushes to spare. Take these. You will find them better than the ones you have cut.' And he filled Michel's arms with the finest rushes.

"The boy found the rushes grow heavier and heavier until he could scarcely reach home with them. As he threw them on the floor they jingled. Instead of being green they were yellow, and when his sister picked one up she cried:

"'Why, see it is a gold rush!' So it was, and when they looked at the other rushes they found them all to be solid gold. The little man in green had been the king of the marsh elves and had rewarded the boy in this way for his goodness to his mother and sister. They were now rich and needed to work no more."

MANN ACT INVOKED FOR ESCAPED JERSEY ELOPERS

Jamesburg, Sept. 30.—Warning having apparently been given by telegraph, Alexander Baliantyne failed in his effort to capture his eloping wife, former employe and daughter in Richmond, Va. He returned with Special Officer John Conover on the verge of a physical breakdown.

An appeal was made to Federal authorities under the Mann act, by which Mr. Ballantyne hopes to reach Eugene L. Keenan, who is accused of running away with Mrs. Ballantyne. It was said that if Keenan is found in Virginia and made to answer a federal charge, he cannot be brought back to this State.

Ballantyne believes somebody here is keeping his wife and Keenan informed. Soon after the warrants were issued by Recorder Paxton, so it was later learned, the runaways left Richmond in a touring car. The detectives assured Ballantyne that the trail would soon be regained.

There were four warrants, which included charges of larceny and conspiracy. Besides Mrs. Ballantyne and Keenan, who was a bartender in Ballantyne's hotel, and two Ballantyne children, aged five and ten years, two other elopers are supposed to be in the party—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith, both of this place—Mrs. Smith being the seventeen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ballantyne.

When the elopers left more than a week ago, Mrs. Ballantyne and the children were going ostensibly to Philadelphia, and Keenan had obtained leave to visit his mother in Brooklyn.

SUPPLE DRAPY SILKS AID IN ACHIEVING THE NEW OUTLINE

Drapy and pliable, crepe de chine is one of the most attractive materials for afternoon dresses. It comes in all the newest pastel shades, as well as in the stronger empire colors, which are being favored again more or less. One of the smartest shades is a wonderful blue called "pervenche."

Dressmakers and corsetiers are putting forth every effort to bring out the absolutely natural lines of the figure. These supple silks aid wonderfully in this, as their folds fall gracefully, tapering gradually down to the narrow line of the hem.

Wide sashes also aid in this effect. They are folded and draped as the fancy pleases. The loose knot, low over the hip, is pretty. 7931 shows an unusually graceful arrangement. This design developed in clinging charmeuse, figured or plain, having a vest of cream colored lace and a sash in contrasting color, would be fetching.

There are five sizes in the pattern, 34 to 42. Size 36 requires 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

A gathered blouse with draped overblouse makes 7923 attractive, and the draped three-piece tunic is also effective. This is another design excellent for soft silks and a pretty way of gaining the new outlines.

There are five pattern sizes, 34 to 42. Size 36 requires 7½ yards of 36 inch material.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and inclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions. Address Pattern Department.

Aunty—"Our interested friend" who signs herself as "Aunty," has sent in the correct solution to an equation that was answered incorrectly in these columns yesterday, through a typographical error. The query in question was: "A and B start from the same point and travel in opposite directions. If at the end of three weeks they are 1,800 miles apart, and two-thirds of the distance which A has traveled is equal to one-half the distance B has traveled, how far would each travel?" Try this solution: Let x equal B's distance. Now try your proportions and from your equation, thus 2-3 (1800-x) equals 1-2 x. Solving we have7-6 x equals 1200, or x equals 1028 4-7 equals B's distance, and A's equals 1800—1028 4-7 equals 7713-7. Glad to have your interest "Aunty," and glad to make the correction.—Sporting Ed.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

NEW TENNIS CHAMPION.

Longwood, Mass., Sept. 30.—Mrs. George W. Wightman, of Boston, formerly Miss Hazel Hotchkiss, of San Francisco, captured the women's national tennis championship yesterday in the challenge match on the Cricket Club courts. Mrs. Wightman defeated the title-holder, Miss Mary Brown, of Los Angeles, in straight sets by scores of 6-0 and 6-3.

HONOR McLOUGHLIN.

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 30.—Friends of Maurice McLoughlin, national tennis champion and California representative on the team which brought the Davis Cup to the United States, gathered at a banquet here last night in his honor. Tennis players from all parts of the State were present.

WOLGAST AND NELSON MATCHED

Milwaukee, Sept. 30.—Ad Wolgast, of Cadillac, Mich., and Battling Nelson, of Hegewisch, Ill., two former lightweight champions, yesterday signed articles for a ten-round no-decision boxing contest at 133 pounds to be held here October 13. Both Wolgast and Nelson fought several battles in Milwaukee before they became champions, but neither has appeared in the ring here since.

PENNANT FOR GRAND RAPIDS.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 30.—At the conclusion of the annual meeting here yesterday of the Central League executive officials it was announced that no business of importance was transacted, with the exception of the awarding of this year's pennant to Grand Rapids. President Hellbroner was highly commended by the league officials for the results obtained during his administration. The next meeting of the league will be held in November, when the National Association of Minor Baseball Leagues meets in Columbus.

CLOSE RACE IN ASSOCIATION.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—The American Association closed yesterday what President Chivington pronounced a very good season. Milwaukee is the new pennant winner, having won only after a close race. Four clubs were pennant contenders this year. Besides Milwaukee, Columbus early in the season, then Louisville, and finally Minneapolis battled at the top, and the keenness of the race and the uncertainty of the outcome kept the enthusiasts all over the circuit interested.

400 ATHLETES OUT AT HARVARD.

Cambridge, Sept. 30.—Harvard's fall athletic season opened wide yesterday with more than 400 men engaged in some form of sport. The annual tennis tournament for the college championship attracted 150 competitors. Another hundred followed the pigskin in the football practice for 'varsity, freshman, and second team squads. Oarsmen to the number of 30 reported for the first rowing drill, and three "eights" were sent on to the river. The candidates for the track team continued their unlimbering, and the cross-country runners worked the kinks out of their legs. Baseball, despite the waning season, had many followers, a large squad practicing in several scrub contests.

LEAVES IRISH-AMERICAN A. C.

Emil Muller, of Paterson, metropolitan champion discus thrower and a member of the Olympic team which went to Stockholm last year, has resigned from the membership of the Irish-American Athletic Club, which club he has represented for some time past. After the necessary time has expired Muller will represent the Paterson Young Men's Christian Association in competition. Muller ranks as one of the best discus throwers in America, and is Jim Duncan's closest rival for the championship. The reason announced for his decision to retire from the Winged Fist organization is that the club failed to enter him in the New York Athletic Club games last Saturday after he had made a request to be entered.

McINNIS MAY NOT PLAY.

Eddie Murphy, the fleet outfielder, is a more recent regular with the Athletics than Jack McInnis, but it may be that the former will play in more games in the coming world's series for the Mackmen than "Stuffy" does. McInnis, while a good swatter, is said to be rather inclined to fail in the pinches. Therefore, according to good authority, the veteran, Harry Davis, may be called upon to work at the initial bag when the Giants are met.

MAURICE PREVOST.

France again carried off the victory in this year's contest for the coupe internationale d'aviation. Only two nations were represented in the race, France and Belgium, and the latter sent only one contestant. The flight of Maurice Prevost over the course of 124.28 miles was accomplished in the record time of 59 minutes 45 3-5 seconds, or a speed of more than two miles a minute. He was thus the victor.

SCHOOL SEWING CIRCLE MAKES TACKLING DUMMY.

The girls of East Side High School, of Newark, are the right sort of football enthusiasts. They not only cheer on the players to deeds of daring on the gridiron, but, when the occasion demands, they turn to and help out in a material way. Here is an instance: The other day Coach Horace Butleworth was instructing his players in the tackling art. The work was not entirely satisfactory and he yearned audibly for a tackling dummy. Dummies—the kind they use in football—cost money and the purse of the East Side athletic association is not bulging with greenbacks.

The next day the girls' sewing class met. It was an industrious session—such as the sewing class had never before known. Now the East Side team has a tackling dummy, made by the girls' sewing circle. It is not known how the girls got the pattern, but there is a strong suspicion that one of the players "posed" for the dummy.

"MAC" SAYS

Elevating the Drammer.

I often wished the baseball season lasted all the year,
Through mild and cold and chill October days and winter cold and drear.
I fain would see the scores all year
upon the sporting page,
For when they all are playing ball it keeps them off the stage.

The recent publicity accorded local players would start them off with a good "rep" in vaudeville. In fact, several are planning to take to the foot-boards this winter.

A baseball player upon the stage gives one a pain in the neck, whereas a baseball player writing alleged stories for the newspapers gives one two pains.

These alleged scribes who are proficient in scrolling their John Hancock alone, ought to be shot at sunrise the morning before the World's Series.

The appearance of Tim Jordon on Parker Field Saturday afternoon was an occasion that old-time fans welcomed. In the days of yore Tim was a favorite on local sand lots but the Pet fans have never forgiven him for giving the Plainfielders such a scare with his bat in that championship series in the Central League race in 1911. Tim played first corner for Somerville on that eventful day.

Quoth a local high school correspondent, "This will be football's greatest season." It always is.

While the same individual avers that an automobile is almost human. So are chauffeurs. It can't be that those High School athletes intend to launch out in the field of motor car racing.

The unearthing of an old coffin beneath the High School's tennis courts leads us to think strange thoughts. Dead ones are coming to the surface in that vicinity.

Have you tried to get tickets for that World Series game yet? Well don't try because you won't get any until next Monday and then three dollars is the price.

Many have asked us why it is so hard for fans to get seats for the big show. While our baseball magnates are not actually blind, it is rumored that when they look for scalping evidence they wear smoked glasses.

There ought to be plenty of tickets going the rounds, but ticket scalpers have not as yet succumbed to scalping reform and are still doing a legitimet business.

FANS WILL HONOR SHORTSTOP MARTIN

Fund Will Be Raised by Popular Subscription to Purchase a Trophy.

A committee of local and Central New Jersey baseball fans inaugurated a campaign this morning to secure funds for a "Martin Day" to be held at Parker Field next Saturday afternoon, in honor of Jack Martin, whose efforts as a ball player have heralded the name of "Plainfield, N. J.," throughout the country. Jack is at present playing with the Boston team, of the National League, and was yesterday used as a pinch hitter. He will return home next Friday night and will play shortstop for the team of International League stars that takes the field against the Plainfield Pets next Saturday afternoon.

Martin's appearance here last Saturday was the signal for a burst of enthusiasm from every loyal fan and those who attended the game conceived the idea of inaugurating something that would do honor to a coming ball player. Contrary to the usual custom carried on in other towns, the home fans did nothing last Saturday to honor the Plainfield representative in the big leagues and an enterprising group of Martin's friends are determined to give him a big time this Saturday.

A subscription list has been started and although the idea has been in operation but a few hours the fund is already substantially endowed. Such organizations as the Elks' lodge, the Somerville baseball club, the Scotch Plains baseball club, the McWiliams Bible Class and numerous individuals are working for the cause and the committee will probably have a material increase to report by tomorrow afternoon. If you are a friend or admirer of the ball player make it your business to get on the list that will go with the trophy that will be purchased with the proceeds. No matter how small or how large the contribution may be it will be welcomed by the committee. Other special features will be arranged for the afternoon, and a well known Plainfielder will make the presentation on behalf of the fans. The subscription list, although it has been in evidence but a few hours, contains the following donations:

Andrew McCardell	$5.00
William L. Smalley	2.00
George T. Leighs	1.00
William H. Conger	1.00
Walter Firstbrook	1.00
Total	$10.00

"WE-MAY."

Since winning the greatest golf honors in the country if not in the world the name of Francis Ouimet has been in the spotlight. However, his name hasn't been mentioned as often as it might were it Jones or Smith. The reason is that many readers do not know how to pronounce the name. The new champ's name is pronounced as though spelled "We-may."

PRINCETON LEADS COLLEGES IN SPORTS

Over 500 Men Have Reported for Tiger Athletics This Year.

Princeton, Sept. 30.—The number of men who have reported for the various athletic teams at Princeton to date has caused great surprise. Including the candidates who reported for the first practices of the crew, soccer, and track teams yesterday afternoon there are approximately 500 men who have voluntarily listed themselves as candidates for the teams. This is an unprecedented number for the Tigers.

One hundred and fifty men have been reporting for football work since the opening of college, including the freshman squad of ninety men. A hundred men have been working under Coach Bill Clarke during the past week for the class baseball teams, which start an interclass baseball series this week, ending with the annual freshman sophomore baseball game on Saturday. Track yesterday brought out eighty men, including a squad of twenty-six cross-country men.

Dr. Spaeth, the 'Varsity crew coach, and Capt. T. C. Briggs found a squad of ninety candidates, 'Varsity and freshmen, waiting for them at the boathouse yesterday afternoon for the first practice of the fall. And a bunch of fifty men appeared for the first soccer practice yesterday afternoon.

P. H. S. WANTS GAME FOR NEXT TUESDAY

High School Warriors Had a Preliminary Battle at Parker Field.

Coach Ralph Patch, of the Plainfield High School football squad, gave the candidates their first real workout of the season yesterday afternoon, forming a first and second team and putting the ball into scrimmage for the first time between two forces. The second squad had some good material in its ranks but the first team men rushed them off their feet and had little trouble in crossing the whitewash mark on three different occasions. Hard, straight line bucking featured the work of the first eleven and the second crew's work was broken up to some extent by irregular playing.

All three of the regular backs did some good advancing with the pigskin and ripped the defense whenever they chose for goodly gains. Although the first interscholastic game is scheduled for October 10, it is probable that a game will be booked with some team for next Tuesday afternoon. The manager of the P. H. S. eleven is trying to book an attraction for that date but thus far has been unsuccessful.

WEIGHT THROWER FOR HOLY CROSS

Opening Football Game Next Saturday With Jack Payne in the Lineup.

Holy Cross football prospects took another lofty flight last night during the three hours' drill on Hyde Field when Jack Payne, the former T. M. C. A. weight thrower, reported for practise and is expected to make a valuable addition to the eleven. Payne took an active part in the drill last night and his weight and strength will add greatly to the team's offensive ability. The season is due to open next Saturday afternoon on Cricket Field and the final practise will be held Friday night when the finishing touches will be put on for the opening of the local gridiron season.

Manager Jack Doyle is making elaborate preparations for the inaugural game and has signed the Pearl A. C. representatives, a strong combination from Elizabeth to line up against his chargers. A band has been engaged for the occasion and will render music at the head of a parade which will precede the game and all during the contest.

NEW METHOD OF MATCHING BOROUGH TENNIS TEAMS

At a meeting of the North Plainfield High School tennis committee, yesterday afternoon, it was decided to match by lot the teams of the doubles tournament instead of having the two upper and the two lower classes meet in the first round.

The teams were matched as follows: Junior vs. Sophomore and Freshman vs. Senior. The tournament will be started today or tomorrow afternoon.

COMMITTEE SELECTS CUPS FOR TENNIS CHAMPIONS

The members of the North Plainfield High School trophy committee who were appointed to get the tennis prizes have selected three loving cups. One is for the singles championship and the other two are for the class doubles championship.

They will be presented to the winners in the near future by Principal Earley. The committee consisted of Duclos VanMater, chairman of the tennis committee, Charles Beckman and Frank Dunning.

A RECORD CATCH.

While fishing near the dam at Weston, yesterday afternoon, Louis Slocum, of Central avenue, hooked a small mouthed bass that tipped the scales at three and one-half pounds. The fish was the largest caught there this season and the Plainfielder brought the catch home and is now showing it to his friends.

DOCTOR BADLY HURT IN CRASH

ALL PINNED BENEATH CAR

Woman and Girl Suffering From Shock. Physician's Condition Is Serious—His Head and Face Badly Mutilated. Right Ear Nearly Torn From Head.

Morristown, N. J., Sept. 30.—Dr. Lucius W. Hotchkiss of 59 West Forty-eighth street, New York, his wife and his seven-year-old daughter were severely injured as the result of a bad automobile accident on the Morristown turnpike. Mrs. Hotchkiss and the little girl are suffering from shock. The physician's condition is serious, however. His right forearm is broken in two places, his right ear was almost torn from his head, and his face was mutilated.

The physician, his wife and daughter lay pinned for four or five minutes beneath the wreck of their car after a collision with the automobile of Theodore Bergner of Passaic. According to Edward T. Moore, a former inspector of motor vehicles, who came along in his car and directed the rescue, nearly a hundred automobiles had pulled up behind the two wrecked machines, their occupants seemingly so unnerved by the accident that they did not know what to do. Mr. Moore and his brother, Chauncey W. Moore, both of Passaic, called for volunteers and lifted the Hotchkiss car so that the physician, his wife and daughter could be pulled out.

Dr. Hotchkiss, who is visiting surgeon at Bellevue hospital and a professor at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, was returning to his home from a motor trip to this town.

Dr. Hotchkiss was well over on his side of the road when Bergner pulled out to pass a car proceeding more slowly in front of him. He ran head-on into Dr. Hotchkiss' car. The Bergner car was swung around so that it lay across the road, while Dr. Hotchkiss' car was thrown off its wheels it dropped upside down on the road, with the doctor, his wife and daughter under it. A son, about twenty-four years old, was thrown clear of the wreck, but lay stunned where he fell.

WALKER FUNERAL TOMORROW

Will Be Held From Chancellor's Residence In Trenton.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 30.—The funeral of Geoffrey Fritz Walker, son of Chancellor and Mrs. Edwin Robert Walker, who died Sept. 8 in Ireland, will be held tomorrow afternoon from the Walker residence in this city. The services will be conducted at 2 o'clock by the Rev. William Best Eddy, rector of St. Michael's Episcopal church. Interment will be in Ewing cemetery.

The bearers will be Ellis L. Pierson, Joseph L. Bodine, Alexander Trapp, C. Edward Murray, Jr., J. Clarence Richardson, Lewis T. H. Shafer, Lafayette Horner, Jr., and Frederick V. Bechtel.

The chancellor and Mrs. Walker, with the body of their son, arrived in New York Friday on the steamship Baltic. At the dock to meet them were Chancellor Walker's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Walker of Boston; General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., Vice Chancellors Backes, Lewis, Stevenson and Griffin; Lewis T. H. Shafer, secretary to the chancellor; Foster Post, a chum of the dead youth; Raymond S. Taylor of Ivins & Taylor and others.

WOULD BAR FIELDER.

Independent Candidate Protests That He Is Ineligible.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 30.—William E. Sackett, who has announced himself as an independent candidate for governor of New Jersey, filed a protest with the secretary of state against the printing of the name of Acting Governor James F. Fielder on the ballot. Mr. Sackett sent a letter to the secretary of state, in which he said:

"The reason for this protest is that the constitution of New Jersey provides that one cannot hold the office of governor for two consecutive terms; that James F. Fielder, being acting governor at the time and exercising all the prerogatives of a governor and consequently disqualified to succeed himself, as a governor, was also disqualified to serve as a candidate in the nominating primaries of Sept. 23 for the office of governor for the three years following the close of the term he was then serving as such acting governor."

CAR KILLS MAN IN CARRIAGE.

New York Commission Merchant's Horse Also Dies After Collision.

Metuchen, N. J., Sept. 30.—Michael Murphy, a New York commission merchant, was killed in a collision between a trolley car of the Jersey Central Traction company and the carriage in which he was driving.

His horse was killed. Murphy's skull was fractured and his collar bone broken. He was sixty years old and leaves a widow and two children.

The accident occurred at Keansburg.
